VOL. 87. No. 158. PART ONE. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 10, 1935. PAGES 1—16A  PRICE 10 CENTS

OLD AGE PENSION ELIGIBLES PUT AT ALMOST MILLION

COST TO MISSOURI AT VARIOUS RATES

Higher in Industrial States —Planners Contemplate Relatives Will Continue Aid to Many.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Taking the total number of aged persons now on relief and the total number receiving old age pensions in the states, Edwin E. Witte of the Committee on Economic Security estimates that only 915,899 persons would come within the provisions of the co-operative Federal-state old age pension plan contained in the bill now before Congress.

"Not all of the old people now on relief can qualify for old age pensions due to the fact that some of them are not citizens and others cannot satisfy the five-year residence requirement," Witte said in a statement intended to clarify certain phases of the old age pension plan. "It is believed to be a reasonable estimate, however, that the number of people who will qualify for old age assistance after the old age assistance laws come fully into operation, is approximately the total of the number of the old people now on relief plus those who are in receipt of old age pensions where such laws are now in operation."

Cost to State of Missouri.

For Missouri the total number of persons over 65 years of age now on relief rolls is 25,415 and this figure is used in estimating the cost to Missouri of establishing a pension plan in co-operation with the Federal Government.

If the Missouri Legislature should fix the pension rate at $10 a month, then the cost to the State would be $1,525,000 a year—that is at the rate of $5 a month to 25,415 persons. The Federal Government would also pay $1,525,000 to make up the annual total necessary to give every qualified person in Missouri $10 a month. If the Missouri Legislature should fix the pension rate at $15 a month, then the State would pay annually $2,287,000 and the cost to the Federal Government would be a similar amount each year. If the Legislature should decide on a total pension of $25 a month, State and Federal would each pay $3,812,000 toward the total cost.

State to State Variation.

Witte suggests in his statement that the amount of the pension will vary from state to state just as the amount of relief distributed to families varies from state to state. He has drawn up one estimate of the cost of the pension system to the states that is based upon the state's standing in relation to the average amount of relief distributed per family. Thus Oklahoma, which pays the lowest average in relief, $10.33 a family, is shown in this estimate to have the lowest pension cost and New York, with the highest relief average per family, $44.94, is shown to have the highest pension cost. On this basis, Missouri would have a total annual cost for the pension system of $1,982,000 to pay a pension slightly more than $10 a month. Oklahoma, for the 26,629 aged persons now on relief rolls in that state, would bear an annual cost of $1,278,000 to pay a pension under $10 a month.

The committee believes, according to Witte, that this estimate "most nearly approximates the probable total cost to the states." On this basis at least seven states would have pensions under $10 a month. These states are Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. Florida would have $10 a month and a number of states, Arkansas among them, would have only a little more.

Not Assuming Whole Burden.

"The pending bill," said Witte, "contemplates that only old people who were in need of public assistance shall be granted a pension. While one-half of all people over 65 years of age do not have adequate means of their own, the great majority are now being supported by children, other relatives and friends. The pending bill contemplates that they shall continue to be so supported and that only those among their number who actually are not being supported by anyone else and are dependent upon public assistance shall be granted a pension. The great ma-

SUPREME COURT AGAIN DEFERS GOLD DECISION

For Second Time Announces Delay — No Opinion Will Be Given Tomorrow—Justices Hold 5-Hour Conference.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9. — The United States Supreme Court announced today that it would not render its decision on the gold clause cases on Monday. This is the second time the court has departed from its usual custom in letting it be known that it will not act on a particular case on a certain day.

A similar announcement was given out a week ago today, intended—it was said then—to prevent needless crowding of the small courtroom.

The nine members of the Supreme Court met for their customary Saturday consultation. For nearly five hours they were closeted in their closely guarded discussion room. Then Chief Justice Hughes called the court's clerk, Charles E. Cropley, after which Cropley returned to his own office and announced to newspaper men: "There will be no statement, but I am authorized to say that no opinions will be announced on Monday."

"That means no opinions of any kind?" was asked. "That's it," Cropley replied.

"How about Tuesday?" "I said Monday," was Cropley's answer.

Cropley said he was speaking only of opinions, that orders might be given announcing whether cases would or would not be reviewed by the court.

While the court was meeting today, Attorney-General Cummings spent two hours with President Roosevelt going over the plans which have been drawn up for immediate action in the event that the decision goes against the Government. Informed of the court's further delay, he declined to comment.

The Government's plans for action, if necessary, were ready a week ago, the product of many hours of consultation by Treasury, Justice Department and Reconstruction Finance Corporation representatives.

Preparations have been made for handling a crowd of spectators on the day the gold decision is rendered. The Court will seat fewer than 300 persons. Consequently admission will be by card only. Extra locks were fixed upon the doors of the Supreme Courtroom today.

The Supreme Court will be in session all of next week and will meet on Monday, Feb. 18, to deliver opinions before taking a recess for two weeks.

JUSTICE SETS UP ROADSIDE COURT FOR TRUCK DRIVERS

20 Fined on Belleville-East St. Louis Road for Traffic Violations.

Twenty truck drivers were fined for traffic offenses early yesterday on Illinois State Highway 13, a main trucking road between Belleville and East St. Louis. A squad of State Highway police made the arrests.

Justice of the Peace A. H. Schoenenberger of Belleville held court alongside of the road at a point where the police were holding the drivers. All paid fines of $5 or $10, except two, who were unable to pay and are being held in the jail at Belleville, charged with speeding. They said they were Harry Hammond, 1419 Chouteau avenue, and Glendon Mayfield, 3928 Delmar boulevard. Most of those arrested were coal truckers making early morning hauls.

THREE BURNED TO DEATH WHEN FIRE DESTROYS JAIL

Young Farmers Had Been Arrested for Drunkenness at Maiden, N. C., Short Time Before.

MAIDEN, N. C., Feb. 9.—Three young men were burned to death when fire destroyed the town jail in which they had been locked up less than two hours previously tonight on charges of drunkenness.

The victims were Forest Groome, 25 years old, Henry Abernethy, 21, and Wilson Hewitt, 21. Officers said they lived on nearby farms.

Persons near the jail said they heard no outcry, and the belief was expressed that the three had been overcome by smoke before flames reached them. The bodies were badly burned. Origin of the fire was not determined.

MAJ. SHEPARD MURDER CASE GOES TO JURY

First Consideration Is Whether Wife Died of Poison, Judge Says in Instructions.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 9.—The second trial of Maj. Charles A. Shepard for the alleged poison murder of his wife, Zenana, went to the jury at 7:03 tonight.

After three hours, 27 minutes of deliberation the panel retired for the night at 10:30 p. m., unofficially reported to be standing ten to two for acquittal. Consideration of the testimony probably will be resumed at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Before the jury retired to study the two weeks' testimony Judge Colin Neblett advised the group he would not receive their verdict before Sunday.

"I will be available tomorrow at any time," he said.

The jury, if it agreed with the guilty verdict returned in Shepard's first trial four years ago, had the added task of deciding whether the retired army doctor should receive a penalty of life imprisonment or hanging. The previous jury, at Kansas City, Kan., decided against the death penalty.

Under Federal Jurisdiction.

While the Kansas laws forbid capital punishment except in cases of treason, Maj. Shepard's case came under Federal jurisdiction since Mrs. Zenana Shepard died in 1929 on Governemnt property at Fort Riley, Kan.

After Shepard's conviction the Supreme Court ordered a retrial on the ground the trial court erroneously had admitted as a dying declaration the testimony of a nurse attributing to Mrs. Shepard the quotation: "Dr. Shepard has poisoned me."

Evidence in the case was completed last night. The Government contended the 63-year-old defendant sought to end his wife's life in order to be free to wed Miss Grace Brandon, 29-year-old Brooks Field, Tex., stenographer. Today was devoted to arguments of counsel.

Judge's Instructions.

Judge Neblett, a New Mexico jurist called to the Shepard trial after both Kansas' Federal Judges were disqualified, closed the case tonight with a summation of the evidence given by expert witnesses for both sides.

"Circumstantial evidence," the court told the 14 jurors, 12 of whom will pass on Shepard's guilt, "is to be considered the same as direct evidence because crimes are often done in secret with no witness to the actual deed.

"The Federal statute provides that murder done by poison is first degree murder and the penalty may be either life imprisonment or death."

The jury's first consideration, Judge Neblett said, was to determine whether Mrs. Shepard died of poison. If it found that she did not, he said, they could go no further and would return a verdict of not guilty.

If, however, they found that she

BREWERY OWNER WINDS UP 'JUST A STOCKHOLDER'

Tony J. Christmann, Belleville Paint Dealer, Tells of Lawson M. Watts' Star-Peerless Venture.

SAYS HE GOT $90,000 FROM $255,000 DEAL

Rest Is in Shares Issued to Secure Notes — Turned Down $230,000 Cash Offer, He Asserts.

Tony J. Christmann, Belleville paint and wallpaper dealer, looks back somewhat ruefully, and with a bit of self-reproach, as he recalls the two-year effort of Lawson M. Watts, former St. Louis banker, to establish himself in the brewery business.

So far as Watts was concerned, the business venture came to an end a few days ago when the stockholders of the Star-Peerless Brewery at Belleville failed to re-elect him as a director, and when the directors subsequently dropped him from his $8000-a-year job as vice president and general manager.

Watts, a former vice-president of the First National Bank in St. Louis, of which his father, Frank O. Watts, is board chairman, filed in bankruptcy in the Federal Court in St. Louis last Wednesday, listing liabilities of $340,924 and assets of $33,475. He described himself as unemployed.

"Now Just a Stockholder."

Tony Christmann made a comfortable fortune in the paint and wall paper business in which he first engaged 50 years ago. He started carrying his ladder on his back from house to house. Now he has a large store half a block from the Belleville public square.

He and Mrs. Christmann did not go South this winter, as has been their custom in recent years. The trouble over the brewery was the reason.

"Now I am just a stockholder in the brewery instead of owning it," Christmann said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday. He is one of the new directors.

The Star Brewery, now the Star-Peerless, was one of the oldest breweries in the St. Louis area. It was established in 1854. Before prohibition it was a flourishing business, with a modern plant on a 14-acre site a few blocks from the Belleville business district.

Ten years ago, after prohibition had made the plant idle, Christmann bought it. He manufactured ice and malt, but he had to put about $10,000 a year into the plant to maintain it and pay taxes.

Sale to St. Louisans.

After repeal of prohibition he thought he saw an opportunity to get his money back and make a profit. Some Belleville business men sought to acquire and operate the brewery. They offered $230,000, which would have given Christmann a modest profit. But promoters were interested in breweries and from St. Louis came the offer of a brokerage house to pay $255,000.

"I studied over it a long time," Christmann said. "I wanted the Belleville men to have it, but $25,000 was a lot of money. I told them I would go 50-50 with them and give up $12,500 if they would raise their bid to $242,500. They wouldn't come up a dollar, so there was nothing for me to do but sell to the St. Louis parties.

"Now I realize it would have been better to have sold to Belleville men. They would have paid cash, and I would have had my money and been out of the brewery. Now I am involved in stock deals and lawsuits."

The brokerage house that had made the deal expected to get money from stock sales to pay Christmann for the property. It encountered difficulties in working out the plan, and Watts and his associates stepped in.

Paid in Shares and Notes.

The Watmoor Investment Co., a corporation that had been organized by F. O. Watts, was used to carry out the new arrangement. The new brewery company was organized with authorization to issue 150,000 shares of common stock, par value $5 a share. The new corporation issued 77,685 shares to Christmann as payment for the property, and the Watmoor company gave its notes to Christmann covering the price and was to take up the stock he held as it paid off his notes. It depended on stock sales to the public to get the money to pay the notes.

The stock was offered to the public in 1933 at $6 a share, but it did not go well. The Watmoor Investment Co. was not able to meet its notes to Christmann and last No-

HAUPTMANN TESTIMONY CONCLUDED; ARGUMENTS WILL BEGIN TOMORROW

CASE EXPECTED TO GO TO JURY LATE TUESDAY; 162 WITNESSES

Evidence Completed After Five Weeks, Three Days —Mrs. Morrow Last to Take Stand in Prosecution's Rebuttal.

EXPERT ON WOOD RECALLED BY STATE

Repeats That Piece of Kidnaper's Ladder Was Board From Defendant's Attic —Defense Offers No Surrebuttal.

By the Associated Press

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 9.—The case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, charged with the murder of the Lindbergh baby, was completed today, five weeks and three days after the trial began. Counsel will begin their final arguments to the jury Monday. The summations are expected to take all of Monday and a part of Tuesday.

Today's rebuttal testimony, concerning Isador Fisch and Violet Sharpe, both dead, closed with Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, grandmother of the murdered baby, on the stand.

When not combatting defense insinuations that Fisch or Miss Sharpe, employed as a maid by Mrs. Morrow, had guilty knowledge of the crime March 1, 1932, the State attacked the lumber testimony offered by the Bronx carpenter's attorneys.

Mrs. Lindbergh in Court.

Hauptmann showed little emotion during the day, but Mrs. Morrow and her daughter, Mrs. Anne Lindbergh, who sat through both sessions today, showed keen interest in all the proceedings. Mrs. Lindbergh, the baby's mother, was making her second appearance in the old Hunterdon County courtroom. She was one of the first witnesses of the State.

Col. Lindbergh has attended the trial every day, sitting behind the State counsel's table in a position from which he could look almost squarely at witnesses who were called to the stand.

A hundred sixty-two witnesses have been heard in the 29 days the court has been in session. The State called 109, twenty-one of them in rebuttal testimony lasting a day and a half. A total of 381 exhibits have been introduced, 308 of them by the State.

Close of Testimony.

Presentation of evidence came to an abrupt close at 2:30 p. m. when the State announced it had finished its rebuttal evidence and the defense, headed by Edward J. Reilly of New York, announced it would offer no sur-rebuttal.

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard called a week-end recess.

Anthony M. Hauck Jr., one of the assistants of Attorney-General David Wilentz, who is conducting the State's case, will make the first summation. Hauck will outline the points which the prosecution has made through the testimony of the 88 witnesses it called to the stand for direct testimony. Hauck does not expect to require more than an hour and a half.

Reilly, for the defense, will follow. He is expected to take most of the remainder of the day. Wilentz will speak for the State Tuesday, and the case is expected to go to the jury of eight men and four women by mid-afternoon of that day. The charge to the jury by Justice Trenchard is not likely to require more than 45 minutes.

Dispute Over Reilly's Plan.

Hauptmann was reported tonight to be opposed to Reilly's plan to sum up his case alone. Hauptmann, member of his defense staff disclosed, wants two New Jersey a member of his defense staff disthe summation. Reilly is a Brooklyn lawyer.

The defendant is said to seek the inclusion of C. Lloyd Fisher and Frederick A. Pope in the summa-

NAVY REQUESTS $20,000,000 FOR BASES IN PACIFIC

WOULD USE NORMAL PUBLIC WORKS FUND

House Committee Approves Appropriating $11,000,000 to Start Air Base in Hawaii.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—More powerful bases on the West Coast and at strategic points in the Pacific were disclosed on Capitol Hill today to be a primary goal of the navy.

Plans for a $20,000,000 program to strengthen bases, shipyards and drydocks at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, Coco Solo in the Canal Zone, and on the Pacific Coast have been laid before Chairman Vinson (Dem.), Georgia, of the House Naval Committee.

The money would come from the $300,000,000 fund for "normal Federal Public Works" in the Government's 1936 budget. A small share of the funds would be expended on the Atlantic Seaboard.

Along with $20,000,000 which has been allocated to the army, $40,000,000 would be provided altogether from the fund for national defense operations centering largely in the Pacific.

With nearly $11,000,000 of its share the army is planning to start an $18,000,000 air base in Hawaii, provide better seacoast defenses including improved anti-aircraft guns, and undertake much needed construction of barracks and quarters at army posts.

Just how the navy would split its $20,000,000 was understood to be a matter for future determination. But the decision to use most of it in the Pacific was said to have been influenced by the fact that the fleet has been concentrated in those waters during much of the last two years.

House Group For Air Base.

The House Appropriations Committee was advised today by Chairman McSwain (Dem.), South Carolina, that his Military Committee had indorsed appropriating $11,000,000 for the Hawaiian air base.

This proposal and plans for strengthening coast defenses were discussed at a secret meeting of the army high command and McSwain's committee yesterday.

At the same time, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, recommended to the committee the purchase of 800 new armored and equipped airplanes at a cost of $90,000,000, in order to give the Army the aerial armada of 2320 modern aircraft recommended by the Baker committee.

These additional aircraft were necessary, MacArthur said in a memorandum, to expand the new general headquarters airforce to give it 900 fighting units for its Pacific, Atlantic and Gulf coast divisions.

Nothing Offensive Implied.

After the conference, McSwain stressed that "nothing offensive" should be implied. "It is so easy for some people to misinterpret," he said. "Purely defensive measures were under consideration." He said the propositions would have been considered even if Japan had not scrapped the Washington naval treaty.

Besides MacArthur, the War Department was represented by Brigadier General Charles E. Kilbourne, assistant Chief of Staff; Major-General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Air Corps, and Lieutenant-Colonel Frank M. Andrews, commander of the General Headquarters Airforce.

MacArthur, in discussing aircraft procurement, said that the 1936 appropriations would permit purchase of 488 planes, which, with an annual depreciation and loss of 400 to 500 would allow little progress on the air expansion program.

A study showed, he said, that the army needs immediately, 175 pur-

"FINE" CHANCE OF ACQUITTAL, HAUPTMANN QUOTED AS SAYING

Lawyer Says Defendant Was Relieved When Testimony Was Completed.

By the Associated Press.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 9. — Bruno Richard Hauptmann was returned to his cell in the Hunterdon County jail today after hearing the testimony of the last witness called by the State in its efforts to convict him of the murder of the Lindbergh baby. The defendant showed no emotion as he left the courtroom.

He was followed to his cell by his wife and a short time later by one of his attorneys, Egbert Rosecrans. Rosecrans said Hauptmann felt relieved at the conclusion of the testimony.

"He asked me what I thought of his possibilities of acquittal and when I told him I thought they were good, he said, 'They are better than that, Herr Lawyer, they are fine,'" Rosecrans said.

"Hauptmann told me he had not expected that the defense would actually show who committed the crime," Rosecrans observed. "He said that he was content with our efforts to show that he did not do it."

HAUPTMANN WOULD MAKE PERSONAL APPEAL TO JURY TO ACQUIT HIM

By the Associated Press.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 9.

BRUNO RICHARD HAUPTMANN, on trial for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, wants to make a final personal appeal to the jury.

He has asked one of his counsel if court regulations would permit him to address the jurors before they retire to consider a verdict, it was learned tonight.

His lawyers expressed doubt that such a statement would be permitted. Should a conviction result, Hauptmann may be permitted to make a statement before sentence is imposed, however.

CHICAGO POLICEMAN HELD IN $12,000 EXTORTION PLOT

Officer Arrested, Prosecutor Says, When He Picks Up Dummy Package in Trap.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9. — Policeman Arthur Hammer of the Stanton Avenue Station was arrested tonight in connection with a $12,000 extortion plot, Assistant State's Attorney Robert Crowley announced.

Hammer was seized on the far South Side where he went, Crowley declared to pick up a "dummy" package.

Crowley said the plot was brought to his attention several days ago when Neil Duffy, operator of a tavern, complained that Hammer was trying to force him to give him $12,000. "A trap was laid and a package representing the money was placed," Crowley said. "Hammer walked into the trap."

Red Posters Announce Decapitations in Germany.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 9.—Flaming red billboard posters announced to Berlin residents today the execution of two men branded as betrayers of military secrets. Kurt Roehm of Ludwigshafen and Paul Nerz of Stuttgart were executed at dawn, having been refused a pardon by Reichsfuehrer Hitler on conviction in the star chamber people's court Oct. 16.

As it was the first time posters had appeared announcing a decapitation, it was generally believed that Reich Nazi authorities intended by this gesture to warn Germans of the severity of sentences for high treason.

MOVE TO ENABLE TENANTS TO BUY LAND THEY FARM

Senator Bankhead to Offer Bill Providing for Government Loans at Low Interest Rate.

CONCERN OVER RAPID GROWTH OF TENANCY

Long Amortization Terms for Those Now on Land, Money for Equipment — Share Cropper Problem.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9. — A move to enable farm tenants to buy the land they now farm through the aid of Government loans at a comparatively low rate of interest is expected to take shape Monday with the introduction of a bill by Senator John H. Bankhead (Dem.), Alabama.

Although the bill will not have the open sponsorship of the administration, it will embody the ideas of many in the Government who have been concerned over the rapid rise of farm tenancy during the past five years. The bill to be introduced by Bankhead, father of the Compulsory Cotton Control Act, is aimed specifically at tenancy in the South, but it would include in its loan provisions all other regions as well.

Bankhead would provide loans at a rate of interest probably fixed at 4½ per cent, with a long term amortization, to tenants now occupying farms. His bill, which is being put in final form, also contemplates loans for farm equipment where necessary. The tenant would be set up as an independent farmer in every respect.

Disturbances in Arkansas.

The measure, as now drawn, does not provide for dispossessed tenants. Bankhead denies that tenants and share-croppers have been put off farms by owners and landlords as a result of the operation of the AAA cotton reduction program.

"I know of only two such cases in my State," Bankhead said. "That trouble in Arkansas was the result of agitation by outsiders."

Bankhead referred to the recent disturbances growing out of meetings of the tenants and share-croppers' union in Arkansas, as a result of which several leaders who had addressed union meetings were beaten by armed bands. In response to numerous demands, the AAA sent Dr. Mary Coner Myers of the AAA legal staff to investigate the status of tenants who claimed they were put off of land they had farmed and were not allowed to share in the AAA benefits.

Dr. Myers, who returned to Washington some time ago, said today that she had virtually completed her report and would shortly turn it over to Chester Davis, AAA administrator. The decision as to whether it will be made public will rest with Davis.

How Plan Would Work.

The plan proposed by Bankhead would set up regional boards similar to those created under the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. Such boards, composed of a business man, a farm expert, a farmer and perhaps a banker, would pass upon the tenants applying for loans, Bankhead said.

"Under this bill," said the Alabama Senator, "where there were 10 tenants on a farm, each of the 10 would have the opportunity of acquiring his tract of land. The house and barn are already there, so acquisition of the land would make the tenant a farmer on his own. It would include share-croppers, too, because the share-cropper is really a tenant."

Bankhead's proposal coincides with a program for tenant-purchase contracts that M. L. Wilson, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, has been studying for some time. Wilson was formerly head of the Fairway Farms Co. in Montana, which sought to enable tenants to buy their land, loaning money advanced by the Rockefeller Foundation at low rates of interest. The continued decline in agricultural prices and drouth doomed the Fairway Farms Co. to failure, according to Wilson. But he is confident that such a plan can be worked out by the Government to take advantage of a rising market for farm produce. The Department of Agriculture, Wilson said, will not introduce a bill of its own, but will work with various Senators who are interested in putting over some scheme such as Bankhead's for reducing tenancy.

Problem Under Debate.

This is a problem that has taken up considerable time in the Senate during the past week in the course of debate on the Farm Credit Act. Senator Louis Murphy (Dem.), Iowa, pointed to the extraordinary increase in tenancy in the Middle West. Farms were falling into the hands of the banks and corporations that held the mortgages, at an ever increasing rate, he said. In one county in Iowa, he stated, 85 per cent of the farmers were tenants, while the rate for the entire State was bout 62 per cent.

Bankhead, who estimates tenancy in Alabama at 70 per cent, holds that there has been no increase in the ratio of tenant farmers to owner farmers in recent years in the South.

STATE ATTACKS DEFENSE TESTIMONY ABOUT MORROW MAID

tions. Fisher, in his examination of witnesses, has sought to show that authorities were inefficient in their search for the kidnaper. He is Hauptmann's selection to argue that the New Jersey State police botched the investigation.

The defendant was impressed, it is understood by Pope's attempts to refute the testimony of the Federal wood expert, Arthur J. Koehler, and thinks Pope is the one who should cite the alleged fallacies in Koehler's testimony.

Alibi for Servant.

Mrs. Morrow, widow of the former Ambassador to Mexico, testified that Miss Sharpe was at the Morrow home in Englewood until about 7:45 the night of the kidnaping and that she returned to the home about 11. The baby was kidnaped from the Lindbergh home at Hopewell, many miles distant.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Morrow's testimony the defense moved for a directed verdict of acquittal, which Justice Trenchard promptly denied.

Defense Counsel Reilly said: "So that the jury may thoroughly understand this procedure now, I understand that your honor holds (in denying the motion) that it is a question of fact to be determined by them." Justice Trenchard: "That is it."

Just before Court adjourned Justice Trenchard addressed the jurors and for the first time asked them not to take their usual week-end bus ride. He said:

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, I wish that you would not go out either today or tomorrow on a bus ride. I wish that you would not do that, and please do not do it, nor undertake to do it.

"Of course, there is no reason in the world why you should not take appropriate exercise in the custody of your officers, either on the hotel veranda or on the pavements, if the pavements are fit to walk on. I haven't been out through the village myself, but if the pavements are nice to walk on, you may very well like to walk, and I would think it might be rather a good thing for you, so with that admonition I will say to you that you may now retire and come in at 10 o'clock on Monday morning."

Defense Testimony.

The State's effort today to establish Violet Sharpe's whereabouts on the night of the kidnaping was in answer to defense testimony earlier in the week. Mrs. Anna Bonesteel, a restaurant owner of Yonkers, N. Y., testified that she had seen Miss Sharpe the night of the crime, waiting in her restaurant, a blanket on her arm, for two men who finally drove up in an automobile and took her away. Another defense witness, Peter Sommer of New York, testified several days ago that he had seen a woman strongly resembling Miss Sharpe boarding a street car at the Forty-second street (New York) ferry, a two-year-old baby in her arms.

The name of "Red" Johnson, who was a friend of Betty Gow, nurse of the Lindbergh baby, was brought into the testimony again in the closing minutes of the case.

George Marshall, night watchman at the Morrow estate, testified that he knew Johnson, and that Johnson—who at one time was questioned in connection with the case—was acquainted with Violet Sharpe.

"He was there (at the Morrow estate) several times," Marshall said. "I met him there."

Through Marshall the defense introduced testimony that Miss Sharpe had a sister working in Englewood at the time of the kidnaping. The purpose of this evidence was not clear, unless the defense intends to point in summation to a possibility that one Sharpe sister may have been mistaken for the other by witnesses.

More About Attic Board.

Trooper Lewis J. Bornmann of the New Jersey State Police force was called as the first witness to rebut the testimony of Charles De Bisschop, Waterbury (Conn.) lumber man and contractor, who testified for the defense that he did not think the State's exhibit 226, a board, had ever been nailed to the joists in the attic of Hauptmann's home. The prosecution has offered testimony to prove that a rail of the kidnaper's ladder was part of a board in Hauptmann's attic and that Hauptmann's plane was used in construction of the ladder.

Bornmann, in whose name the State leased Hauptmann's home after the carpenter's arrest, identified eight nails which, he said, had held the board in place before he removed it on Sept. 26, 1934, seven days after Hauptmann's arrest. He also pointed out the marks left by the pressure of the board against the beams.

Wood Expert Recalled.

Koehler, the State's wood expert who had followed closely the testimony of De Bisschop, was recalled at the morning session to rebut testimony of defense witnesses which had contradicted his. Koehler repeated his previous testimony, amplifying it in places.

The State, which had already offered rebuttal to impeach the testimony of two of Hauptmann's alibi witnesses, attacked another through Leo Singer. Louis Kiss testified for the defense that he delivered a bottle of rum to Singer on the kidnaping night—and saw Hauptmann when he dropped into a bakery for coffee. Singer said Kiss delivered the rum late in the month.

The Day's Testimony.

Detective Bornmann was the first witness called today. He told how he obtained the floor board in Hauptmann's garret. It is from this board the State contends one of the ladder uprights was cut.

Bornmann explained he had lifted the attic board from the joists with his hands without the aid of tools. His statement explained the absence of tool marks on the board, a point made by the defense.

Koehler, the wood expert, then was questioned by Wilentz about nick marks made on wood by planes. Defense Attorney Pope's objection that Koehler was not a practical carpenter and therefore could not discuss planes, was overruled.

Q. What have you to say of the similarity of the markings left by Hauptmann's plane on the lumber brought here and the marks on the rungs of the ladder?

Pope objected the expert was not qualified to testify. He was overruled, and the witness was allowed to reply.

A. The marks were identical when the plane was used straight on the wood. When the plane was held at an angle, the marks were closer together.

Q. Does that interfere with the identification of the plane marks themselves? A. No, it does not.

The jury was giving Koehler the same rapt attention he received when he first took the stand during the State's direct case.

Wilentz produced next the two short boards used by the defense to show similarities in wood of allegedly different origin.

"These two boards," Koehler declared, "were once in the same piece for a number of reasons."

De Bisschop, the Connecticut lumberman, had testified for the defense that the boards were not from the same piece.

Koehler demonstrated a continuity of "bead" in the center of both boards. The jury was allowed to examine them.

Pope's objections to the proceeding again were overruled.

Says One Was Planed.

Koehler went on with his reasons for the identity of the boards. The backs of the boards were of the same roughness, except one had been washed and planed slightly.

Q. Prior to that planing was that board of the same roughness as the other? A. Yes.

Koehler also called the jury's attention to the black spots both boards bore, indicating, he said, tar paper or some similar material had once been nailed to them. The end grain, or annual rings, corresponded exactly, he said.

"It is obvious, of course, these two boards were not exactly next to each other," he continued. "However, when I hold them a few inches apart the matching of the surface grain is very apparent."

He expressed his opinion that a piece had been cut from between the two pieces.

Koehler laid the two pieces on another board to demonstrate to the jury that, with a separation of an inch and a quarter, their grain matched perfectly. The pieces were fastened with rubber bands in the position he desired and he held them out to the jury for inspection, indicating the continuity of "dark and light lines" of the grain.

Testimony About Knots.

Wilentz turned the questioning to the knots in the ladder rail and attic board.

Q. Now with relation to the knots, what was the position of the two in the tree? This board (attic) was above rail 16 (runner) in the tree.

Q. Is it a fact (as testified by the defense) that the butt logs have more knots? A. It is common knowledge that the greater number of knots is at the top and from butt woods comes the best, clearest wood.

De Bisschop, whose defense testimony Koehler was so vigorously assailing, twisted nervously in his seat in the witness row near the Hauptmann table. Several times he half rose and made ineffectual gestures to attract the attention of Chief Defense Counsel Reilly.

The frequency of defense objections indicated how determined the Hauptmann counsel was to fight Koehler every inch of the way. The objections were futile.

Q. Do you still say that the attic board and the rail were once of the same board? A. Yes.

Koehler testified that the attic board nails were in his possession after removal. He identified them.

Koehler said the nail holes in the attic board upright of the ladder were the same size as those found in the attic floor board from which it was allegedly cut.

He identified a photograph of forest pine and said that was the type of tree that yielded North Carolina pine lumber. The picture was accepted in evidence.

Wood Grain and Nail Holes.

Wilentz showed Koehler a defense photograph of a piece of wood, identified by a defense witness as "yellow" pine.

"That piece he called yellow pine," said the expert, "was white pine."

Defense counsel sat silent while Koehler continued his assault on their case.

The rebuttal turned to Koehler's identification of the grain in the rail and the attic board. He used his chart to demonstrate, with Attorneys Pope, Reilly and Wilentz gathered about him.

Wilentz returned to the topic of nail holes.

Q. There has been some testimony here, Mr. Koehler, about nail holes. Prior to the arrest of Hauptmann did you examine the ladder? A. I did.

Q. Did you make any observation as to nail holes on rail 16? A. I did.

Q. When did you make those observations on rail 16 and what did you see? A. In 1934, before Hauptmann's arrest, I measured the nail holes.

Koehler said he examined them in 1933 also.

Q. Do the nail holes you examined correspond with holes in the joists in Hauptmann's attic? A. They do.

Cross-Examined by Defense.

Wilentz ended his questioning and Pope began the cross-examination. Pope inquired:

Q. You are not a practical carpenter? A. I've done carpentry work but I'm not a carpenter by trade.

Q. Built bird houses and such things, I suppose? A. I helped my father build houses and barns and with cabinet work.

Q. Have you any experience in wood craft? A. Yes, I've been out in the woods, lumbering and so forth.

Q. But your knowledge of millwork is only from observation and study? A. Oh, I've had a little practical experience.

Q. Is it possible by machinery to divide an inch into thousandths? A. Yes.

Koehler said he had not taken "three-dimension" measurements of the marks on wood, in response to Pope's technical questions. He said he had compared distances between.

Pope demanded that the witness admit his identification of the Hauptmann and ladder plane marks was worthless because he has not measured the dimensions of the microscopic plane ridges.

"I don't have to measure two houses to get the distance between them," Koehler replied dryly.

"No, I'm Stating a Fact."

Wilentz asked a single question on redirect examination.

"After that examination by Mr. Pope in all those questions and answers was there anything that would cause you to change your opinion that S226 (the attic board) and rail 16 were once part of the same piece of wood?"

Koehler looked straight at the jury.

"Nothing," he answered emphatically.

He was then excused.

After a short recess, Singer was called.

Q. Do you know Louis Kiss? A. Yes.

Q. Did he come to your house in March, 1932? A. Near the end of March.

Q. Did you have a radio?

Reilly objected that there was nothing in evidence about Singer's radio.

Wilentz abandoned his question, but explained to the Court he sought to show the radio on which Kiss said he heard the kidnaping announcement was not bought until March 10, 1932.

Q. Was Kiss at your house on March 1, 1932? A. Positively not.

Reilly took the witness.

Q. What is the date you said Kiss was in your house? A. Late in March or early in April.

Q. But there is no doubt in your mind he was at your house? A. He was there.

Reilly then asked the witness if he had a 21-year-old daughter. Singer nodded assent.

Q. And wasn't she very much displeased at seeing her name and address in the paper in connection with the story? A. She was and so was I.

Q. And didn't she ask you to come down here and testify to try to counteract Mr. Kiss' testimony and get her name out of the paper? A. Positively not.

Q. As a matter of fact, you came down here at the request of a certain columnist of a New York newspaper? A. No.

Q. But you talked to him? A. Yes, several of them.

Q. Did he promise your daughter a part in a play? A. Positively not.

Singer was excused.

Other Rebuttal Testimony.

Wilentz called next Mrs. Ottila Hoerber of the Bronx. She testified that on the night of April 2, 1932, she gave a paper, exhibited by Wilentz, to Isador Fisch, Hauptmann's dead partner.

This testimony was calculated to refute the defense theory that Fisch collected the Lindbergh ransom the night of April 2, 1932. The slip of paper was allegedly a receipt for a partial payment on a loan Fisch was making for a business associate.

Reilly took the witness.

Q. Isn't this a fact, that after talking to a lawyer and being in Trenton two nights, you came here and testified you saw Fisch the night of April 2, 1932? A. Yes.

Wilentz interposed: "But you have this paper to refresh your memory?" "Yes."

Reilly asked numerous questions to test the witness' memory. She admitted she had made mistakes about time and was hazy on dates.

Q. What date was Fisch in your house? A. April 2, 1932.

Q. What day of the week was it? A. It was Saturday night.

Q. What day of the week was April 16? A. I don't know.

Q. And April 23? A. No.

Reilly developed from the witness that an automobile could be driven in 15 minutes from Mrs. Hoerber's home in the Bronx, on the west side, to St. Raymond's Cemetery on the east side.

She was excused.

Friend of Miss Sharpe Testifies.

Ernest Miller, the first witness to be called to clear Miss Sharpe, the Morrow maid, was then sworn. He was questioned by Assistant Attorney-General Robert Peacock.

Q. On March 1, 1932, did you know Violet Sharpe? A. I did.

Q. Were you with her that night? A. I was.

Q. When did you meet her that night? A. I met her at the Morrow estate with Elmer Johnson, and a girl. It was 8 o'clock.

Q. Where did you go? A. To Orangeburg Peanut Grill, that's in New York State.

Q. What time did you get there? A. About 8:30 or quarter to nine.

Q. Did you stay there? A. Yes until 10:40 or 10:45.

Q. What did you do then? A. I drove her back to Morrow estate, Englewood, and left her right where we got her, at the door of the Morrow house.

Q. What time was that? A. Eleven o'clock.

Q. And she was in your company from 8 to 11. A. Yes.

Q. From the time you met Violet Sharpe until you returned her to the Morrow estate at 11 o'clock you were with her? A. Yes. She was with us until I took her back to the Morrow estate.

Lawyer and Witness Clash.

Wilentz turned Miller over to Reilly.

Q. Did you know Violet Sharpe had a sister (Reilly showed him the maid's photo?) A. Yes. But I never saw her sister's picture.

"Never mind about pictures, Reilly said.

Reilly asked Miller if Miss Sharpe was "a pick-up." The young man said she was not. He "supposed" she had trailed him, mistaking him for someone else, she said sarcastically.

Reilly and the witness engaged in an altercation, the attorney suggesting that Miller was "amused" by the questions. Miller said he was not. Order was restored by Justice Trenchard. Miller was excused.

Catherine Minners, who was in the party, corroborated Miller's story that the Morrow maid was with them from 8 until about 11.

Reilly began the cross-examination.

Miss Minners could not recall when she had first talked to State authorities.

Reilly recited a series of dates about March 1, 1932, on none of which the witness could remember what she had been doing.

Reilly asked the witness the distance from the Morrow estate to the roadhouse, but the nervous young woman said she didn't know. Reilly got her to say she was not familiar with the various ferries.

"You haven't got a very good memory," he queried.

"I have a very good memory on the night of March 1, 1932, though," she shot back at him.

Reilly released the witness and Peacock asked when Miss Minners gave her statement to police.

She said she told the Englewood police on March 3, 1932.

"You remember because you're alive," Reilly observed.

The witness was excused and the noon recess called.

Afternoon Session.

Court resumed at 1:48 p. m. and Elmer Johnson, another of the persons who were with Miss Sharpe on the kidnaping night, was the first witness.

Johnson told Wilentz he lived in in Englewood and was on the party with Miss Sharpe. He and Ernest Miller called for Miss Minners, he said, and went to the Morrow estate to pick up Miss Sharpe. The party, he said, went to the Peanut Grille, at Orangeburg, N. Y.

The party left the place about 10:30 p. m. and returned Miss Sharpe to the Morrow estate about 11 p. m.

Q. Some time after, when the news of the crime became a matter of public concern, was broadcast and appeared in the newspapers, did you report to the police? A. No, sir.

Reilly opened the cross-examination. The witness recounted that he lived in Englewood in 1931 and during part of 1932, and during that time he was employed as an assistant cook in the Actors' Home in Englewood.

Johnson said he was employed at present "in the same line of work" at the Hotel Gramatan at Bronxville.

Q. Do any of these actors come in there? A. No, sir.

Q. Who asked you in 1935 to be a witness? A. The State police, Corporal Horn.

Q. Did he bring you over here? A. Yes.

Q. And kept you in the Hotel Hildebrecht, Trenton? A. Yes.

Not "Substitute," He Says.

Q. Now, isn't it a fact that you are being substituted in this case for "Red" Johnson who was in the car that night with Violet Sharpe? A. No, sir.

Q. This woman who got into the car, you never saw her before? A. No.

Q. Ever see her since? A. No.

Q. How many Sharpe girls worked in Englewood in March and February, 1932? A. I don't know.

"Does that resemble the girl in the car (Miss Sharpe) with her hat on?" Reilly asked, presenting a picture. The witness said "yes, sir" at first and then took another look. "No, sir," he corrected himself.

Johnson told Reilly the gates of the Morrow estate were open the night his party called for Miss Sharpe. Miller, he said, went in the front door of the pantry" to get Miss Sharpe.

Q. Don't you know the gates are always closed? A. No.

Reilly released the witness.

Wilentz drew from the witness on redirect examination that he had given his statement to the State police in 1932.

Reilly then took the witness and had him say he was staying at the Trenton Hotel where the State has been quartering its witnesses.

"You have been over there (Trenton) with the Fisch family and the German nurse, haven't you?" Reilly asked. "At the expense of the State of New Jersey?" The witness said he didn't know.

Q. You know the German nurse, who didn't testify but whose expenses were paid? A. Yes.

Wilentz interposed.

Q. You didn't know her expenses were paid? A. No, sir.

Wilentz asserted that the State had good reason to pay the expenses of witnesses.

Court Admonishes Attorneys.

Wilentz apologized but observed: "I didn't start it."

Johnson was excused.

Marshall, the elderly night watchman at the Morrow estate on the kidnaping night, then took the stand. He peered over his spectacles as he answered questions.

Q. Did you see Violet Sharpe on the night of March 1, 1932? A. I did.

Q. You remember the night, don't you, the night of the crime? A. I do.

Q. What time did she come back that night. A. About 11 o'clock, 10 minutes one way or the other. I ring up about 11 o'clock, and that's how I know the time.

The defense then took the witness. Reilly brought out that Marshall had met "Red" Johnson several times at the estate.

Wilentz protested that "this is no time to drop in 'Red' Johnson," but Reilly was allowed to continue.

Reilly changed his attack.

Q. How long would it take to ride from the Morrow estate to the Alpine ferry? A. About 25 minutes.

Q. And you saw Violet Sharpe come in at 11 o'clock? A. Yes.

Marshall exhibited a vagueness in remembering who came and went at the estate on other dates about March 1, 1932.

Wilentz asked:

"But March 1 is impressed in your memory because your employer's grandson was kidnaped?" "Yes," Marshall replied.

Q. Will you tell as the last time you saw her that night? A. She served dinner and I saw her at about 7:45 and didn't see her again until after 11 o'clock.

Reilly asked the caretaker to name members of the Morrow family living at the estate at the time. He recalled Mrs. Morrow and the daughter, Elisabeth.

Q. Where was the son at that time? A. He was away at college.

Mrs. Morrow on Stand.

The witness was excused and the Attorney General called Mrs. Morrow.

A small woman in a black dress with a white trimmed collar, she took the stand with calm assurance. Her voice was well modulated.

Q. Were you at home the night of March 1, 1932? A. Yes.

Q. Was Miss Sharpe employed at your home on that day? A. Yes.

Q. Will you tell us the last time you saw her that night? A. She served dinner and I saw her at about 7:45 and didn't see her again until after 11 o'clock that night.

Q. Was it 12 o'clock? A. It was considerably before then.

Q. Who were the members of your family at home? A. The immediate family? Myself and my daughter (Elisabeth, who died last December).

Q. Where was Betty Gow? A. She was at Hopewell all day as far as I can remember.

Cross-Examination.

Reilly lowered his voice to a gentle pitch as he opened his cross-examination. He inquired about the butler, and Mrs. Morrow replied he was Septimus Banks.

Q. Did he serve dinner that night? A. No, Miss Sharpe served.

Reilly asked a few more questions and then excused the witness.

As Mrs. Morrow stepped down, Wilentz conferred briefly with Reilly. He told the court that the defense consented to introduction of a photograph of the gates of Woodlawn Cemetery.

Then the Attorney General announced:

"The State rests, your honor."

After a brief conference of State and defense counsel, Reilly turned to the court.

"The defense rests," he said.

Wilentz asked that Justice Trenchard permit counsel to arrange with him for the fixing of time for summations.

Egbert Rosecrans, of the defense, arose and moved for a directed verdict of acquittal, based, he said, on his reasons given in a similar motion after the end of the State's direct evidence. He did not recite the reasons.

Justice Trenchard denied the motion.

Reilly asked that the Court instruct the jurors that they should consider the case on questions of fact. Justice Trenchard said that was understood. Then the week-end recess was ordered.

ALDERMAN SHOWN AS AN OFFICER IN CLOTHING FIRM

RETIRED 4 YEARS AGO, HE HAS SAID

"M. A. Klein Co." Filled Part of Orders for Dry Goods — There Is No Record of This Concern.

Records in the office of the Secretary of State at Jefferson City contain a report listing Alderman Hubert A. Hoeflinger (Dem.), as an officer in 1934 of the Standard Clothing & Tailoring Co., which had 19 city contracts last year.

City officials are forbidden by the Charter to have an interest, directly or indirectly, in city contracts, with forfeiture of office as the penalty for violation.

When a special committee of the Board of Aldermen undertook recently an investigation of contracts with which the names of Hoeflinger and two other Aldermen had been connected, Hoeflinger declared he had retired four years ago as an officer of the Standard company. He said he had lost his financial interest in the concern but remained with it as a salesman and held himself out as officer to make himself seem "bigger" than he was.

An annual report of the Standard company, complying with a requirement for corporations, dated last July 25, was filed with the Secretary of State. The report, accompanied by a sworn statement by M. A. Klein, president of the concern, listed Hoeflinger as secretary-treasurer.

Hoeflinger, when seen, said he had nothing to say."

The Standard company was successful bidder under its 19 contracts to furnish $1800 worth of supplies to city institutions, which were delivered between Oct. 22 and Dec. 12. Klein has explained that contracts for $706 worth of dry goods for city institutions were filled by the "M. A. Klein Clothing Co." during the month after the Standard company stopped bidding, in order to save Hoeflinger from any "undeserved embarrassment."

The "M. A. Klein Clothing Co." gave as its address, 4019 Chouteau avenue, the office of the Standard company, and the same business address given by Hoeflinger on the Board of Aldermen's roster. "I am the company," Klein said, when asked about its officers and when was created.

The "M. A. Klein Clothing Co." is not listed in the office of the Secretary of State, although Missouri statutes require registration of all persons doing business under any name other than their own true name. Secretary of State Brown was of the opinion that an individual doing business under the title of a company would be subject to the "fictitious names" statute, violation of which is a misdemeanor.

Offers City 60 Pct. of Receipts for Wrap-Checking Concession.

Bids for the wrap-checking concession at the Municipal Auditorium were received yesterday by the Policy Committee of the Auditorium Commission. The former concessionaire, Leo E. Riley, told the commission Jan. 29 that he had divided $30.45 profits for the first six months of his contract with Aldermen Otto L. Lietchen and Harry L. Israel (Dems.)

Riley's charge led to appointment of the aldermanic committee to investigate the cases of Aldermen Hoeflinger, Lietchen and Israel. Lietchen has declined to discuss the charge, while Israel has denied that he received any of the profits or knew anything about the alleged deal.

Lietchen, a member of the Policy Committee, was not present yesterday. Riley, who had the concession from the time the auditorium was opened last April until the last commission meeting, did not bid again.

The committee voted to submit the two most favorable bids to the whole commission. The best bid was from Herman Albers, 2839 Olive street, who offered to give the city 60 per cent of the gross receipts of the check rooms. Asked how he could afford to give so much, he told the committee he had lost $100,000 in recent years and sought the contract principally for a job for himself. He said he had had 30 years' experience in handling check rooms. Formerly owner of the Castle dance hall, he is its manager now.

Samuel S. Mandel, 418 Olive street, and George Cohn, 1288A Amherst place, offered jointly to pay the city 55 per cent of the gross receipts. Mandel, who said he would have woman attendants dressed in black and white, declared he had had experience in check rooms and other concessions on the east and west coasts.

There were 16 other bids, the least favorable of which offered the city 37½ per cent of the net income. All bidders agreed to post $500 cash bond. Riley paid the city 35 per cent of gross receipts, amounting to $839.83 for the 10 months he was there.

Australia Turns Off Course When Radio Entertainer's Schooner Reports Danger.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 9.—The Duke of Gloucester, third son of King George of England, was swept into an unscheduled adventure today when the cruiser Australia, on which he is a passenger, steamed to a spot 300 miles north of Tahiti, where the radio broadcast schooner Seth Parker was caught in a storm though apparently riding it out.

Phillips Lord, radio entertainer, sent out a stream of messages saying he thought his vessel was in danger because of heavy seas. The schooner, a four-master, did not send out SOS calls, however.

At 12:35 p. m. (St. Louis time) the radio of the Seth Parker was heard to say "Everything O K now." It added, however, that the "owner" didn't think so. The sender expressed the opinion "he (the owner) should go to sleep now. Has been up all night."

An hour later the schooner's wireless reported the situation was the same. This was construed by listeners to mean the ship was considered in no danger, but that the owner still was worried.

The cruiser, taking the Duke to Tahiti from Australia, was about 200 miles from the Seth Parker when she turned off her course to offer assistance.

There was no mention of injury to any of the 13 persons aboard the Seth Parker, or of damage to the schooner except that the regular radio apparatus was out of order.

Repeated mention was made in the messages from the Seth Parker of fear of capsizing when "solid walls of water" came over the side during "bad squalls."

The Seth Parker sailed from Portland, Me., on Dec. 6, 1933, in command of Capt. Constantine Finks, an Estonian and former navigator in the Imperial Russian navy, with a crew of 11 men.

vember Christmann sued it and Lawson Watts and others for $88,000 that he alleged was past due. Christmann said he had been paid only about $90,000 on the purchase price, and in view of the situation would have to be content with remaining a stockholder in the business.

The new president of the brewery is H. E. Schmisseur, president of the Belleville National Bank. Four of the seven members of the new board are Belleville men. H. P. Duncker of St. Louis, who was associated with Watts, remains on the board.

Schmisseur said yesterday the bankruptcy suit of Watts is in no way connected with the affairs of the brewery. He said the business of the brewery is growing and that the new management is hopeful.

Persons interested in the operation of the brewery said there was no severe criticism of Watts' management; that he had been hampered by inability to sell stock to the public and get money to carry out his contract with Christmann and for operating capital. The trouble was with his financing plan. Some of the Belleville men who were interested thought he had tried to do things on too big a scale.

Last September the brewery obtained a loan of $125,000 from the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, under the Government's plan for direct Reserve Bank loans to industries. This loan was secured by a first mortgage on the property and out of the proceeds an outstanding first mortgage of $41,000 was paid off. The remainder was for rehabilitation of the plant and working capital. It had cost about $65,000 to prepare the plant for brewing beer.

A prospectus gave the value of the plant and land at $429,430. It said the land, buildings and equipment had been appraised by the Securities Department of Illinois at $346,000.

DRUNKEN DRIVER WHO KILLED MAN, FLED, GETS YEAR

Prosecutor Recommends Sentence on Plea of Guilty Despite Widow's Appeal for Prosecution.

Mrs. Fannie Cramond, a widow attired in black, walked up to the bench in Circuit Judge Connor's court yesterday when Russell C. Smith was arraigned on charges of manslaughter and driving while intoxicated.

"Judge," she said, "I'm the widow of the man who was killed. I've suffered terribly because of his death. I'd like to see this man vigorously prosecuted."

"We have every sympahy for this woman," Assistant Circuit Attorney Woodward told the Court, "but the State must gauge its recommendation by the punishment that juries have assessed in similar cases in the past. The State will recommend a sentence of a year in the Workhouse on each charge, to run concurrently, on the defendant's plea of guilty."

Smith, a 29-year-old office manager, then pleaded guilty, and the judge followed Woodward's recommendation. The punishment for manslaughter ranges from a $500 fine to 10 years in the penitentiary.

Mrs. Cramond's husband, William Cramond, a switchman, was killed by an automobile driven by Smith on the Twelfth street viaduct Nov. 12, 1933. Smith drove on, abandoned the car at Twelfth and Market streets, and was arrested nearby. He gave his address as 3824A Folsom avenue. City Hospital physicians pronounced him suffering from acute alcoholism.

Cramond lived at 4685 Allemania avenue. He was the father of three children.

ARKANSAS HOUSE TURNS DOWN PROPOSAL TO HEAR HUEY LONG

Representatives Reject Resolution by Voice; Then Vote "No,", 58 to 13 in Roll Call.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 9.—The Arkansas House of Representatives today shouted down a resolution proposing that Senator Huey P. Long be invited to address the chamber, and three hours later rejected the same proposition by formal vote after the Senator said in Washington "the outcome might have been different" on a roll call. The resolution was defeated 58 to a 13.

Representative Leo Nyberg of Phillips said he understood that Senator Long had expressed the belief the result would have been different had a roll call vote been taken when the resolution was first called up this morning.

Several members jumped to their feet shouting "Let's give him a roll call." Many members went to the microphone of the loud speaker system to shout their votes in opposition to the resolution.

WIFE GETS ANNULMENT ON GROUND OF INTOXICATION

Says She and Arthur H. Rowbottom Decided to Wed While Drinking in Tavern.

An annulment was granted at East St. Louis yesterday to Mrs. Almira Rowbottom, 21 years old, 2016 South Broadway, who testified she was under the influence of liquor when she was married in East St. Louis, Feb. 2, to Arthur H. Rowbottom, 34, 3740 Ohio avenue. Her maiden name, Almira Rode, was restored.

The plaintiff said she and Rowbottom decided to get married while drinking in a tavern on Seventh boulevard. They obtained a license and were married by Justice of the Peace Hinderberger at 8 o'clock at night. They returned to the tavern, she said, and relatives met her and took her home. Rowbottom was a corroborating witness in the case, which was heard by City Judge Cook.

MAJ. SHEPARD MURDER CASE GOES TO JURY

did die of poison, he said, they should then proceed to possible motives and the possibility of Shepard's having committed the crime.

Attorneys, in closing arguments, pictured Shepard on the one hand as a wife poisoner in love with another woman; on the other as an unfortunate husband whose wife who drank to excess and suffered from melancholy.

"The world's not big enough for a man, his wife and his sweetheart," said R. T. McCluggage, U. S. Assistant District Attorney.

C. L. Kagey, defense attorney, says Mrs. Shepard had dipsomania. He pleaded with the jury not to condemn to death a man whose wife drank not because it was a habit but, he said, a disease.

"I know, and you do too, some very beautiful women and able men who cannot overcome this disease," Kagey continued. "I know, and you do too, that such people worry about things. Mrs. Shepard worried about her mother's insanity and the possibility the taint might extend to her. Worrying, she became depressed."

Beside his third wife, the former Mrs. Alice J. Watt of Denver, the defendant sat with folded hands listening quietly. Miss Brandon was not in court.

DRIVER KILLED WHEN FIVE RACING CARS CRASH IN FLORIDA

Two Other Participants and Three School Children Are Hurt at Tampa Track.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 9.—A racing driver was killed and five other persons were injured in a crash of five speeding automobiles at the Florida Fair today.

Johnny Stewart, 30 years old, of Atlantic City, N. J., died on the way to a hospital after his car locked wheels with that of Bob Jenkins of Savannah, Ga. Stewart suffered a fractured skull. Jenkins escaped injury.

Bobby Green of Orlando, Fla., and Shano Fitzgerald of Dallas, Tex., coming up behind Stewart and Jenkins, hit the wrecked cars. Green was badly bruised, but Fitzgerald escaped injury. Carl Drexler, 32, of Louisville, O., in seeking to avoid the first wreck, swerved into the second pair and was thrown over a concrete wall. He suffered a fractured skull. His car, struck by one of the others and knocked over the wall, hurt three school children, not seriously.

FORMER MRS. ASTOR MEETS BOXER HUSBAND IN NAPLES

Fiermonte Talks With Her at Midnight and Leaves to Spend Night With Relative.

NAPLES, Italy, Feb. 10. (Sunday)—Enzo Fiermonte, former pugilist, arrived from Rome last night, had a midnight talk with his second wife, the former Mrs. Madeleine Force Astor Dick, and then left to spend the night with a brother-in-law through his first marriage.

The former Mrs. Astor had awaited his arrival to start their "second honeymoon," after he had visited his first wife Tosca, and their child, in Rome, whom he had come to see. Fiermonte saw his first wife and their son Friday night in Rome. It was learned she had bought an apartment for 50,000 lire ($4250) and had given up her job in a shirt factory.

It was learned that Rome police "retired his passport" last night shortly before Fiermonte slipped out of the city for Naples. Fiermonte arrived in a taxicab at the hotel and started up to his wife's room without registering at 12:30 a. m. Hotel officers asked him for his traveling papers—a requirement of law in Italy—and were told that he did not have them with him. They permitted him, however, to visit his American wife.

PUBLICITY ON TAX RETURNS WITHHELD UNTIL MARCH 15

No Federal Income Facts Will be Made Available Until After Closing of Filing Period.

Facts contained in Federal income tax returns will not be released to the public, under the plan of giving publicity to incomes, until some time after the closing of the filing period March 15, according to instructions received yesterday by Collector of Internal Revenue Sheehan.

Orders from Washington directed Sheehan to have each return checked against its corresponding pink publicity slip before making the data public. The orders stated that the manner in which the data is to be given publicity will be announced subsequently.

Sheehan repeated a plea that taxpayers make returns without delay, in order to avail themselves of assistance from his deputies, who, in the closing rush period, are able to devote but little time to each individual. The income tax office is on the second floor of the Federal Building, Eighth and Olive streets.

CHEAPER RUM FROM THE PWA

Distillery Built in Virgin Islands Need to Pay No Tariff.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Cheaper rum for the United States, Secretary of the Interior Ickes said today, will be a by-product of PWA efforts in the Virgin Islands. Ickes, Public Works Administrator, predicted that a distillery recently completed in the islands with PWA money would make cheaper rum possible because no tariff or excise tax will have to be paid on the distillery's product, and 35,000 gallons of three-year-old rum taken over with old distilleries was available for blending.

MRS. CORRA HARRIS DIES AT ATLANTA

Author of More Than 20 Novels, Besides Short Stories; Was 65 Years Old.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 9. — Mrs. Corra Harris, writer, died today in Emory University Hospital, where she had been a patient since Jan. 27, when she suffered a heart attack.

She was author of more than 20 published novels and many short stories. For the last three years she had a column in the Atlanta Journal under the heading, "Candlelit."

Corra Harris was the pen name of Mrs. Lundy Howard Harris.

One of her best known books was "A Circuit Rider's Wife," which Mrs. Harris actually was, for her husband, the Rev. Lundy Howard Harris, was a Methodist circuit rider.

The author summed up her faith in the magazine Forum in 1928 in a debate with Dora Russell, wife of Bertrand Russell, on the subject "Are We Happier Than Our Grandmothers?" Mrs. Russell answered the question with a vigorous "Yes," citing easy divorce, birth control and increasing economic equality with men as boons to the modern woman's happiness.

Mrs. Harris, countering with an equally strong "No," upheld what she described as the old-fashioned thesis that "only the truly good could be happy."

Born at Farm Hill, Ga., March 17, 1869, Mrs. Harris was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tinsley R. White. She was married to the Rev. Mr. Harris on Feb. 8, 1887. He died in September, 1910, just as his wife was approaching the zenith of her literary career.

The first published story by Mrs. Harris appeared in the Atlanta Constitution and a little later, in 1899, she began writing for the Independent. For several years thereafter she met with success with her series of "Brasstown Valley Stories" in the American Magazine.

One of her books that created wide discussion was "A Circuit Rider's Widow," which was interpreted in some quarters as an attack on the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Replying to that charge Mrs. Harris said she believed in the church, its doctrines and its original purpose, but she also believed that the minister portrayed in her book was "the preacher to come who will deliver this church from what is almost a military system of government."

After the death of her only daughter, Mrs. Faith Harris Leech, the author adopted two neighborhood children and made her home in a valley outside of Rydal in the North Georgia mountains. There she remodeled and extended an old log cabin, formerly the home of an Indian chief, Pine Log, and continued her literary work.

In addition to the books mentioned Mrs. Harris was author of "Eve's Second Husband," "Recording Angel," "In Search of a Husband," "Co-Citizens," "Making Her His Wife," "Happily Married," "Daughter of Adam," "As a Woman Thinks," "Flapper Anne," "My Book and Heart," and "Happy Pilgrimage."

TWO WOMEN ARE STRUCK IN DELMAR TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Mrs. Wade H. Bush Cut and Bruised by Street Car; Miss G. E. Clark Hit by Backing Auto.

Mrs. Wade H. Harry Stermann, operator of the car which was making a left turn into Delmar, said he did not see her.

Miss Georgia E. Clark, 40, 6965 Delmar boulevard, was struck by the automobile of Frank J. Reedy, 7280 Northmoor avenue, late yesterday as he was backing his machine to park in front of 6684 Enright avenue. OLD AGE PENSION ELIGIBLES PUT AT ALMOST MILLION

jority of old people who are in need of public assistance are now on Federal emergency relief rolls, in addition to which there are, in some states, a considerable number of aged people who are now receiving old age pensions.

"Under the pending bill," Witte continued, "the old age assistance grants are to be an amount which, when added to the income of the applicant and his or her spouse, is adequate to provide a reasonable subsistence compatible with decency and health. With this standard, the amount of grants will vary in each case, with the needs and circumstances of the pensioner. Manifestly, smaller grants will be needed in rural areas than in metropolitan districts.

"In states in which old age pension laws are now in operation, the grants averaged $18.75 per month in 1933 and $16.47 in the early fall of 1934. The states which have been granting old age pensions, moreover, are on the whole much more industrial than the states which now have no old age assistance laws; hence, it is probable that the average pension grants in states not now having such laws will be lower than in the more industrial states.

"Grants to persons on relief in 1934 averaged $25.83 per family. There was, however, a very great difference in these grants among the states, ranging from $10.33 in Oklahoma to $44.94 in New York. Similar variations will doubtlessly occur in the old age assistance grants. Since these grants are made on an individual basis, they will manifestly tend to be lower than the average monthly relief grants per family."

ROBBERS GET $204 IN HOLDUP OF HANDBOOK ESTABLISHMENT

Manager and Customer Victims of Three Armed Men Who Flee in Auto.

The robbers escaped in an automobile occupied by two other men.

JURY UNABLE TO AGREE IN BEER FLAT MURDER

Discharged After Arguing Over Confessions Harry Jerrold Made to Police.

Unable to agree on a verdict in the trial of Harry Jerrold, charged with murder in the attempted holdup of a beer flat three years ago, a jury in Circuit Judge Connor's Court was discharged yesterday.

The jury had deliberated from 6:10 p. m. Friday until 3 p. m. yesterday and the foreman, Arthur Curry, 4219 Linton avenue, told Judge Connor there was no chance that its members could reach agreement. He said the jury stood eight to four on the final ballot.

Another juror told a reporter the eight were for conviction. This juror said a majority had been for conviction on each ballot, the first ballot being seven to five. At one time, he said, nine jurors voted for conviction.

Judge Connor set the case for trial again in the April term of court. Assistant Circuit Attorney Woodward said he thought the State would be ready then to try Jerrold again.

Curry and other members of the jury said the poitn on which they could not agree was whether two confessions Jerrold made to police after his arrest were voluntary statements or whether they were given under duress.

Jerrold, testifying in his own defense, admitted he had gone to the beer flat at 1403 South Vandeventer avenue with Jess Hedger on the night of Feb. 12, 1932. Jerrold was standing just inside the door, he said, when Hedger shot and killed Carl Schlueter and Henry Pohlman. Hedger, convicted last May, was sentenced to life imprisonment and is now in an insane asylum.

In statements given to police after his arrest Jerrold admitted that he and Hedger planned a robbery at the beer flat. In his testimony at the trial, however, Jerrold said that he had not known of any plan of Hedger's to commit robbery. He said he went along merely to help carry back some beer they intended to buy. The statements to police, he said, were signed under duress, after long continued questioning.

NEW OIL CONTROL BILL BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

Apparently Compromise Between State Regulation and Outright Federal Rule.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—An oil control bill, apparently a compromise between State regulation and outright Federal control, was approved today by the House Interstate Commerce Committee.

The measure was described as giving the President greater discretion to determine when production should be curtailed under State laws so as better to balance supply and demand.

The committee took the Connally bill, already approved by the Senate, and rewrote it entirely. The Connally measure would have given the Government specific authority to regulate shipments of illegal oil in interstate commerce and stipulated that carriers should be governed by its provisions.

The House Committee's bill would empower the President, when he found the oil supply so excessive as to unbalance supply and demand, to prohibit transportation of oil in interstate commerce when produced or withdrawn from storage in excess of quantities fixed by State laws or by State regulatory agencies.

Huey Long's Hat in Ring For Presidency But He Has Eye on 1940, Not 1936

Traveling With Louisiana Senator an Exciting Adventure—Armed Bodyguard Watches Him Constantly.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9. — Two weeks in the immediate vicinity of Senator Huey P. Long provides enough excitement to satisfy the average person for the better part of a lifetime. Wherever this human cyclone goes, things start happening. If events fail to occur naturally, he produces them. It is safe to say that no other public man in America maintains such a terrific pace.

Take Gen. Hugh Johnson, Billy Sunday, Peck's Bad Boy, David Harum, Beau Brummel, Jean Valjean and Mussolini, mix thoroughly with tabasco sauce and nitroglycerin, boil eight minutes and you will have something resembling Louisiana's big bad wolf. The nation is just beginning to hear from him. A majority of Americans probably still regard him as a joke. Barring accidents, they will get over that.

Nothing that is written here is intended either as praise or blame. Whether Long is statesman or demagogue, mounteback or menace, is a question which may well be left to the verdict of history. That historians will feel compelled to render a verdict is already assured.

Scheming and Monkeyshines.

This account is simply an effort to describe the charged atmosphere which envelops him to convey the sense of danger which pervades the air around him, to give some idea of his colorful personality, to portray the bold ruthlessness with which he drives toward his objectives, to point out the formidable scope and size of the propaganda machine which he is constructing, and to hint at the cool, scheming intelligence which functions behind his monkeyshines. As I have stated in recent dispatches from Louisiana, those who came to laugh remained to weep.

Unless his plans are changed by unforeseen events, Huey will be a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination against Roosevelt next year. He has already changed the Louisiana election laws so that he will be renominated for the Senate in January, thus giving him ample time to make his presidential campaign—and, incidentally, insuring that he will retain his Senate seat in case he is not nominated for the presidency.

His Eye Actually on 1940.

After studying the signs and portents, it is this writer's conclusion that Huey does not expect to beat Roosevelt in 1936. He does expect to make a formidable showing in the primaries, to advertise himself on a national scale, and—which may be more important—to build up Long organizations in most of the states.

Actually, he has his eye on 1940. He is betting that Roosevelt's recovery measures will fail, and that the country will recognize him—Long—as the only strong man to whom it can turn for salvation. Huey is only 41. He can afford to wait.

Three weeks ago armed rebellion flared against his rule in Louisiana. Huey calmly took a few days off, flew down to Baton Rouge, and produced an imposing array of witnesses who testified that the rebellion was instigated and financed by the Standard Oil Co. of Louisiana, in retaliation for the 5-cents-a-barrel tax which Long had ordered the Legislature to impose on the company at the famous special session in December.

True, some of the witnesses had unsavory records (one was a former Federal informer in narcotic and prohibition cases). True, the presiding Judge was appointed by Long's privately-owned Governor, Oscar K. Allen. But, in sum, the evidence was impressive. The rebellion subsided with suddenness.

Another Special Session, Perhaps.

Huey, as I have previously remarked, is perhaps the best open-field runner since "Red" Grange. If the 5-cent tax remained in force, Standard of Louisiana might move its refineries to Alabama, Mississippi or Texas. It is the largest industry in the State, and employs many people. Therefore, it would not surprise this writer if Huey called another special session of the Legislature about 30 days hence, and reduced the tax to 1 cent a barrel.

Moreover, there is reason to believe that other details are lurking in the back of Huey's henna-hued head which might require the attention of the Legislature. He would have called the special session last week, but the story of the "assassination plot" seemed so perfect that he decided to let it sink in for a while.

Long's Armed Guard.

There has been much derisive comment and some speculation about Huey's bodyguard. Concerning its grim reality, this writer can testify. In Baton Rouge it consisted of approximately half a dozen state highway patrolmen — in plain clothes, and armed with .45-caliber automatics—two or three detectives from the Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation, four National Guardsmen with fixed bayonets, and squat, swarthy Joe Messina, former tailor.

In Washington he is guarded by three men. One is a captain and one is a sergeant of the Highway Patrol, and the third is a member of the Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation. The captain, known to me only as "George," is a stocky silent, heavy-lidded man, with an imposing record for being "quick on the draw." He is never more than arm's length from Huey. The bureau man is a former motorcycle policeman with numerous medals for marksmanship. Obviously, they were selected with care. Any one of the three would shoot at the drop of a hat.

George packs a weapon the like of which I had never seen before. It is about 18 inches long, and has a massive revolver butt. It is double-barreled and .20 gauge, and is loaded with buckshot shells. George describes it as a "burglar gun."

"Very effective at close range," was George's comment. "Kill a man at 75 yards."

On automobile trips, George has an innocent-looking paper package between his knees, an oblong package. The paper is broken on the lower side. The package contains the "burglar gun." The broken spot gives access to the triggers.

Riding With Huey.

Last Sunday afternoon a cavalcade of about 10 cars left Baton Rouge for New Orleans. Huey had concluded his triumphant investigation of the "murder plot," and was returning to Washington, via Atlanta—where, by invitation, he addressed the Georgia House of Representatives. He waved two newspaper correspondents into a car in front of the hotel. Then he came to the window and said. "I'd like to ride down with you fellows and tell you something about this road I built. You know, they accused me of stealing a lot of money on that contract. I'd like to show you how expensive that job was. I had to dredge the road bed out of the swamp—but I don't like to expose you."

"To what?" this writer inquired.

"Hell, how do I know to what?" he rejoined. "Some crazy man may be parked behind a tree down there somewhere, with a machine gun. And if he gets me, he'll get you, too."

We observed that if he could take the chance, we could, so Huey piled in. He explained the construction of the road in great detail. When the State engineers were stumped by the problem of preventing the road from sinking into the treacherous subsoil, Huey stepped in and devised a composition that would "float." As I recall, it consisted largely of oyster shells.

Story of a Curve in a Road.

This road, 100 miles long, from Baton Rouge to New Orleans, is called the "airline." There is only one bend in it. About 30 miles south of Baton Rouge it curves around an abandoned and dilapidated sugar refinery. Gleefully, Huey narrated the history of the curve.

"The road should have gone right through the middle of it," he said. "It had been advertised that the road would be perfectly straight. The dad-gummed refinery had been out of business for years. I went to the owner and offered him $2500 for the dad-gummed thing. He insisted that he had only closed down for repairs. He said his place was worth $10,000.

"'So you think you can hold up Huey Long,' I said. 'Brother, you never made a worse mistake. Maybe it would be monotonous to have a hundred miles of road without a curve in it. Maybe we need just one curve, and I have decided that the place to have it is right around your sugar mill.'

"A little while later his lawyer came to me, and said his client had decided $2500 was about right. I told him I wouldn't think of it. A little while later the lawyer came around and said the prospects for the sugar mill didn't seem so good, and his client was willing to take $1500. I told him I wasn't interested.

"After we started building the road, the lawyer came again. He said his client had decided there was no future for the mill, and it wasn't worth repairing. He would take $500. I said that I had my heart set on that curve, and nothing under God's shining sun could change my mind. And that, gentlemen, is the reason why there is a bend in the 'airline'."

Pistols in Vest Pockets.

During this recital we were traveling 75 or 80 miles an hour. In the 10 automobiles which formed the procession I had counted six machine guns. Among the members of the party were at least 50 automatics.

Huey, himself, goes armed. As he checked out of his suite in Baton Rouge, he inquired casually of Joe Messina: "Where's my sandwiches?" Knowing that Huey has a hearty appetite, I thought he was asking for real sandwiches.

"In the top drawer of the dresser," Joe replied. Huey sauntered over to the dresser and tok from the top drawer two .45-caliber automatics, and dropped them—of all places—in his lower vest pockets. I suspect that he has his tailor (the best in New Orleans) make those pockets especially deep.

A $5500 Fee for Long.

During his brief jaunt to Louisiana, Long took care of certain other details. He flew back to Washington and made a speech in the Senate, which, in the opinion of some Senators, defeated American adherence to the World Court. He went back and appeared before the Louisiana Public Service Commission, as its counsel, and obtained a reduction of 3 cents a kilowatt hour in the Baton Rouge electricity rate. For this, he received a fee of $5500. Under a law passed by the Legislature, at Huey's behest, the costs of prosecuting a rate-reduction case against a Louisiana public utility are assessed against the utility. So the company paid Huey $5500 for reducing its rates.

He is ruthless, and has often been accused of cruelty. On his train from New Orleans to Washington, a newspaper correspondent became very ill. The reporter had written harsh things about the "Kingfish." He had called him a "clown." He had ridiculed him unmercifully—and Huey had read his stories. Personally, however, he liked the man—had put him down as a "square shooter."

He visited this man's berth every hour until midnight. He inquired about the possibilities of obtaining a doctor. He made suggestions concerning what should be done for him. He was, in short, as thoughtful as a mother. And all the time, he had two automatics in the lower pockets of his vest.

Given to Robust Language.

Over the radio, and in his public speeches, Huey says "dad-gummed" and "dad-blamed." In private, his language is more robust. He is a plain, old-fashioned "cusser." His profanity is not eloquent or original like, for example, that of Gen. Johnson, (who once called a Cabinet member, "that revolving—," and then explained that "he is a — from no matter what angle you inspect him").

It is strange, but characteristic, that this coarse, vulgar and profane man, Huey Long, should have, as his most important lieutenants, two preachers. One is Gerald Smith, who abandoned the pulpit of the richest church in Shreveport to lead Long's "share-our-wealth" movement, because he discovered that one of his leading laymen was piping "hot oil" from East Texas. The other is a clergyman whom Huey describes as "the best man in my organization, if only I could get him off liquor."

Huey was once a hearty drinker. A certain incident in Long Island convinced him that a man who was going somewhere should not drink. Now he is a teetotaler. In fact, he is a fanatic on the subject. He has issued strict orders that no member of his entourage take a drink, and if a bottle is found among them, the responsible person will be fired.

He is a tough baby, a very tough baby. It will pay to watch him.

NAVY REQUESTS $20,000,000 FOR BASES IN PACIFIC

Need for Mechanization.

In addition, he emphasized need for $16,000,000 for mechanization of the army equipping one regiment with medium weight tanks, and one with light tanks, for mechanization of a brigade of cavalry and a battery of field artillery, and to provide seven troops with armored cars and seven infantry companies with light tanks.

MacArthur said this force would necessitate acquisition of 285 lightweight tanks, 162 medium tanks, 48 armored cars, 44 combat cars, 33 scout cars, and 76 half track cars. All would be equipped with .30 and .50 caliber machine guns.

To supply the army with modern weapons, he recommended an appropriation of $8,000,000 for infantry mortars; .50 caliber machine guns, semi-automatic rifles, .37 MM guns, communication equipment and gas masks.

The army is still using the 1903 model Springfield rifles. MacArthur contended regular army and National Guard units should be equipped as quickly as possible with the newly developed rapid fire semi-automatic rifles.

Japan Deplores' Undesirable Effect on Negotiations.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Feb. 9.—A Japanese Navy spokesman today deplored America's plans to strengthen her Pacific defenses as likely to "produce undesirable effects in forthcoming naval negotiations."

Naval officials expressed the opinion that the proposed $11,000,000 army air base in Hawaii was Washington's reply to Japanese suggestions for continuance, though in modified form, of the Pacific fortifications clauses of the Washington treaty, which Japan has denounced effective at the end of 1936.

A Navy spokesman repeated recent statements by Japanese Naval leaders that Japan's navy "is ready to cope with any development and there is no reason to fear that the security of our empire is affected."

Watch the Fords Go By

"Five Thousand More Since Yesterday"

Every working day, more than five thousand New Ford V-8's roll off the assembly line and into the service of Ford owners.

It has been a long time since people have taken to a new car the way they have taken to the New Ford V-8.

Ford production in January was upwards of 100,000 units. For February it is set at 130,000. There haven't been figures like that since 1930.

That means jobs and wages for increasing thousands of automobile workers. Ford employment in the United States is more than 114,000—over 74,000 at Dearborn and 40,000 in Ford plants throughout the country. This activity reaches out to many hundreds of thousands of men in allied industries. They are busy when Ford is busy.

The story of the Ford V-8 is one of progress. Before it came along the V-8 cylinder engine was always associated with high price. It was beyond the reach of the average motorist. The Ford Motor Company believed this was "the coming car for the majority of drivers." It set to work to build it at low cost. When you give the people something better there's never any question about sales.

It is interesting to note that more than 1,400,000 Ford V-8 cars and trucks have been built in the last three years. Each year has seen a sharp increase—the V-8 production in 1934 being approximately 103% ahead of 1933.

More important than sales, however, is service to owners. What the car does on the road is what counts. Actual use is the true test of an automobile. It has proved that the Ford V-8 engine has certain distinct advantages in performance and that it is economical too. Fact is, the Ford V-8 costs less per mile than any other Ford ever built. Cost records of owners show that to be so.

$62,000 FEES SOUGHT IN SIMMONS LITIGATION

Total of $36,000 Previously Allowed Attorneys in Hardware Firm's Affairs.

Hearings were held yesterday by Circuit Judge Ryan on applications for fees totaling $62,000 sought by attorneys in the litigation concerning the Associated Simmons Hardware Companies. Fees totaling $36,000 previously had been allowed by the Court.

Judge Ryan reserved decision on the applications heard yesterday, the largest of which was a claim for $40,000 by the law firm, Stern & Burnett, counsel for the trustees appointed by the Court to operate the companies. These lawyers received $25,000 for their services prior to December, 1933.

The law firms of Carter & Jones, and Fordyce, White, Mayne & Williams, claimed $4500 for representing the Simmons companies in a Federal Court action. Morris Sider and Edgar Schoen, Chicago attorneys who were counsel for Leopold Block in a receivership suit he filed in 1932, have received a $10,000 fee and asked for $10,000 more.

Former Supreme Judge Fred L. Williams, who conducted the recent foreclosure sale as special commissioner, requested a fee of $4000. He said the usual allowance, based on a percentage of the price obtained at the sale, would be $11,000, but that he considered that amount excessive.

Lewis S. Haslam, attorney for preferred stockholders, asked for a $3500 fee for his services in securing modification of the reorganization plan.

Kenneth L. Teasdale and L. E. Crandall, trustees appointed by the Court two years ago, have been allowed $1000 a month each, but have filed a claim for additional compenastion, requesting a "reasonable" amount. Crandall, as general manager of the companies, has been paid $1083 a month in addition to his fee as trustee. A report of the trustees, filed with the Court, indicated they operated the business last year at a profit of $151,000.

The litigation was terminated recently at the foreclosure sale when a committee representing most of the holders of $4,781,000 of defaulted "gold notes" of the Associated Simmons Hardware Companies purchased the business for $2,260,000. Under the reorganization plan the noteholders are to receive stock in exchange for their notes.

REORGANIZATION PLANS FOR THREE KOPLAR HOLDINGS

Action Sought Under Amended Bankruptcy Law on Congress Hotel, and Two Apartments.

Reorganization plans for the Congress Hotel and Senate Apartments, at Union boulevard and Pershing avenue, and for the Embassy Apartments, Union and Washington boulevards, were filed in Federal Court yesterday by the Koplar Co., which holds title to these buildings and is seeking reorganization under the amended bankruptcy law.

In general outline the plans were similar to those put forward three years ago when foreclosure suits were first filed against the buildings. Robert Burnett, attorney for the Koplar Co., said no immediate hearing would be sought on the plans.

Frank Y. Gladney, attorney for the Central States Life Insurance Co., which holds a $3,070,000 first mortgage on the Park Plaza Hotel, also owned by the Koplar Co., informed Judge Davis that the insurance company would oppose the plans, as they might adversely affect its interests if there should be a foreclosure of the Park Plaza mortgage which would not result in returning to the insurance company its full investment. There is no foreclosure proceeding pending against the Park Plaza at this time.

New Companies Proposed.

The reorganization plans propose that title to the buildings be transferred to two new companies, one to be known as the Senate and Congress Co., the other as the Embassy Co. Sam Koplar, former president of the Koplar Co., would retain 32 1-3 per cent of the stock of each of the new companies, another 32 1-3 per cent would be given to preferred stockholders of the Koplar Co., and the remaining 35 1-3 per cent would be distributed among general creditors of the Koplar Co. All of the stock would be held by voting trustees.

The new Senate and Congress Co. would issue new bonds to the holders of $1,795,000 in defaulted first mortgage 6½ per cent bonds, and the new Embassy Co. would issue new bonds to the holders of the $544,000 in defaulted first mortgage 6¼ per cent bonds against that building.

Interest Based on Income.

Interest rates on the new bonds would not be fixed, but would be determined by income of the buildings, and could not exceed 6 per cent. Three-fourths of the net income would be used to pay interest, and the rest would be used to retire the bonds by purchase at the lowest price offered. All of the bonds would mature Dec. 1, 1944.

If interest payments on the new bonds should be less than 4 per cent the sixth year after they were issued, and if the average interest payment for the fourth, fifth and sixth years should be less than 4 per cent, the voting trustees would be authorized to distribute the stock to the bondholders, wiping out the equities of Koplar, the Koplar Co. and general creditors of that company. The same requirements would be made for each subsequent year and for any three-year period after the bonds had been issued for six years.

The Voting Trustees.

Voting trustees for the Senate and Congress would be Percy Cowan of Chicago, designated by Greenebaum & Sons Investment Co., Isaac Hedges of St. Louis, designated by bondholders, and Mark C. Steinberg, designated by the Koplar Company. Cowan and Steinberg would serve also as voting trustees for the Embassy, with Richard Gruner taking Hedges' place there.

The voting trustees would enter into management contracts with Koplar, who would be paid $6930 a year for managing the Senate and Congress, and $2070 for managing the Embassy. In addition he would have an apartment, rent free, at the Senate or Congress, and if earnings of the buildings should exceed 7 per cent, he would get one-tenth of the excess.

If earnings should not equal 3 per cent the first year, 3½ per cent the second and 4 per cent thereafter, the contract could be canceled.

DEMAND FOR REFINANCING OF FARM MORTGAGES DROPS

President Rust of Federal Land Bank Says This Work Has Passed Its Peak.

The Federal Land Bank of St. Louis has passed the peak of its work in refinancing farm mortgages, Walter L. Rust, president, said yesterday.

During January, Rust said, the bank closed 1922 loans for a total of $6,764,800, and applications were received from 1648 farmers for loans totaling $9,279,200. In January of last year there were 5887 applications for loans totaling $30,720,800.

The Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, another unit of the Farm Credit Administration here, is preparing, in anticipation of the planting season, to handle as many as 1000 applications for loans a day. These short-term loans are made for general agricultural purposes, including crop and livestock production.

EGG BUSINESS ORDERED ENDED

Court in Charge of Receivership Says Firm Was Losing Money.

Paul A. Thomas, receiver of the Missouri Egg Producers' Association, 2819 South Jefferson avenue, was ordered by Circuit Judge Baron yesterday to suspend the association's business because it was losing money.

The receiver was appointed last October on petition of Dr. Conrad Baumgartner, principal stockholder. The association, which bought and sold eggs at wholesale and retail, was incorporated for $10,000 last August.

OPEN VERDICT IN WOMAN'S DEATH UNDER ANESTHETIC

Mrs. Palsey Motley, Negro, Being Prepared for Operation When Respiration Failed.

An open verdict was returned yesterday after a Coroner's verdict in the death under an anesthetic of Mrs. Palsey Motley, 32-year-old Negro, at People's Hospital Friday.

Mrs. Motley, who lived in Brooklyn, Ill., was being prepared for an abdominal operation when respiration failed and attending physicians were unable to revive her. Three Negro physicians testified that a white doctor administered the anesthetic, using a machine with which they were not familiar. One witness said he was under the impression the apparatus was incomplete and that a resuscitation agent was lacking.

The white doctor did not appear at the hearing, it being stated he was out of the city. Assistant Circuit Attorney McLaughlin said the police investigation of the case would be continued.

SAYS CITY COULD USE 140 BASEBALL FIELDS

Committee Lists Possible Ways to Spend PWA Funds on Recreation.

Federal public works funds could be used to expand recreation facilities in St. Louis in at least six fields, according to a technical committee which has been studying recommendations of the Welfare Plan Committee.

Alfred H. Wyman, associate director of the Community Council and chairman of the technical committee, said the work which might be undertaken if Federal funds were available included construction of baseball diamonds, hard surface tennis courts, community center developments, resurfacing of playgrounds, enlargement of school playgrounds and creation of new municipal playgrounds within existing park areas.

The Welfare Plan Committee's report, prepared by Roy Smith Wallace of the National Recreation Association staff, declared that a "fairly well recognized standard" calls for one baseball diamond for each 6000 of population, and one tennis court for each 2000 of population. If St. Louis were to meet this standard, Wyman said, it would have 140 baseball diamonds instead of 41, as at present, and 411 tennis courts instead of the 99 maintained.

Remodeling of the Concordia, Sherman and Soulard community centers would be suitable work under a Federal public works program, Wyman said. Surfacing of playgrounds with chat or limestone screenings would be in line with a recommendiation of the Welfare Plan Committee.

The committee also proposed that four new playgrounds, adjacent to school districts, be created in Forest Park, three in Carondelet Park, and one each in Francis, Tower Grove and Lafayette parks.

Play areas in several school grounds, the report said, could be enlarged to the standard size of two acres without requiring acquisition of any new land.

ROOSEVELT WITHDRAWS LAST OF PUBLIC LAND

President's Action Is Preface to Nation-Wide Conservation Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—In preparation for a nationwide conservation program, President Roosevelt today withdrew all remaining public land from use.

His latest order, completing that of last November, affects about 1,200,000 acres, and withdraws from settlement, location, sale or entry the entire 165,695,000 acres of public domain.

The November order was to make possible segregation of 80,000,000 acres as permanent livestock grazing areas under the Taylor Act.

The President said today's withdrawal, applicable to 12 states, was "pending determination of the most useful purposes to which they may be put in furtherance of the land program and conservation and development of natural resources."

He added that this land, not suited to profitable growing of crops, was destined for the conservation and development of forests, soil and other natural resources, the creation of grazing districts, and the establishment of game preserves and bird refuges.

Selection of Land Not Yet Made.

Although the Interior Department has not yet made final selection of the 80,000,000 acres of grazing land, Chairman DeRoun (Dem.), Louisiana, of the House Public Lands Committee has introduced a bill to extend it to the remaining areas suitable for livestock.

Little of the land withdrawn today is grazing acreage, and officials said much of it would be used for forest and game preserves. A legislative program to end further homesteading and set up permanent uses for the acreage is reported to have been drafted and is to be submitted to Congress soon.

Forbidding of further homesteading was one of the urgent recommendations of the National Resources Board, headed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes, as well as the withdrawal from cultivation of 75,000,000 acres of unproductive farm land.

Land-Buying Program.

The Federal Relief Administration land purchase division expects to complete the purchase of 7,000,000 acres by July. Officials explained that the prohibition of further settlement conformed to the board's statement that it was useless to buy sub-marginal land while settlement of additional sub-marginal land was permitted.

In addition, the Relief Administration's rural rehabilitation division, and the PWA subsistence homesteads agency have been active in purchasing more fertile land for their industrial-agricultural communities.

Washington, with 692,751 acres of unsettled public land, was more affected by today's order than any other of the 12 states. Public land in the others named included: Minnesota, 269,451 acres; Arkansas, 175,924; Florida, 32,303; Nebraska, 20,225. There were inconsiderable amounts also in Alabama, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

The withdrawals were authorized under the land program section of the Recovery Act.

". . . . You can actually melt away that dead surface skin . . . that makes your skin Rough and Dry"

"What makes skin look harsh and dry?" we inquired of a noted dermatologist.

"Harshness—those rough blotches that mar the smoothness of your skin, are caused by dead, desiccated cells adherent to the surface skin," he said.

"How can they be corrected?" we asked.

"You can melt them away with a keratolytic skin softener," he replied.

"What do you mean by a keratolytic?"

"How does such a skin softener act?"

"When a cream possessing keratolytic properties is smoothed on the skin, dead horny cells are dissolved. Then the skin appears soft, clear, alive."

So now it is known exactly how Pond's Vanishing Cream works its wonders on the skin. It is a keratolytic cream and therefore actually melts away dry, horny cells.

Film on this fragrant skin softener after your nightly cleansing. Pat it over face, neck, hands, arms, elbows. It is so delicate you will not know that it is on. All the while it will be melting those old, dead cells. Then your skin will be revealed. Clear. Fine. Smooth as baby skin. With that same enchanting aura of radiant freshness.

Makes powder cling. During the day, this same feathery cream prevents chapping as well as relieves it. It lends a pearl-like texture to which powder and make-up cling with amazing permanence.

If you long for smooth—fine—clear skin, send right off for the generous supply of Pond's Vanishing Cream to which this coupon entitles you.

BUSINESS IMPROVING, NATIONAL C. OF C. SAYS

It Notes Increase in Production and Corresponding Rise in Employment.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—A current and continuing improvement in business which already had lifted 1934 industrial production 25 per cent higher than the low year of 1932 was reported today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"The increase in production has been accompanied by a corresponding improvement in employment," the chamber said in its weekly review. "Our manufacturing industries alone in December, 1934 gave employment to 1,300,000 more wage earners than in December, 1932. The manufacturing payrolls for last December were at least $190,000,000 more than for the same month two years before.

"All of the statistics yet available indicate that instead of showing a moderate seasonable recession which is normal, employment in manufacturing was maintained in January at the December level, and perhaps rose higher.

"Among the statistics appears remarkable use of electric power, which in January this year exceeded use in January, 1929. At the end of January coal was moving by railroad in greater volume than at this time of year since 1931. So far as checks drawn on bank deposits supply an index of general business activity, they were 15 per cent over the total for January, 1934.

"In a period of recovery unevenness is usually a sign of progress. This may be cold comfort for those industries which do not at once share the general improvement. The face of the statistical record which we now have behind us for recent years, however, suggests that, barring the intervention of disturbing artificial and arbitrary influences, there is ahead more improvement in the durable goods fields and renewed advance in the industries that offer products for immediate consumption."

THIRD FIRM FACES RUIN DUE TO PEPPER POOL

Rolls & Son Involved Almost $2,500,000; London Warehouses Have 3-Year Supply.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—A third long-established firm in London's famous Mincing Lane appeared ready tonight to go under in the cloud of white pepper swirling about the city's commodity district.

Serious repercussions in the stock exchange and other markets were feared as a result of the losses of gamblers in pepper, whose operations have piled London warehouses with 23,500 tons of the commodity, enough for three years.

Joseph D. Rolls, head of Rolls & Son which was established in 1861, admitted tonight "we are faced with ruin."

"We are involved to the extent of £500,000 gross (almost $2,500,000)," he added.

As was the case with the firm J. F. Adair & Co., listed as rubber produce brokers which today followed James & Shakespeare, Ltd., to the wall, the spokesman for the Rolls company asserted "we were the scapegoats for those behind the attempted pool (in pepper)."

There was much speculation as to what price would be fixed for white pepper when the moratorium, called after bankers and brokers stepped in to avert the debacle that threatened on "settlement day" for commitments yesterday, ends Monday. The last price available is that of Jan. 30, when pepper was quoted at one shilling, 3½ pence per pound (approximately 31 cents) or nearly double the price a year ago.

Adair & Co. admitted shortly before the closing of the market today that they were unable to meet their commitments.

James & Shakespeare, Ltd., listed as metal brokers, closed yesterday. A director in that firm was Garabed Birshirgian, naturalized Armenian known as the "Pepper King" who was indicated in early reports as the prime mover in the pepper combine. Financial circles said today, however, he was merely a "figurehead" for the group of operators who tried to make fortunes in pepper and shellac.

In the pepper pool, it is reported, were many well known persons. The Sunday Dispatch lists Reginald McKenna, chairman of the Midland Bank, and Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, chairman of the British-American Tobacco Co., among those who took up shares.

WARRANT CHARGES LABORER WITH PARCEL POST THEFT

Haschkar D'Braunstein Arrested While at Work at Main Postoffice.

A Federal warrant charging theft of a package from parcel post was issued yesterday against Haschkar D'Braunstein, laborer in the Main Postoffice, who was arrested Friday night while at work, after Postoffice Inspector Kupferer had had him under surveillance.

Kupferer quoted D'Braunstein as admitting that since he entered the employ of the Postoffice Department in 1927, he had taken about 150 packages from parcel post shipments. All were articles addressed to out-of-town customers by department stores and mercantile houses.

According to Inspector Kupferer, D'Braunstein said that in some instances he had no use for the contents of pilfered packages, he threw them away. Several discarded packages were found Friday night in hiding places about the postoffice.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AGAINST HIGHER INCOME RATE

Also Opposes Legislative Proposal to Double State Corporation Franchise Tax.

Legislative proposals to double the State corporation franchise tax and to increase the income tax rates for two years by 50 per cent were opposed by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, yesterday following a meeting at which directors of the Chamber considered several bills pending before the Legislature.

Among other bills disapproved by the Chamber were three providing for homestead tax exemptions, the bill to repeal the State five-cent property tax, and House Bill No. 174, proposing changes in the workmen's compensation law. Bills approved by the Chamber included the permanent registration measure, a bill to bring about more prompt payment of delinquent taxes, and repeal of the Jones-Munger law.

St. Louis corporations, the Chamber said, now pay 51.8 per cent of the franchise tax, or about $1,000,000 a year, while St. Louis and St. Louis County pay more than 60 per cent of the State income taxes. Income taxes of corporations in St. Louis would be increased $500,000 a year under this measure, the Chamber said.

POWDER CLEANS AND WHITENS TEETH—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER—just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used. Dr. Lyon's cleans off all stains, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

NOT SPONSOR FOR PAROLE

M. E. Jones, Webster Groves, Included by Error.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9. — In an account in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch of the parole application of Clay H. Cratty, serving a life term in the Missouri Penitentiary for the murder of Police Sergeant Robert E. Woody of St. Louis, the name of M. E. Jones of 322 Bompart avenue, Webster Groves, was erroneously included as a sponsor for Cratty's parole.

Jones made no recommendation for a parole and had no connection with the matter other than that he was one of four persons who vouched for the good character of a St. Louis merchant who was suggested as the sponsor to whom Cratty could be paroled, in the event his application was granted. Such evidence of good character is required in parole cases. Jones said he did not know Cratty.

COCHRAN, CUMMINGS CONFER ON JUDGESHIP

St. Louisan Says He Urged Appointment of One Free From Political Activity.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Representative Cochran of St. Louis conferred for 45 minutes today with Attorney-General Cummings and William Stanley, assistant to the Attorney-General, regarding the St. Louis Federal District judgeship made vacant by the promotion of Judge Faris to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Cummings told Cochran that he expected to discuss the St. Louis judgeship in the near future with the President. As in other executive appointments, the President probably will discuss the question with Postmaster-General Farley, who, as Democratic National Chairman, advises the President regarding the possible political effects of appointments.

Cochran, who has been an active opponent to the appointment of George H. Moore of St. Louis to the judgeship, said that he told the Attorney-General that he would have no personal objection to Moore for any position other than a Federal judgeship.

"I asked the Attorney-General," Cochran said, "to give us a judge who would be wholly satisfactory to the bench, the bar and the public—one against whom no charge of political activity could be made."

Cochran said that Moore was the only candidate discussed at the meeting. At a recent press conference, Cummings said that a "fine lot" of candidates had been recommended for the office.

Stanley, who has been in charge of the preliminary investigation of the candidates, told Cochran that a thorough investigation had been made. Cochran suggested that the indorsements of Moore by persons now having business before the District Court be minimized. Stanley indicated that the department did not usually pay much attention to the indorsements of such lawyers. Cochran had asked that the affiliations of all of Moore's indorsers be checked. Stanley insisted that this had been done.

Attorney-General Cummings, at a press conference, recently said he thought he would make public the indorsers of the person whose nomination is sent to the Senate by the President. Such a list would enable the Senate Judiciary Committee, which passes on all judicial nominations, to make its own investigation of the fitness of the nominee.

THE DIONNES VISIT MATERNITY HOSPITAL

Mother of Quintuplets on Verge of Tears as She Looks at New-Born Babies.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—The sight of rows of new-born babes in a hospital nursery today brought Mrs. Oliva Dionne to the verge of tears. The outward stoicism of this 26-year-old Canadian mother of 10 children, among them the famous quintuplets, had until now provoked comment among those who have watched her adventures in the city.

Visiting the Chicago lying-in hospital, she pressed her face close to the glass partition separating spectators from the nursery. A wave of emotion crossed her face, her lips quivered and she turned toward her husband, Oliva. Mrs. Dionne murmured a few words in French, her voice ending on a tearful note. He smiled consolingly.

"She misses her babies, poor girl," explained Mrs. Joseph Rochon of North Bay, Ont., a relative who is traveling with the Dionnes. "In spite of all the thrill of sightseeing she is lonesome for her children."

Mrs. Dionne's 11 children—one boy died several years ago—were born in the farmhouse where she and her husband have lived since their marriage in 1925. This was the first time she had seen how babies are cared for in a large hospital.

Her interest focused on an incubator in which slumbered a prematurely born infant, and she asked for details. She was interested when it was explained that two of the hospital babies were twins. "So?" she said with a smile.

Mr. and Mrs. Dionne, garbed in hospital gowns, caps and gauze masks over nose and mouth, were permitted to enter the nursery. They must dress thus when they visit their quintuplets in the special hospital at Callander, Ont., and donning the uniforms today brought a giggle from the young mother and the comment: "Just like home."

Sunday will be mostly a day of rest after the pair attend mass.

Chevrolet Dealers Showing New 1935 Master De Luxe Cars

The first of the new series of Chevrolet Master de luxe models were driven off the assembly line in the huge Chevrolet plant, Union and Natural Bridge, Wednesday of last week, and new models were displayed by all dealers in the St. Louis metropolitan area yesterday.

The new Master de luxe models are characterized by radical departures in design from that of last year's car. The new Master has as many new features and improvements as any new model that Chevrolet has ever introduced. A beautiful succession of sweeping, unbroken lines from radiator to rear of the car is accentuated by newly designed windows and doors. The wheelbase has been increased to 113 inches.

Turret Top Steel Bodies.

This year's Chevrolet introduces an innovation in body construction—the turret-type top steel body. The turret-top is one piece of steel, reinforced by heavy steel girder-type bows. Five massive steel panels are used to make up the body—the roof, the cowl, the rear and the two side panels—and all are electrically welded into one rugged unit of steel. The entire body floor is likewise made from a single plate of heavy gauge steel, from the rear seat to the dash.

Incorporated in the new car is Chevrolet's new pressure stream oiling system, combining splash, pressure and spray oiling, particularly effective for sustained high speed driving in any climate.

More Room in Interiors.

A new instrument panel, tastefully arranged, improves the interior appearance of the car. The front seats are two inches deeper and two inches wider, and an entirely new distribution of space has been provided inside the body to make it roomier and more comfortable. The engine has been moved forward one and one-half inches and the entire body has been moved forward on the chassis.

The Chevrolet plant in St. Louis is one of the largest manufacturing units of the General Motors Corporation, and production of the new Master models will be increased daily.

23 Per Cent More Power.

Performance and economy have been improved. Rigid proving ground tests, performed before the cars were put on the market, are said to have shown that at 30 miles per hour, the Master De Luxe models average 21 to 24 miles per gallon, while a thimbleful of oil represents the oil consumed per mile. At a steady speed of 50 miles per hour, the performance averaged 18 to 20 miles per gallon during tests. The engine develops 23 per cent higher maximum horsepower and marked increases in acceleration and speed.

New Headlight Test Unit Installed by United Motors Service

H. P. Schaller, manager of United Motors Service, 3001 Washington avenue, announces the installation of the new Guide head lamp test unit, the first of its kind in St. Louis.

The unit consists of two heads with specially ground plano-convex lens, mounted on a carriage which can be moved in a vertical, horizontal and lateral direction. Four steel floor plates provide a level surface upon which to place the car, and a specially designed light output meter is used to read the light output of the lamps in lumens. In other words, if there is not enough light coming from the lamps, adjusting alone will not furnish adequate illumination.

Schaller says that more than three-fourths of the motor vehicles in use today have lighting equipment capable of furnishing adequate illumination, when properly adjusted and maintained. Inspection of more than 3,200,000 motor vehicles last year showed that 69 per cent or more than two cars out of three had defective lighting equipment. Statistics show that 9720 persons are killed annually in the evening rush hours (from 5 to 9 p. m.) and only 2550 are killed annually in the morning rush hours (from 6 to 10 a. m.).

Investigation of automobile accidents by safety organizations show that accidents in hours of darkness are more serious than those in the day time. This is due to the fact that cars at night are driven too fast for the range of visibility afforded by improperly adjusted headlamps, and because many cars are not properly lighted so as to be plainly visible at night.

Election of Officers of Auto Dealers' Group Set for Monday Noon

Election of officers of the Greater St. Louis Automotive Association will take place at a meeting of the newly elected board of directors at noon tomorrow, immediately after the weekly luncheon.

At a meeting of the association last Monday, the following directors were elected for the ensuing year: Wholesale dealers—G. M. Berry of the Berry Motor Car Co.; Guy W. Oliver of the Oliver Cadillac Co.; Phil H. Brockman of the Federal Truck Co.; M. B. Straus of the Milstrand Motor Co., and Frank C. McDonald of the Southwest Automobile Co.; retailers—W. H. Willcockson of Willcockson Motors; F. H. Reismeyer of the Reismeyer Motor Co.; P. H. White of the P. H. White Motor Co., and W. L. Johnson, of the Johnson Automobile Co.

Motor Traffic Across Brooklyn Bridge.

An average of 22,585 automobiles travel over Brooklyn Bridge daily. When this span was opened 51 years ago, there was a crossing of about 3500 phaetons, buggies, and hansoms a day.

Like other Willys 77 models, it is designed for gasoline and oil economy and general low maintenance cost, mileage of 27 to 30 miles per gallon being claimed.

It has an all-steel body, speed of 70 miles per hour, rapid acceleration and fast hill climbing ability. The turning radius is only 17 feet.

Oversize four-wheel brakes are used with four hydraulic shock absorbers. Side windows prevent glare as does the windshield.

The engine has downdraft carburetor, alloy valve inserts, oil strainer and four-ringed lightweight pistons. The frame is of the double drop K-X type.

New Gas Sought for Racing.

To further study of fuel consumption by automotive engineers, drivers in the annual Memorial Day race at Indianapolis, Ind., will be allowed only 44½ gallons of fuel for the contest as compared with 45 gallons last year.

Low-Priced Pontiac 'Standard Six' Models Are Added to Line

Appearance Virtually Same as That of Pontiac De Luxe Six and Eight.

The Pontiac Motor Co. is announcing a new line of low cost Standard Six models which are being shown publicly for the first time in addition to the de luxe six and improved straight eight announced early in January.

The new Pontiac Standard Six models are lower priced than the de luxe six, the coupe listing at $615 f. o. b. factory. Other models are the two-door sedan at $665; four-door sedan at $715; two-door touring sedan at $695, and four-door touring sedan at $745.

With the Pontiac distinctive front end treatment, the Standard Six line has the characteristic lines of the larger cars and economy of operation.

Such 1935 developments as the steel "turret top" body, synchronized and stabilized front end springing, triple-sealed hydraulic brakes and other engineering improvements are on the latest newcomer to the Pontiac line. It is powered by the same six-cylinder engine as the de luxe line, developing 81 horsepower at 65 miles an hour, and is capable of speed well over 80 miles an hour.

The Standard Six has the same construction throughout that is found in the two higher priced lines.

Silver-alloy bearings, developed and pioneered by Pontiac engineers, and found in no other passenger cars in America today, are standard.

Except for the front fender indicator lamps, the Standard Six looks like the de luxe six. Except for the new synchronized and stabilized front end springing(the chassis of both cars are alike.

The new type of spring suspension gives a "softer" ride, in that stiffness has been reduced from 300 pounds to only 200 pounds. This equalizes spring stiffness front and rear, eliminates the forward-pitch of the conventional type of suspension, it is said, and provides comfortable and restful springing.

Standard Six models have the same completely sealed chassis as does the higher priced de luxe six. This keeps all water, dust and grit from every working part. Luggage space is provided in the rear of all sedan and coupe models.

All of the engineering features of Pontiac engines such as the cross-flow radiator, gusher type cooling the metered-flow lubrication are in the Standard Six.

1935 Pierce-Arrow Cars Displayed by New Distributer

General Sales Manager T. J. O'Rourke Here From Factory for Opening.

T. J. O'Rourke, general sales manager of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co., Buffalo, N. Y., was in St. Louis Thursday to attend the opening of the new Pierce-Arrow headquarters at 4733-7 McPherson avenue, where the 1935 Pierce-Arrow models are on display.

The new distributing firm is headed by George Gruet, president, and the sales and service departments are manned by experts of many years' experience.

The Lincoln Engineering Co. has installed a complete lubrication system of the most modern type.

"In charge of service is Lon Durham, assisted by Gus Weber, both of whom were with Pierce-Arrow for many years."

O'Rourke said Pierce-Arrow reported a most favorable January, as throughout the month production was oversold 30 per cent. Advance orders have built up a substantial business for the current month, he said, with indications that the oversold condition will continue. The uptrend in the demand for cars in the higher-priced brackets, he declared, reached a high point for 1934 in December.

Pierce-Arrow's favorable January showing was the result of the reception of the new models displayed at the auto shows throughout the country, and the increase in the purchasing of quality merchandise.

Chrysler Shipments Set January Record Plants at Capacity

Breaking all precedents for January business, production and shipments of Chrysler Motors cars the past month totaled 82,595 units, an all-time high for this time of year, it is announced by Walter P. Chrysler. This was more than double the previous January Chrysler shipment record of 30,566 units, established in 1929. Chrysler Motor factories shipped 28,169 new cars in January last year, 19,759 in January, 1933, and 12,261 in January, 1932.

"Our January shipments this year were equal to shipments in the first two months of last year," Chrysler said. 'They were only 2712 units less than the Corporation's all-time record for monthly shipments, established in March, 1934, during the peak sales season.

"Sales as well as shipments are running far ahead of all previous records made by the corporation. Retail deliveries of Plymouth, Chrysler, De Soto and Dodge passenger cars and commercial vehicles in the month were approximately 200 per cent of 1934 January sales.

"Every one of the Chrysler plants reached capacity production in January. All the plants are operating fully two months ahead of their last year's production schedules.

"The Plymouth plants in Detroit and Los Angeles are turning out nearly 2000 new cars daily. Plymouth has shipped more than 75,000 new 1935 cars since starting production late in November. Orders from dealers have passed the 120,000 mark.

New Refining Process Dry Cleans Harmful Particles Out of Oil

Makes Possible Use of Lighter Auto Engine Lubricant Which Retains Its "Body."

A former automotive dream—of light lubricating oils which would flow freely in cold weather yet maintain their body under high temperatures—has become reality.

It has never been a secret that light oils lubricated better. They were objected to only on the basis that they thinned excessively at high temperatures. Scientists have tried to remove this objection by sufficiently improving the oils, and recently have been successful.

This winter many motorists have found their engines instantly responding to starters. Backing out of their garages, they have noticed the easy action of the gears. The mechanical action on the road is better. They may also have noticed longer battery life.

Motor Oil Now De-Waxed.

Motor oils, free flowing at subzero temperatures, are largely responsible. A new refining process, propane dewaxing, plays a part in the production of the low pour-point oils. Hard work and laboratory experimentation by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana resulted in the first commercial development of propane dewaxing.

Anyone who shaves has felt the coolness on his face when the alcohol in the shaving lotion evaporates. This same principle of physics, that rapidly expanding gases chill, is a key to propane dewaxing. Wax in motor oil congeals in cold weather, stopping flow to the engine's pumps and causing other troubles.

Before Standard Oil discovered and applied its usefulness, propane was burned as refinery gas. All that is changed now, including the very form of propane. By applying about 150 pounds per square inch pressure, propane is transformed from a gas to a liquid only half as heavy as water and resembling liquid air in many ways. When wax-bearing oil is dissolved in this extremely fluid liquid and the pressure is gradually reduced, part of the propane "boils" away, automatically refrigerating the solution down to 40 degrees below zero, its boiling point at atmospheric pressure. At this point all the wax solidifies into crystals or particles that can be completely filtered out approximately a hundred times as rapidly as by using oil methods of chilling and filtration.

Problems Solved.

Liquid propane can be used in other ways in treating motor oils. If an asphaltic oil is dissolved in it and the solution is heated or cooled to the proper point, it throws out practically all of the asphaltic hydrocarbons and other heavy, dark-colored constituents which are carbon forming.

Liquid propane can also be used to excellent advantage with such refining agents as sulphuric acid, fuller's earth, and special recently developed solvents to produce high quality lubricating oils from many different kinds of crude oil. When the propane has performed its function, it is easily removed from the purified oil and recovered for further use.

Admitting that light lubricating oils which do not congeal at frigid temperatures are a fact, a skeptic might ask questions. Won't these light oils burn up excessively at high temperatures? Won't their viscosity change rapidly at varying temperatures? What about particles in the oil which oxidize and form sludge? Scientists are unperturbed by these questions, for they have perfected a process known as solvent extraction.

In Standard Oil Co. of Indiana laboratories, which first developed this process commercially to produce high-quality lubricating oils, the solvent selected is dichloroethy ether, called chlorex for trade purposes.

New Refining Agent.

Chlorex clings tenaciously to undesirable parts of lubricating distillates, but does not affect the desirable portions. These undesirable parts are responsible for most engine lubricating trouble. They oxidize and form sludge, and also give oil a low viscosity index, which means that the oil thins when an engine is warm and thickens excessively when cold.

Poured into the untreated oil and thoroughly mixed, chlorex washes out the undesirable parts. When the mixture is allowed to stand, the clear oil rises to the top, while the sludgy parts settle in the chlorex at the bottom and are removed. The treated oil is then free of underisable parts, but retains unharmed the stable parts which compose the superior lubricating oil. The process is sometimes referred to as "dry cleaning," for the "dirt" in oils is literally washed out with the chlorex.

NEW SALES MANAGER FOR REDERER CO.

CLARENCE J. TOBIN.

APPOINTED sales manager by A. H. Rederer, president of the Rederer Motor Sales Co., 3506 South Grand, dealer in Dodge and Plymouth cars, Tobin has been in the auto retail selling business for the past 14 years. For the past three and one-half years he has been with Rederer.

Another Model for 1935

Midwest Auto League Moves Service, Offices to N. Euclid Avenue

To improve service to its members, the Midwest Auto League, Inc., announces removal of its service department and general offices from 3954 Washington boulevard, where it maintained license department branches, to its own quarters at 437-49 N. Euclid avenue.

Its State and city license department is still available to members and their friends from the new location.

Announcement is also made of the improvement of service facilities and the addition of trucks and equipment in the emergency and towing service department.

Since the league began its Statewide service program, the membership has increased by 5000, bringing the active membership to nearly 10,000.

Speed Law Tightened.

In an attempt to curb the rapidly-mounting fatalities on highways, the speed laws in California are to be enforced almost to the letter. All patrolmen are ordered to arrest any motorist traveling more than 50 miles an hour, regardless of circumstances. The speed limit is 45, and no more than a five-mile margin will be permitted.

Increase of More Than 70 Per Cent Over January 1934; Largest Since 1929.

While every effort was being made to reopen the St. Louis assembly plant of the Ford Motor Co., the highest January world production of Ford cars and trucks since 1929 was reported Saturday by the Dearborn offices of the company. The total of 105,230 units produced during the month were all V-type eight-cylinder powered.

This figure represents an increase of more than 70 per cent over Ford world production in January, 1934, when 61,813 units were built.

Ford domestic production of V-8 cars and trucks in January of this year was 91,043 units, or an increase of more than 75 per cent over January of last year, when 51,974 units were produced in the United States. This is the more remarkable because of the fact that the new Ford V-8 cars were not introduced until Dec. 29.

The world production in January of this year was the largest in a comparative month since January, 1929.

The Ford company has set its domestic production schedule for February to exceed that of January. Five Ford branches in the United Stataes have reopened for assembly operations, making a total of 16 assembly branches now in operation.

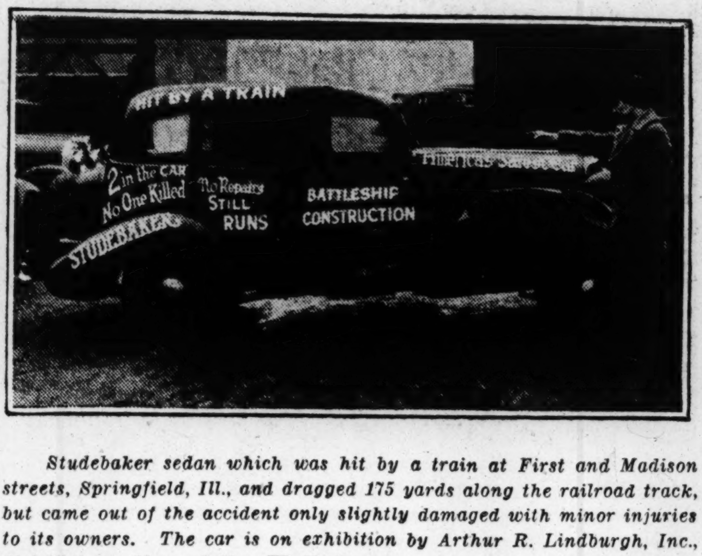
Little Damage in Train Crash



Studebaker sedan which was hit by a train at First and Madison streets, Springfield, Ill., and dragged 175 yards along the railroad track, but came out of the accident only slightly damaged with minor injuries to its owners. The car is on exhibition by Arthur R. Lindburgh, Inc., distributer. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sammons, who were in the car in the accident, were unhurt except for a fractured knee suffered by Mrs. Sammond. In the picture, Albert Kasey, sales manager of Lindburgh, Inc., is pointing out how little damage to the car resulted from the crash.

Patrol Drivers in Connecticut.

The Citizens Volunteer Motor Patrol of Connecticut has been formed to strengthen the "accident resistive" capacity of its member drivers by making them feel responsible for living up to the pledge they take. Every member of the Patrol "agrees to operate motor vehicles at all times in a courteous manner with special regard to the rights of his fellow-citizens and to report to the Motor Vehicle Department careless operators and those who violate the motor vehicle laws of the State."

Mack Truck Branch Preparing to Handle Reo Cars and Trucks

The local Mack truck branch was visited the past week by F. A. Fenner, vice-president of the Mack Co., and L. D. Comstock, Chicago, general sales manager, in connection with preparations for the branch to distribute Reo cars and trucks in St. Louis and its trade territory.

Fenner said that the move was made to make available for Mack truck users especially the Reo line of "Speed Wagons" and light duty trucks and for service to Reo owners.

The new 1935 Reo "Speed Wagon," trucks and passenger cars, will be on display this month in the show rooms of the Mack branch, Jefferson and Chouteau.

The Mack Co. executives were guests for two days of John J. Byrne, the branch manager, and are expected to return for the formal opening of the branch's Reo display, which will be announced soon.

Airglide Ride Sweeps America

EASIER RIDING AND DRIVING QUALITIES OF 1935 DODGE AMAZE THOUSANDS

New-Value Dodge Sedan (2-door) $690*—Touring Sedan with built-in trunk as illustrated $715*

Sensational New Value . . . 95 advancements for economy, comfort and brilliant performance in this New-Value Dodge . . . yet delivered prices are now only a few dollars more than lowest-priced cars

THE "Airglide Ride"—greatest thrill in motoring—is winning America in a single ride! It is a matchless sensation. Now riding is literally gliding!

Dodge engineers have found the secret of equalized weight distribution on all four wheels—with super-flexible springs to absorb road shocks, and the new Dodge ride "Levelator" to eliminate sidesway. It brings undreamed-of riding comfort. The car has a steadiness and roadability never before approached in any other car. It holds an even keel at all times. Hugs the road. Skims smoothly over rough spots. Steps over bumps. Takes sharp curves safely even at high speeds. Engineers have compared this remarkable "floating freedom", that you feel, to the sensation of "flying on wheels".

Astonishing Economy

Lovers of performance will hail the amazing Dodge "Red Ram" engine, with 87 horsepower and satin-smooth speed of 85 miles an hour! But thrifty motorists will welcome it, too. Owners report 20 miles and up per gallon of gas—with astonishing oil economy. Just when others are beginning to offer their first hydraulic-type brakes, Dodge gives you time-tested, dual-cylinder hydraulic brakes, pioneered by Dodge many years ago, and proved in service by hundreds of thousands of owners. The famous Dodge all-steel body was introduced by Dodge over 20 years ago and perfected year by year, until today, it holds unquestioned leadership. Six KSD Programs Among First 13 in Editors' Poll

Radio Writers of 260 Leading Newspapers Vote on Favorite Broadcasts—Agree That Helen Jepson, Heard Weekly on KSD, Is Outstanding New Radio Star of Year.

SIX programs broadcast regularly by KSD were among the first 13 of those voted the most popular of the thousands on the air by radio editors of 260 leading newspapers, in the annual poll conducted by the New York World-Telegram. These six were Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonight, Rudy Vallee's Variety Show, the Tuesday night Light Opera Hour, One Man's Family, Paul Whiteman's Thursday night Music Hall and the Sunday night opera in English. Ranking high in the vote were two other KSD programs—the Metropolitan Opera broadcasts and the Show Boat. Fred Allen's was voted the second favorite of all programs broadcast and Rudy Vallee's third, first place going to Jack Benny.

The radio editors agreed that the outstanding new radio star of 1934 was Helen Jepson, who won her engagement at the Metropolitan Opera House by her singing on Paul Whiteman's period on KSD and still is featured on Whiteman's program Thursday nights.

Mary Pickford, whose stock company plays on KSD Wednesday nights, was voted the foremost radio actress; Don Ameche and June Meredith of KSD's First Nighter dramas, second and third; Rosaline Green, often heard on KSD, fourth; Elsie Hitz, fifth; Anne Seymour, sixth, and John Barclay of the Light Opera Hour, seventh.

Lawrence Tibbett was ranked first among singers of classical songs; then KSD'S Gladys Swarthout, Grace Moore, John Charles Thomas and KSD's Jessica Dragonette.

GUY LOMBARDO'S orchestra, which plays on KSD Wednesday nights, was the editors' first choice among dance bands, as it was last year. Wayne King's orchestra was ranked a close second.

The Sunday Radio Theater was the editors' first choice dramatic program, with the March of Time, KSD's One Man's Family and First Nighter, and the Crime Club close behind in the vote.

Jack Benny was voted the favorite radio comedian; Fred Allen, the second, and Joe Penner, the third.

Jane Froman led by two votes over Kate Smith for the most popular woman singer of popular songs, Ruth Etting being only nine votes behind Miss Smith.

The Mills Brothers beat out the Boswell Sisters in the vote for most popular harmony group, reversing the editors' verdict on 1933.

Ted Husing was voted by a tremendous majority the favorite sports announcer, with Graham McNamee in second place.

ALBERT SPALDING was voted the favorite instrumentalist, although many of the editors declined to vote on this category, complaining that there were far too few really fine musicians on the air.

James Wallington, who is heard on KSD's Rudy Vallee, Sigmund Romberg and grand opera in English programs, was voted the favorite announcer.

Among the first 13 programs in popularity, in addition to the six carried by KSD, and Jack Benny and the Radio Theater, the editors listed Fred Waring, Alexander Woollcott, the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, Amos and Andy and the March of Time.

The editors voted that the outstanding broadcast in 1934 was that of Christmas greetings from virtually every part of the British Empire carried by NBC networks.

KSD Program

MARIO CHAMLEE, the tenor, is to sing songs by Sigmund Romberg on the first program, at 1:30 today, on KSD, in his new Sunday concert series. Among these will be "Then You'll Remember Vienna," and "Auf Wiedersehn," from "Blue Paradise;" a medley with quartet; "Stout Hearted Men," "My Land and Your Land" and selections from "The Student Prince." Chamlee, a native of Los Angeles, now lives in Connecticut. He made his operatic debut in "Tosca" at the Metropolitan in 1920, and has sung in opera and concerts all over the country. He is especially well known to grand opera audiences in St. Louis.

"La Boheme" Tonight.

EDITHA FLEISCHER, the Metropolitan Opera soprano, will sing "Mimi" in a performance of "La Boheme" in English, at 7 o'clock tonight on KSD. Jan Peerce, the tenor, will be the "Rudolph"; Josephine Antoine, "Musetta"; Roderick Cross, "Colline," and Wilbur Evans, "Marcel."

In an attic studio in the Latin Quarter of Paris, four artists live together in dire poverty—Rudolph, a poet; Marcel, a painter; Colline, a philosopher, and Schaunard, a musician. As they splurge one evening when one of them has luck, Mimi, beautiful but frail, knocks and asks for a light. They make her their guest at the banquet and she and Rudolph fall in love. Mimi has consumption and the passionate love and jealousy of Rudolph make life miserable for her. They try to part, but cannot. Finally, after some months, they separate, and Marcel and Musetta, with whom he has been living, also part. Mimi becomes more seriously ill, and Musetta takes her back to the studio, where, as they bring her a doctor, she dies in Rudolph's arms.

HELEN JEPSON

Boys' Choir on KSD.

THE English Boy Choristers, 12 lads of 12 to 15 years of age, selected from choirs of prominent churches in Great Britain, will sing over KSD from 6:45 to 7 o'clock next Saturday evening. They will come to St. Louis to sing in an English cathedral service in Christ Church Cathedral at 11 o'clock next Sunday morning and at 8 o'clock the following Tuesday night. In their KSD concert they will be led by their director, Carlton Borrow of the Royal College of Organists' Association.

The boys are accompanied by a schoolmaster when on tour and pursue a regular course of study as if they were in the London choir school at home. Their repertoire consists of secular as well as sacred music, and they are noted for the beauty of tone and devotion of their singing. They sing three and four part anthems by such composers as Schubert, Byrd, Handel, Brahms and Hiller and Elizabethan madrigals and part songs.

On their last tour through Canada, they were invited to sing in the Government House in Ottawa by the Governor-General and Lady Bessborough. They also were invited to the White House by Mrs. Roosevelt.

Tibbett in Opera.

WITH Lawrence Tibbett singing the title role, the Metropolitan Opera performance of Verdi's "Simon Boccanegra" will be broadcast by KSD from 12:55 to 4 o'clock next Saturday. Elisabeth Rethberg will sing "Maria;" Giovanni Martinelli, "Gabriele," and Ezio Pinza, "Jacopo." This opera was first produced in this country three years ago as a vehicle for Tibbett soon after its revival in Italy after having been virtually forgotten for half a century.

The story of Esther will be the basis of the Immortal Drama broadcast by KSD at 1 o'clock today. The dramatization is said to follow faithfully the Biblical narrative.

One Man's Family may be heard at 9:30 tonight on WEAF chain station, presumably on WMAQ (670), WSM (650), WHO (1000) and WDAF (610). As was told last Sunday, this program can not be carried by KSD as it has been shifted from Wednesday to Sunday nights, but on and after April 3, KSD and the WEAF net will carry it at 7 o'clock Wednesday nights, when it will replace Mary Pickford's stock company. Miss Pickford, by the way, says that a contract to finish a novel and plans for theatrical appearances make it impossible for her to continue broadcasting after March 31, and that she will be unable to do any more radio work until next fall.

A new dramatic serial of adventure in the Southwest, "The Desert Kid," is scheduled on KSD at 5:45 the first five weekdays, starting Tuesday. Burton Eisner plays the part of the "Kid." The roles of three cowboys are taken by Jack Ross, Curly Bradley and Shorty Carson, who are known to listeners as the Ranch Boys trio.

Nine-year-old Edward Kozak, a stage veteran of four years' experience as a xylophone player, will be Tony Wons' "guest" at 4:30 today on KSD.

Joe Winters on KSD.

JOE WINTERS' orchestra and entertainers are broadcasting on KSD at 11 o'clock the first five week-day nights.

Helen Jepson of KSD's Paul Whiteman's programs is to sing an operatic "double-header" Wednesday night at the Metropolitan Opera. She is billed as "Helene" in "The Pasha's Garden," in which she made her "Met" debut, and also as "Nedda" in "Pagliacci."

Begins Series on KSD Today

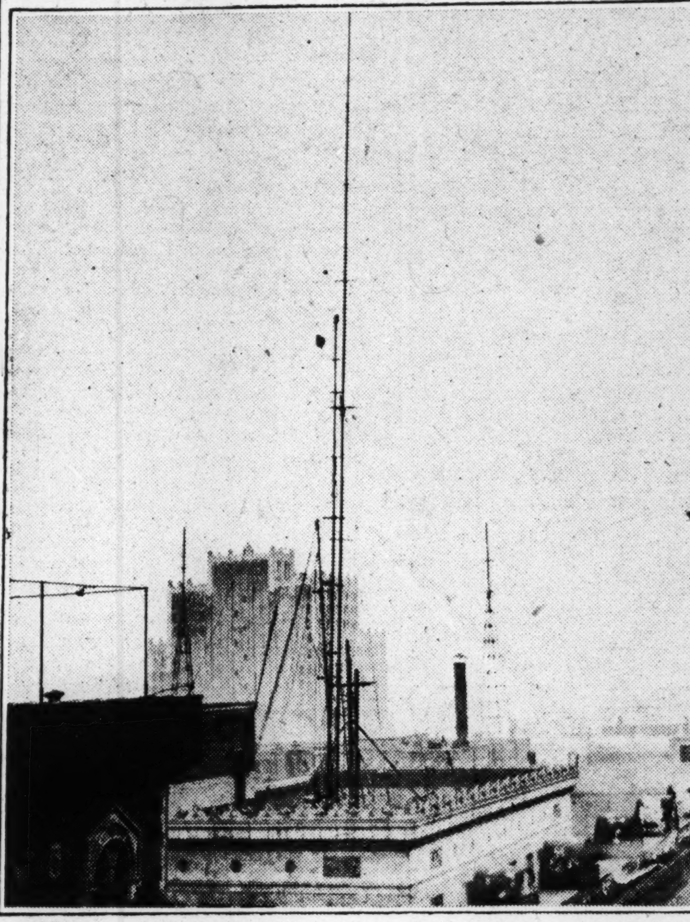
Reflector Aerial for KSD



KSD's new "reflector" aerial on the roof of the Loudermann building at Locust and 11th streets, photographed Wednesday just as it was hoisted in place. In the background may be seen one of the two towers of KSD's main transmitting aerial on the roof of the Post-Dispatch building. The "reflector" aerial was erected to intercept KSD's radiation toward the East for the purpose of minimizing interference with programs broadcast by other stations and of reflecting them back to increase the strength of KSD's transmission in other directions. The aerial consists of a single metal mast 150 feet tall, standing on a porcelain insulating base and supported by insulated guy wires.

Concert From Russia At 8 a. m. Today.

"RUSSIAN ROMANCE" is the theme of the first of a new monthly series from Russia scheduled at 8 o'clock Sunday mornings on the WEAF chain, beginning today. Jack Pearl Returns To Broadcasting On Wednesday Night

Charles Winninger, One Time "Captain" of Show Boat Heads New Variety Show That Will Open on Net This Evening.

TWO entertainers who have won wide popularity with listeners will be back on the air this week—Charles Winninger who was the original "Capt. Henry" of KSD's Show Boat, at 6:30 this evening on the CBS net, and Jack Pearl, of "Baron Munchausen" fame, in a new role at 9 o'clock Wednesday night on the same chain, presumably on KMOX. Winninger's variety show, which will replace Will Rogers for a number of weeks, will feature Frank Parker, the tenor of KSD's Gypsies concerts; the Revelers Quartet, the Pickens Sisters trio, and Frank Tours and his orchestra. Jack Pearl will return as "Peter Pfeiffer," an immigrant from Europe whose considerable fortune has vanished. He has left only a family hotel with numerous impecunious tenants. Peter is manager, handyman and major-domo as well as proprietor. A onetime member of a Viennese singing society, he conducts singing classes as a hobby. Easy-going, soft-hearted and generally lovable, he plays philosopher, adviser and peacemaker in his little hotel world. Cliff Hall ("Sharlie") will head the supporting cast, and Freddie Martin will lead the orchestra and have a speaking part. Patti Chapin, a young singer, and Keith Stevens' mixed chorus also will have parts in the show.

JACK DEMPSEY is being considered as headliner in a new CBS chain series with "Doc" Rockwell, the comedian. He will re-enact a scene from one of his fights, and will be interviewed, in a special broadcast, at 6:45 next Saturday night on the WEAF net.

Joan Bennett will be featured with Bing Crosby at 8 o'clock Tuesday night on KMOX.

Gene Raymond and Lila Lee, the movie actors, are billed in "The First Year" for the Radio Theater at 1:30 today on KWK.

"Red Trails," a serial of the early days of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, is scheduled on the WJZ net at 7:30 Thursday nights, starting this week. Stewart Sterling is author of the sketches, the first of which to be broadcast will be "The Mark of the Breed." (On KWK.)

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will begin her new series on "The Changing Position of Women" at 7 o'clock Friday night on KMOX.

Ruth Etting, the Modern Choir and a concert dance orchestra led by Frank Black will begin a weekly series at 9:45 Saturday morning that will be carried by the WJZ chain and be sent out by short-wave for rebroadcasting in England.

GRAIN MARKET PRICES IMPROVE AT THE WEEK-END

ST. LOUIS MERCHANT'S EXCHANGE, Feb. 9. — Grain futures improved in the trading at week-end. The recent slipping away of prices and better sentiment as to possible reaction of market should the gold clause decision be unfavorable, were cited as influences in the day's developments.

Winnipeg wheat started out ⅛c higher. The close was unchanged to ⅛c higher.

Liverpool closed ⅛@¼d higher after opening ¼@⅜d up.

HIGHEST PRICES OF WEEK IN WHEAT MARKET AT CLOSE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Highest prices of the week prevailed in the wheat market during today's final transactions, with numerous traders showing greater confidence relative to monetary matters in general.

From the outset, belief grew in particular that Congress would at once enact new laws to take care of any developments should the Supreme Court rule against the administration stand concerning gold clause cases. Mill demand for wheat here was in evidence, and the markets for all grains received good support from speculative buying as well.

Wheat closed firm, ¾@1⅝c above yesterday's finish, May 97⅜@½c, corn ⅜@¾c up, May 85⅛@¼c, oats ⅝@1c advance, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a gain of 7 cents.

Reversing yesterday's action, wheat displayed more strength today than corn did, wheat climbing to within a fraction of the price that prevailed when the gold clause first became a market factor. This behavior of wheat was the more impressive because of being in the face of somewhat improved moisture conditions for the domestic winter crop Southwest. One suggested ground for augmented firmness of wheat was that if the Supreme Court upheld the administration's gold policy, an instant bullish effect on the wheat market appeared probable.

Furthermore bulls urged that no matter what the Supreme Court decided as to gold, the market situation would be clarified and much sold-out grain be replaced.

Corn and oats, although inclined to lag, were responsive to wheat price upturns and to assertions from trade leaders that the grain markets had discounted uncertainties regarding the gold decision and were well liquidated as a whole.

Oldsmobile Beats All Its Records for Month of January

More Oldsmobiles were built and shipped last month than in any January in the history of the company, exceeding January production of a year ago four times over, according to D. E. Ralston, vice-president and general sales manager for Oldsmobile.

"January was a heavy production month," he said, "and this month will be even better. The building program for February far exceeds the largest previous month for Odsmobile, which was April, 1929.

"In January this year we built more cars than the first two months of 1934 combined. By the end of February our production will be three and a half times that of the same period last year.

Highway Police in 31 States.

There are 31 States in the Union which police their highways for enforcement of motor vehicle laws or regulation of automobile traffic. The need for this highway police is indicated by the fact that there are more fatal traffic accidents in villages and hamlets and the open country than there are in the cities of 10,000 and over.

1,250,000 Philco Sets Sold in 1934.

Sale of 1,250,000 Philco radio sets in 1934 is reported by the Philco Radio and Television Corporation. A total of 950,000 Philco sets were sold in 1933. The corporation began making sets in 1927, and in 1929 marketed 408,000 sets.

New Zenith Receivers Displayed for Dealers.

A NUMBER of new Zenith radio sets were shown to dealers at a meeting and dinner Wednesday at the Claridge Hotel held by the Electric Lamp & Supply Co., of which Herman Hollender is president. The new models, characterized by Zenith "triple filtering" for selectivity and quiet operation, and "split second tuning," include five, six, six, nine, ten and twelve-tube receivers, and a 25-tube Zenith "Stratosphere" designed for tone quality and exceptional distance all-wave range. There is also a new six-tube automobile set.

All the models, from mantel type to full-sized consoles, are exceptionally attractive in styling. Some models cover the broadcast, police, amateur and aviation bands, while others cover all the foreign short wave bands as well. The 10 and 12-tube Zeniths have 12-inch dynamic speakers.

So-called "dimensional tone" is featured in all the new models, especially in the larger consoles and the "Stratosphere" sets. The "Stratosphere" has multiple speakers, each so installed as to actuate a separate column of air, to give wider distribution of sound, spread out the sounds of the instruments in an orchestra and create greater realism of reproduction.

Five New Sparton Radio Sets Introduced.

NEW Sparton radio sets, which were shown to dealers at a meeting recently, are being introduced by the Mayflower Sales Co., distributor. Among them is a mantel type "personal" AC-DC set, which covers broadcasting and domestic short-wave stations. It has illuminated, full-vision dial, automatic volume control and tone control.

Another new set is a six-tube console designed for broadcast and foreign short wave reception. This has an airplane type dial.

A new "Embassy" model, in a uniquely massive cabinet, tunes all stations from 540 kilocycles to 20 megacycles.

A new radio-phonograph combination has a 10-tube chassis and an automatic record changer, and is of the all-wave type.

Sparton's three-speaker "Triolian" has been further improved. With a 13-tube circuit, 155 square inches of sound reproducing surface and special cabinet, it is designed for three-dimensional reproduction. The "Triolian" covers all broadcast and foreign short wave stations.

WALL STREET SENTIMENT IS IMPROVED AS WEEK CLOSES

Financial Quarters Seem Less Concerned About the Forthcoming Gold Decision — Bonds Chief Beneficiaries of Changed Mood.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Stocks paused for a breathing spell today, after yesterday's recovery, but bonds continued to press higher.

Wall street could not glean much in the way of fresh clues from week-end business reports, and while pressure of idle funds was still evident in the investment markets, there was little inclination to follow up the advance in common shares.

An impressive assortment of preferred stocks moved up a point or two, along with bonds, but the Associated Press average of 60 common stocks showed a gain for the day of only 0.1 of a point, at 38.7, which was where it was a week ago. The turnover for the two-hour session was only 293,300 shares.

Suspense Over Gold Ruling.

Continued suspense over the forthcoming gold decision was undoubtedly still a factor in the markets, although financial quarters seemed less concerned about it. At any rate, fears of a depressive effect upon commodity prices have subsided. Cotton backed up 10 to 35 cents a bale today, but wheat gained ¾ to 1⅝ cents a bushel and corn ⅜ to ¾ of a cent. Commodities such as rubber and cocoa, recently unsettled by the failure of a couple of London houses, also continued to recover.

Week-end reports indicated further gains in automobile production. Cram estimated this week's output at 78,453 units, compared with 73,527 a week ago and 65,143 the same week last year. Steel quarters thought the striking rise in steel production the past two months had leveled off, and that operations might not be boosted much further, if any in that industry for a week or two anyway.

U. S. Steel, as expected, reported the best January shipments since 1931. The total of 534,055 tons compared with 331,777 in the same month of last year, and were well above totals for that first month of the preceding two years. The 1931 January total, however, was 800,031 tons.

A Few Issues Rise.

Some of the oils acted a little better today, as recent production figures were considered more favorable. Standard of California was up ⅝ at 30⅝, and Seaboard rose 2½ points to 25½. Such issues as American Telephone, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Chrysler and Montgomery Ward and other usually active issues were about unchanged.

A few issues rose a point or so in thin markets, including American Shipbuilding, Cluett Peabody, Corn Products, Detroit Edison, General Mills, International Business Machines, Pullman and Worthington Pump. Such recessions as appeared were mostly limited to minor fractions.

Foreign currencies recovered in final dealings here. Sterling finished ½ cent higher at $4.88½ and French francs up .01⅜ of a cent at 6.58⅜ cents.

LOANS AND DISCOUNTS ARE DOWN $950,000

Loans and discounts decreased $950,000 to $122,669,000 for the week, according to the statement of the St. Louis Clearing House Association as of the close of business Friday.

Demand deposits decreased $723,000 to $239,095,000; time deposits increased $372,000 to $95,208,000; bank deposits increased $11,000 to $118,188,000; total deposits decreased $340,000 to $452,491,000; bond and stock accounts increased $220,000 to $210,699,000; total resources decreased $460,000 to $506,940,000; total lawful reserves decreased $559,000 to $76,574,000.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Active and quite general demand for lead has followed the recent $4 per ton reduction and consumers are now estimated to have covered the greater part of their February and a fair quantity of March requirements.

The undertone was aided when one large producer advanced quotations $1 per ton from the low, but others were accepting business at the full decline.

Reported sales of Blue Eagle electrolytic copper thus far in February have been larger than for the corresponding period of last month, but the code price remains unchanged at the 9-cent basis. The better inquiry is said to reflect smaller supplies in consumers' hands and possibly better demand for finished products. Foreign prices were easier as London declined.

Tin ruled about steady and with a fair demand, partly credited to the automotive industry. Inquiry again centered on prompt shipments. Tin plate mill operations were estimated at 75 per cent of capacity.

Zinc was quiet and prices remained unchanged on prompt carlot sales. Smelters who were said to be considering a curtailment plan, restricted offerings. Ore replacement costs also discouraged the making of concessions. Statistics for January indicated production and shipments about balanced, leaving metal stocks unchanged.

Antimony was dull throughout the week, with prices unchanged locally, although slight declines were said to have developed in China as a result of poor demand.

Steel mill operations were being maintained at or slightly better than last week's rate and some in the trade were of the opinion that the peak of demand had been reached for the time being. However, activity was expected to con tinue as a result of the outlook for well-maintained automobile production and good inquiry for miscellaneous products.

BOND LIST BETTER ON A LIGHT TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—With net gains ranging from minor fractions to one point or more, the bond market moved forward on relatively light volume today.

Railroad and utility issues were again the principal beneficiaries of the improvement in sentiment which became pronounced in the previous session and with few exceptions the trend was uniformly higher in both lower-priced and prime investment loans.

Government bonds moved in an extremely narrow range up to the last 15 minutes of trading, when a mild rally lifted most of the Treasury issues and Liberties on an average of 3-32 to ⅛ of a point net higher. The Associated Press average of 10 low-yield bonds advanced .02 of a point to a new 1934-35 high at 109.5.

Principal gainers in the corporate division were American & Foreign Power 5s, up 1¾ points at 60; Colorado & Southern 4½s, up 1⅞ at 63; Utility Power & Light 5½s, up 1⅛ at 30, and International Mercantile Marine 6s, up 2 at 53.

Other issues attracting buyers at slightly higher levels included obligations of American Telephone, Baltimore & Ohio, International Telephone, Northern Pacific, Postal Telegraph, Southern Pacific and Texas Corporation. The Associated Press averages for 20 rails advanced .02 of a point for 20 rails advanced .02 of a unchanged at 93.8, and 10 utilities averaged .03 of a point higher at 88.2.

Stability of the market on the last business day before the Supreme Court is expected to rule on the gold clause cases was taken as further evidence in investment circles that all contemplated adjustments in portfolios had been made and the market was in a position to await the decision with some degree of equanimity.

Transfers aggregated $5,388,000, par value.

GUN CAPACITY LIMITED TO SAVE WATERFOWL

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—President Roosevelt's order limiting the capacity of magazine and other repeating shotguns to three shells will be of "incalculable advantage in the preservation of our migratory waterfowl," Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said today, in explaining the latest amendment to the Federal hunting regulations issued under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act of 1918.

"The order," Secretary Wallace continued, "will deprive no one of the privilege of hunting such birds and will meet an exceedingly widespread demand throughout the country."

The new regulation, which becomes effective immediately, applies only to automatic loading or hand operated repeating shotguns used in hunting ducks, geese and other migratory game birds. Users of these types of weapons are required to have the magazines stopped with plugs that cannot be removed in the field, or must have the magazines cut down to the required shell capacity.

Repairs necessary to bring the guns within the provisions of the new regulations, the Department of Agriculture biological survey declared, will cost little and arms companies, having in mind the interest of sportsmen now in possession of such guns, have agreed to co-operate in this conservation measure.

The new regulation, the survey said, marks a reform in wild fowling long advocated by sportsmen and conservationists, and was made urgent by the alarming decrease in the number of ducks.

The actual order provided that game birds may not be taken "with or by means of any automatic loading or hand operated repeating shotgun capable of holding more than three shells, the magazine of which has not been cut off, or plugged with a one-piece metal or wooden filler incapable of removal through the loading end thereof, so as to reduce the capacity of said gun to not more than three shells at one loading."

J. N. Darling ("Ding"), the former cartoonist, who is now chief of the Biological Survey, hailed the amendment as an outstanding conservation act.

The advent of the repeating shotgun, the Biological Survey explained, came at about the same time as the rapid decrease in migratory birds, to which it contributed, but for which it was not totally responsible. "The rapid development in the efficiency of all arms and munitions and the invasion of game-breeding area by civilization, together with the increase in the number of hunters," the survey said, "have thus brought the American sportsman and conservationist to the realization that, if wild-fowl shooting is to be preserved, it must be as a skilled sport and not in mass killing."

The Survey, pointing to growing sentiment against the auto-loading gun and the hand-operated repeating shotgun, continued: "Canada in six provinces and the Northwest territories has legislated a prohibition against them; similar action has been taken by two states, and . . . the demand was insistent that the Federal Government act." In some Canadian provinces the 5-shell automatic shotguns are banned, while pump guns with greater capacity are not.

The Survey said manufacturers have already put on the market modified models of both the auto-loading and the pump shotguns that can accommodate only three sheels at a loading and that the trend "has apparently been to the double-shotgun or to a single-barreled weapon of 3-shell capacity."

MAN ACCUSED OF BURGLARY ESCAPES FROM CLAYTON JAIL

Ray Carter, Had Served Term in Illinois Reformatory; Awaited Grand Jury Action.

Ray Carter, 28 years old, former reformatory inmate, who was held in default of $30,000 bond on three warrants charging second degree burglary and larceny, escaped from St. Louis County Jail at Clayton last night.

Apparently he took advantage of the additional freedom allowed prisoners on Saturday, which is visiting day, when they are permitted outside the first-floor jail block or "bull-pen." He is thought to have hidden outside the block when it was locked yesterday afternoon, then slipped through the outer door after Night Jailer Maschmidt entered the jail at 8 p. m., locking the door and leaving the keys in it.

The escape was discovered by Deputy Sheriff Reinke who, passing the jail door, saw it open and a man running. Reinke entered and found Maschmidt with his back to the door unaware it had been opened. A check-up disclosed that Carter was missing.

The prisoner was without hat or coat. He wore gray trousers and a dark sweater with the numeral 11 on the back. He had been in jail since Nov. 7, following arrest by University City police for three house burglaries. He was awaiting grand jury action on the warrants. He served 16 months in the Pontiac, Ill., Reformatory and is accused there of violating his parole.

BAR ASSOCIATION TO DISCUSS JUDGES CONVENTION BILL

A special meeting of the St. Louis Bar Association will be held at the Chase Hotel at 8 o'clock tomorrow night to discuss the merits of a bill pending before the Legislature providing for nomination of State Supreme Court, Appellate Court and St. Louis Circuit Court judges by political convention instead of in a primary election as at present.

The meeting, called by the Executive Committee at the request of 14 members of the association, will decide also whether the referendum vote of the membership will be completed or abandoned. The referendum ballots have been mailed out for return Tuesday noon. Under the association's by-laws, a special meeting is mandatory on request of at least 10 members.

Lawyers who wanted a special meeting to discuss the bill, designed to block the nomination of judicial slates by political bosses, asserted that a change to the convention system under present political conditions would cause further political domination of the bench.

MOVE TO FORM COUNTY SCHOOL PATRONS' ALLIANCE

A meeting will be held Friday night at Maryland School, 7501 Maryland avenue, Clayton, to organize a Public School Patrons' Alliance of St. Louis County.

The movement was started Jan. 25 at a meeting of the Jennings School Patrons' Association, at which Joseph C. Schroeder, member of the St. Louis Public School Patrons' Alliance, outlined the services of an Alliance to a school system. It is the intention of the organizers to pattern the new association after the St. Louis organization.

As explained by Schroeder, the Patrons' organization is to be non-political and will hear no political speakers, except candidates for Boards of Education. The Alliance is to be the medium of acquaintance between parents and educators. Other services outlined by Schroeder were: To encourage education throughout the county, to lend financial assistance in providing libraries and apparatus not otherwise furnished, to devise means for establishing scholarships and the care of aged teachers, to assist in commemorating national holidays.

The governing board will include two delegates from each member association, or school district. A charter and constitution will be presented at Friday's meeting.

"What One Hand Does in New Deal The Other Undoes"

Nothing It "Has Done So Far That Could Not Have Been Done Better by An Earthquake"—Two Writers Sharply Criticise "Catch-as-Catch-Can Resourcefulness."

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.

THERE is nothing the New Deal has done so far that could not have been done better by an earthquake, say two critics who are sharper and more outspoken in their attack than any of the recent critics of the Roosevelt administration.

An earthquake, these two authors say, Benjamin Stolberg and Warren Jay Vinton, would have achieved more effectively the same kind of scarcity that the AAA and the NRA were intended to create. "Scarcity-mongering," these critics declare is at the basis of the New Deal.

Stolberg and Vinton have written in their new book, "The Economic Consequences of the New Deal" (Harcourt, Brace & Co., publishers), an almost primer-like indictment of the administration's program—or lack of program, they would insist. It is short, simple, direct, in terse, sometimes slangy language. Plainly the authors intend it not for "economists" and special students but for wide circulation. Here in the capital it is finding numerous readers, both in and out of the administration.

The book concentrates upon the contradictions of the Roosevelt policies, asserting that the New Deal is trying to correct the lack of balance in our economic life "by strengthening all its contradictions." The authors are in accord with the distinguished correspondent of a London newspaper who said recently, "Promising something to everyone, Mr. Roosevelt moves mysteriously in all directions."

Banking Collapse.

The wellspring of the New Deal is that hopeful liberalism which, in view of the authors, has dominated so much of American social thinking during the past 50 years. This liberalism, Stolberg and Vinton say, is merely a kind of catch-as-catch-can resourcefulness—a heritage of the frontier when man was of necessity the supreme opportunist.

"The New Deal," the authors contend, "is merely the capture of government by 'scientific' social work. It is merely the remodelling of the White House into a new Hull House. And the Brain Trusters are nothing but settlement workers who want the "big bad bankers and the good little workers to play together in peace."

But this, the authors say, is impossible because the interests of the two are inevitably in conflict. Monopoly capitalism—which is the phase of capitalism that America now has reached, is "inexorably driven," in the view of the authors, "to make anti-social decisions. Its policies cannot help but run counter to the interests of every social group except itself. Its decisions must be against the interests of labor, because business enterprise considers labor only an expense which eats into profits. Its decisions must be against the great middle classes, because it needs their savings for exploitation in speculative undertakings. Its decisions must be against the farmer, because its interests lie in beating down the general cost of living and of raw materials. Indeed, the decisions of monopoly capitalism must be against all of us as consumers because its drive for the highest possible price inevitably results in curtailed production."

Under President Hoover, according to Stolberg and Vinton, "Big Ownership" got nearly $2,000,000,000 of public money "in defense of private fortunes." But this was only a beginning, a mere drop in the bucket, in comparison to what President Roosevelt has done to prop up a debt structure that the authors believe to be rotten to the core. This they point to as one of the fundamental contradictions of the Roosevelt regime — that borrowed money, which increases the burden of debt, can be spent fast enough to pull the country out of the depression. It is even contrary, they say, to the rules of the capitalist game; past depressions have ended only when the top-heavy debt structure has been liquidated and the surviving capitalists were freed again to float more securities to build more factories to produce more goods. Briefly reviewing the early days of the Roosevelt administration, the authors say:

Source of New Deal.

"The collapse of our banking system ushered in the New Deal. 'The money-changers,' said Mr. Roosevelt in his inaugural address, 'have fled from their high seats in the temple.' But after one week of the New Deal

Supreme Court Soon to Move Into Splendid New Building After 75 Years in One Room

WHERE THE COURT WILL SIT

Last of Three Government Branches to Occupy Larger Quarters—Ceremonial Bronze Doors, Marble-Lined Corridor, Lead to Tribunal.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.

WHEN the United States Supreme Court moves to its magnificent new marble temple toward the end of the present term, the simple existence that this branch of the Government alone has retained from an earlier past will end.

Congress has long since burst the bounds of the Capitol, expanding into handsome office buildings, one for the Senate and two for the House. Last fall the White House executive offices were enlarged to more than twice their former size, a scope that would startle the Presidents who made an upstairs sitting room in the White House proper serve as office. The Supreme Court alone has persisted in the small room in the Capitol that it has occupied since 1859.

The court is thus the last of the three branches of government to accept, in this great building that is now receiving finishing touches from the hands of decorators and cleaners, the physical symbol of a Federal machine grown in size and complexity to a degree scarcely foreseen even 25 years ago. Although the new building is, after all, only a building, only a physical structure, those who have observed the court for many years feel that it will almost inevitably bring certain changes in the life of the court. That may be why the court itself so long resisted this change.

Dedication Some Time in May.

The date set for completion of the building in the contract is March 1 and it will be not long after that when the last interior scaffolding is taken down. The court, however, will not occupy its new quarters until some time shortly after May 1. The exact time of the first dedicatory session has not been fixed, but, according to present plans, it will be held between May 8 and May 11, which will give delegates to the American Law Institute, meeting here then, an opportunity to take part in the dedicatory exercises.

The Supreme Court's new temple of justice—it can hardly be called less than that—stands across from the Capitol, with the Library of Congress on one side and the Senate office building, a block removed, on the other side. It is 385 feet east and west and 304 feet north and south, and it cost $9,300,000, but mere statistics give no idea of its splendor.

Broad marble columns rise to an imposing pediment, in which are symbolic figures boldly carved, Liberty, Authority, Order, and just beneath them, in large letters, the inscription, "Equal Justice Under Law." Incidentally, the sculptor, Albert Aitken, with the knowledge of the architect, the late Cass Gilbert of New York, took the liberty in carving the symbolic figures of giving them the faces of real persons. Not long after the scaffolding was taken down someone discovered that he had represented the late Chief Justice William Howard Taft as a student at Yale, Taft's successor, the present Chief Justice, Charles Evans Hughes, as he appears today, the fourth Chief Justice, John Marshall, as a young student, the sculptor himself and the architect. In the history of art there are many precedents for this, one of them here in the capital—in the mural in the Lincoln Memorial, in which are the faces of the painter, Jules Guerin, and the architect, Henry Bacon. It is appropriate that Taft should be represented, for he, more than anyone else, worked to obtain the court building.

Bronze Doors of Main Entrance.

Marble steps lead to a broad marble porch and ceremonial doors of bronze on which are cast in low relief the figures of great lawgivers, from Solon on down through the eighteenth century. This main entrance opens directly into the lofty marble-lined corridor, which leads to the courtroom itself. Here one may already gain an idea, although the bench itself is not yet in place, of how impressive will be the setting of America's highest court.

Around three sides of the room is a double row of columns of Sienna marble of a rich apricot color. Between these columns will be bronze grills, which may be closed when the court is in session. Above the columns around four sides of the room, which is two and a half stories in height, is a frieze, figures carved in low relief on ivory-veined marble from Spain. Wherever it is possible the furnishings are to be of bronze. Plaster decorative designs on the ceiling are now being covered with gold leaf. The bench itself is to be equipped with a pneumatic tube and telephone system which will extend to the chair of each Justice. Throughout, of course, the building is to be air-conditioned by the most modern means. Immediately behind the bench is a kind of alcove that can be screened with bronze grills. On each side of this recess is a fireplace with black marble mantel. Here the Justices may retire briefly.

Behind the courtroom is the Chief Justice's conference room. This room is of generous proportions, paneled in satin-finished oak, with a handsome fireplace at each end. To the left of this room is the Justices' robing room, where in a row are the nine compartments in which will hang the black silk robes that the Justices wear when on the bench.

Three Rooms, Two Baths for Each.

Each Justice is provided with a suite of three rooms and two baths, and it is interesting to note, in relation to recent rumors that the size of the court would be increased, that there are only nine suites. The Justice's own private office is a spacious room, paneled in oak and with a carved black marble fireplace. Giving off of it is the Justice's private bath, done in glass tiles and containing a plate-glass shower bath. The two other rooms in the suite, all of which are identical except for that of the Chief Justice, whose quarters are larger throughout, also have generous proportions.

On the floor above is an oak-paneled private dining room for the Justices and their guests. Original plans called for a private kitchen, in which the food for these nine august gentlemen would be prepared. But certain of the Justices vetoed this, pointing out that the court lunched sparsely and for the most part in rigid compliance with doctors' orders. So the kitchen was converted into a pantry and food will be sent up by dumb waiter from the cafeteria in the basement.

Nearby is the Justices' private library, oak paneled, and also on this floor is the general library, one of the most distinguished rooms in the building, large enough to accommodate a number of readers. Much of the wall space is ornamented with richly-carved oak. Stack space is provided for about 165,000 books. There will be accumulated here, it is planned, one of the finest law libraries in the country. Also, there is a book tunnel connecting the Supreme Court building with the Library of Congress' law section.

Other Rooms; Space for Court's Files.

There are two huge conference rooms on the main floor, a room for the Attorney-General, a room for the Solicitor-General, a suite for the Marshal and his deputy, and for the clerk of the court. Many rooms have not yet been assigned. For practical purposes there is a great deal of space provided for files, so that records now stored in the attic of the Senate office building, and more or less inaccessible, can be centralized, along with all the other records of the court, in the new building.

The contrast between this palace of justice and the present quarters of the court could hardly be more striking. The courtroom in the Capitol will seat, by dint of crowding, 90 members of the public and 104 members of the bar. The new courtroom has a floor area 60 per cent greater and will seat 180 of the public with ease.

With the court in its present quarters, it is not uncommon to encounter the tall figure of Chief Justice Hughes in a corridor near the court. Often when the Justices walk from the library to the court anteroom across the public hall, Capitol police stretch cords to give them a passage uninterrupted by chance passersby. But they are visible in the flesh, as ordinary men in business suits. In the new building the offices have been so arranged that it will not be necessary for the Justices ever to cross a public corridor in going from their private quarters to the bench, or even in going from their cars, driven into the basement, to their respective suites. It is plain that this will enhance the atmosphere of awe that now surrounds the court.

Court Former Senate Chamber.

Although the new building will be in every way more convenient and efficient than the present quarters of the high court, one may readily understand the earlier reluctance of many of the Justices to leave the present room. For it is a room that seems to bear the actual weight of the past, a kind of patina of history, like the mellow color that comes to aged bronze. The gilt eagle with the scarlet ribbon of liberty in his beak has heard Clay, Webster, Calhoun. Against the pudding-stone columns at the back of the semicircular chamber have echoed the great de-

"Central Europe An Inferno of Hate, Plots and Terrorism"

"State of False Peace Cannot Be Prolonged Indefinitely," Historian Writes. "Even If It Does Not Lead to New Wars, It Will Lead to Revolutions."

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO
GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 9.

A FEW weeks ago I received a visit from one of the most prominent leaders of the Pacifist movement. He is secretary of the leading Peace Society of Europe. He came to complain of increasing indifference of all countries toward the Pacifist movement, and to ask my opinion on this, to him, extraordinary phenomenon.

"The public is indifferent to your movement for two reasons," I replied, "because at the present time there is no serious danger of war, and because the peace enjoyed by Europe is of no value.

"The public will not defend a peace which is not menaced and which is a false peace, when it gives the people none of the satisfactions they have the right to demand of a true peace.

"Peace has always been desired because it gives prosperity, tranquility, confidence, gentleness of manners. In the whole globe there are only two small wars in progress — in China and in Chaco. But almost everywhere poverty is on the increase, everyone is uneasy in mind. No one is sure of the future. The regime of terror is spreading over the earth. It is just as though the world were at war...

"This is an extraordinary situation of which I do not know an analogous case in history."

A famous philosopher of the XVIIth Century, Spinoza, said: "Peace is not the absence of war, it is a virtue." That is to say, a state of mind, a disposition for benevolence, confidence, justice, respect for the rights and merits of others.

Doubts Present Peace.

All peoples and those who govern them should meditate on this profound thought. The peace of our epoch is not a virtue, it is a mere absence of war. The cannon is silent everywhere except in the wild, snake-infested solitudes of Chaco and in cold northern China. But human minds everywhere are mutually hostile, full of hate and distrust.

I do not say that the absence of war, even though it does not mean true peace, is not from many points of view preferable to actual war. For young men between 20 and 40, for instance, it is in any case preferable to struggle painfully to make a position, than to be in the trenches waiting for gas shells or clouds of poison gas. But that is only a negative and transitory advantage.

This state of false peace cannot be prolonged indefinitely; even if it does not lead to new wars, it will lead to revolutions. What the world needs is to attain to a state of true peace, the peace of which Spinoza spoke. What steps must be taken to accomplish this?

From 1914 to 1918 the Great Powers of the world, including the United States and Japan, allowed themselves to be drawn into a war of monstrous proportions, which has ruined the whole world.

War Is Suppressed.

They have reacted to this enormous excess, not by making a solid and complete peace among themselves, but by claiming to suppress war everywhere and forever. If there have been so many wars in history, it is not because humanity was blind or stupid until the moment of the signing of the Kellogg Pact. It is because from time to time questions arise between states, which must be settled, and which they do not succeed in settling by negotiation or arbitration.

They have recourse to war, as the "ultimo ratio," because a more reasonable method does not exist. Can we believe that this necessity, which imposed so many wars in the past, completely disappeared between the years 1919 and 1926?

That is why it would be useless to try to stop the war in the Chaco. It seems to have been proved that the world, as represented by the League of Nations and the Great Powers, is not capable of finding a rational and pacific solution of this conflict.

Moreover, if it were capable, it would not have the means of imposing it on the belligerents. It is better to leave them to settle their conflict by the only remaining means.

The war in the Chaco will not trouble the universe or disturb the march of civilization, any more than many other small wars in history.

I believe that at a more or less distant date wars will be inevitable in Europe also;

Opposes Convention System.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF the Bar Association can find no better remedy for improving the quality of our judiciary than by returning to the outmoded convention system, it had better not waste postage. The curse of our judicial system has been politics. If we want to improve it, we must take away from the parties control of the nomination and election of Judges. Just why a candidate has to be a good Republican or a Democrat to be elected to the bench is an enigma as impenetrable to common sense as a St. Louis smoke screen. Before the American people can reform the bench and bar, they must place an interdict upon politics.

To state that the character of the bench of a generation or two ago was of a finer or more intelligent type is just one of those faded illusions of looking backward. The idiosyncrasies of the standard Judge of yesterday would be just as ridiculously "hammy" as Richard Mansfield in "Strange Interlude." Any discerning student of our social and economic transitions during the past three-quarters of a century cannot but admit that the judiciary elected under the convention system was more responsible for the growth of special privilege and the vested interests than any other contributing factor.

As for the claim that the convention system would once again make the party responsible for the performance of its Judges, why, good old Popeye has a name for it—Pooey!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN your editorial of Feb. 6, in connection with the permanent registration bill now pending in the Legislature, you have attempted to create an impression that I am definitely opposed to a system for permanent registration in St. Louis.

I favor a permanent registration system for the City of St. Louis, but I do not feel that the particular registration bill now pending in the Legislature is proper. ROBERT E. HANNEGAN.

A QUESTION of international importance is up to our Supreme Court for decision: the gold clause in bonds or contracts.

At the start of the World War, there was wide condemnation of Germany for treating her contract with Belgium as a scrap of paper.

An Enterprising Young Man.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A RECENT news dispatch reveals that in New York some enterprising individuals are engaged in the novel business of taking for a daily stroll the canine pets of the apartment dwellers. Reading between the lines, one is convinced this is another of the vocations engendered by hard times, another of the instances of men who, unable to find jobs, have created jobs. To cite a local case:

When the depression was at its height (or rather, depth), a young man, begoggled and astride a motorcycle, operated nightly in the vicinity of Kingshighway and Lindell boulevards. If a car came by with only one head lamp burning, or with no tail light, he promptly put-putted alongside and waved the driver toward the curb. Most of the motorists accosted in this manner, mistaking him for a traffic officer, obeyed with alacrity. His procedure then was to inform the driver that one of his bulbs was out and to offer to replace it. In the majority of cases, the driver assented. According to report, it was not unusual for the young man to make $7 or $8 in the course of a Saturday or a Sunday night. He has not been seen about his old haunts of late, and it is presumed his ingenuity has led him to even greater rewards.

For Cheap Gas and Coke.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is always darkest before dawn, and now I read that the sun is getting ready to break through our smoky skies.

Thanks to the Post-Dispatch and our active Mayor, we now have hopes of cheap gas and coke. We trust that the plan will be quickly handled so that we can face another winter with a light heart and clean curtains.

OLGA RYAN.

THE CHILD LABOR AMENDMENT.

The proposed Federal child labor amendment, which has twice failed of ratification by the Missouri State Legislature, is being put forward by its supporters for a third time. It should be defeated.

The amendment was definitely voted down by the states 10 years ago, and the effort now to resurrect it, we are persuaded, savors of sharp legislative practice. Consider the facts. Submitted by Congress to the states in June, 1924, the amendment by the following March had been rejected by 13 states, a sufficient number to defeat it under the requirement of a three-fourths majority. The rejections continued to pile up until, within less than a year from the date of submission, the proposal had been adversely acted upon by one or both branches of 34 legislatures. This overwhelming rejection came in a period when the congressional debate preceding the submission of the amendment was fresh in the public mind and the issue was well understood. It was generally assumed that the amendment was dead. Washington bureau officials who had worked for its ratification considered it dead.

In 1933 the drive for ratification was resumed, in the hope that the states which had gone against the amendment would reverse themselves in sufficient numbers to give it the necessary three-fourths. This movement has now succeeded to the point where 24 states are on record for the amendment, leaving 12 to be obtained.

If this goal is reached this year, the amendment will have been before the states for 11 years. Would ratification after so long a period be sanctioned by the Supreme Court? There is no decision that definitely settles the question, but the court has ruled (Dillon vs. Gloss, 1921) that the ratification of an amendment "must be within some reasonable time after the proposal." If that common-sense dictum were not enforced, a proposed amendment might hang fire for a hundred years, might be voted down again and again, and yet might be written into the Constitution under circumstances utterly different from those that prompted its submission by Congress.

In the opinion referred to, the court said it was a "fair implication" from the Constitution that ratification of an amendment "must be sufficiently contemporaneous" in three-fourths of the states "to reflect the will of the people in all sections at relatively the same period, which of course ratification scattered through a long series of years would not do." The court quoted approvingly from a writer on the Constitution who said that "an alteration of the Constitution today has relation to the sentiment and the felt needs of today" and that "if not ratified early while that sentiment may fairly be supposed to exist, it ought to be regarded as waived. and not again to be voted upon, unless a second time proposed by Congress."

The question then arises: What is a reasonable time? It is perhaps significant that in each of the three instances in which Congress has fixed a time limit for the ratification of an amendment, it has fixed seven years. Also, it is to be noted that the longest period that any amendment has actually required for adoption is under four years. If the child labor amendment is ratified this year, it will have been before the states almost three times as long as any other successful amendment.

We submit that 11 years exceeds a reasonable time for ratification.

Upon consideration of the arguments on both sides, and in the light of events since the amendment was first proposed, we are against the amendment on its merits. It would build still higher the towering bureaucratic structure at Washington—a structure that has grown enormously in the last few years. It would diminish still further the rights and the duties of the states to deal with local problems in ways best suited to their respective needs. It would write a set of police powers into the Constitution—something against which we should have been sufficiently warned by our unhappy experience with the eighteenth amendment.

The amendment is more than a proposal to prohibit child labor. It provides that "the Congress shall have the power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age." That is a sweeping grant. It is a grant of power not only over employment but over labor, and over the labor of youths of both sexes up to the age of 18. It is argued that we can trust Congress not to abuse that power. So it was argued in the case of the eighteenth amendment—and we found ourselves saddled with the Volstead Act and the Jones 5-and-10 law. The Supreme Court has held in a long line of decisions that an express power vested in Congress "may be exercised to its utmost extent." When the amendment was before Congress, every effort to restrict the proposed power was voted down.

It is argued that the amendment should be adopted as a means of equalizing competition throughout the United States. If this is a valid line of reasoning, then Congress should have the power to go further and regulate the conditions of adult labor everywhere in the United States. The fact that competitive advantages exist in the vast area of the United States, advantages often due to natural causes, is no sound argument for loading down the Constitution with amendments.

No right-thinking person wants the exploitation of child labor. The states are making steady progress toward the elimination of this evil, just as they were making steady progress in rational control of the liquor traffic when the eighteenth amendment was adopted. There are backward states, to be sure, but the fact of their backwardness does not justify the abandonment of our fundamental distinction between national and local governments. We have had enough and too much of that sort of thing in the last few years.

Concretely, the backwardness of certain states does not warrant a constitutional amendment giving Congress the power, through a new Federal bureaucracy at Washington, to "limit, regulate and prohibit" the labor, of whatever character and wherever performed, of every person under 18 years of age in all the states.

We do not need to burn down the house in order to fumigate a closet.

OHIO JOINS THE LIST.

Following the lead of Illinois, Iowa, Virginia, Maine and a dozen other states, the present administration in Ohio has authorized a study of the structure of the State Government with a view to reorganization in the interest of efficiency and economy. That Gov. Davey means the survey to be a productive undertaking can be judged from his choice of Col. C. O. Sherrill of Cincinnati to direct it. Former Director of Public Buildings and Parks in the District of Columbia, and more recently the first city manager of Cincinnati, Col. Sherrill is widely known as an able administrator of public affairs. Missourians can only regret that while other states move forward in the matter of governmental modernization, Missouri does not make the most of its opportunities.

AS TO MR. HANNEGAN.

We are delighted to print today a letter from Chairman Hannegan of the Democratic City Committee, in which he says we were wrong in creating the impression that he is opposed to permanent registration. We were led to suppose that to be his position because of his expressed objections to the Walsh permanent registration bill.

We have long favored permanent registration because (1) it is far more economical than the present system and would save the taxpayers of St. Louis from $75,000 to $100,000 a year, a potent argument in times like these; (2) because it ministers to the convenience of voters, who are not compelled to re-register every four years; (3) because it contains such strong safeguards against fraud as the signature requirement.

Those are the three basic virtues of a permanent registration bill and they are contained in the Walsh bill, now pending. However, we are not wedded to the Walsh bill, as such. If Mr. Hannegan can produce a bill of his own to set up a sound system of permanent registration, by all means let him do so. Success of such a bill would redound to the benefit of himself and his party, to say nothing of satisfying a great and growing public demand.

Aside from being chairman of the Democratic City Committee, Mr. Hannegan is the city's official legislative representative at Jefferson City. He is in an ideal position to act on this question. For our part, we should like nothing better than to sit back and watch his smoke.

THE NEW HEAD OF THE RED CROSS.

In the appointment of Admiral Cary T. Grayson as national chairman of the Red Cross, to succeed the late John Barton Payne, there is assurance that there will be no lowering of the high standards of that organization and no change in its non-political character.

Admiral Grayson, or, as he prefers to be called, Dr. Grayson, is a Virginia gentleman in the best sense of that abused term—which means not only that he has personal charm, but that he is imbued with the sense of noblesse oblige which has made Virginia outstanding in its services to the nation. It tells a good deal of Cary Grayson's character to say that he is a close personal friend of Senator Carter Glass. They are chips off the same block of rugged integrity. The appointment of Dr. Grayson does credit to the President.

ENGLAND'S FASCIST MOVEMENT.

Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the British Union of Fascists, has taken his organization's name, its symbol, its salute and its shirts from the Italian model. Now he follows the German pattern in creating a special guard, to be known as the "Elite Section," and to occupy the position held in its heyday by Hitler's Schutzstaffel. These men will present an innovation in British public affairs, being committed to the use of violence as an instrument of party policy.

This development should help inform the British public, devoted as it is to free speech and an untrammeled franchise, as to what Fascism means. The avowed use of violence is a typical Fascist tactic, and has historical precedent in Italy, Germany and elsewhere. The Nazis, in fact, first came to public attention through the energy with which they broke up opponents' meetings, picked street brawls and administered beatings. Mosley's Fascist program has other typical characteristics: the appeal to patriotism, the denunciation of Parliament as a futile debating society, the alluring picture of blessings under dictatorial rule, the vague promises of general reform.

Will Fascism, now an active movement in England, triumph there as it did in Italy and Germany? No one can say, but it has a great obstacle to overcome in the traditional British devotion to democratic institutions and the suspicion of imported doctrines. Perhaps a greater obstacle is the strong British labor movement, politically revivified since its past setbacks, and fully aware of labor's fate in the countries where Fascism has triumphed.

KEY TO MISS STEIN.

Our class in pronunciation today will consider the location of 300 acres of land in Wales which a philanthropist has given to the Government. The acres are in Nant Gwynant, the valley between Beddgelert and Pen-y-Gwyrd. The land adjoins Llyn Dinas. We'll bet that's where Gertrude Stein hails from.

FRITZ KREISLER'S DECEPTION.

After 30 years Fritz Kreisler's sin has found him out. The man has been practicing a rare, perhaps unique, imposture. He has been stealing from himself. He has been taking the riches of his own mind and accrediting them to old masters long gone, and an enraptured world has joyed and wept and thanked, in many orisons, "the wondrous name of God."

Possibly here and there the stern, unbending moralist may be found to condemn this deception, the reason for which will only further endear the artist to his enslaved legions. Paradoxical as it may seem, the reason for this misrepresentation was the man's artistic integrity, plus a dash of modesty. Early in his career, he explains, he was confronted with the necessity of enlarging his programs, and he thought it tactless to repeat his own name over and over. So in the good cause he drafted colleagues from the bourne whence none returns—Porpora, Pugnanin, Couperin and Padre Martini—to speak in words that "never brag or lie or flatter or malign."

There have been instances, to be sure, of fictitious plagiarism wherein the real author ascribed his work to another. The classic case is that of Chatterton, "the wonderful boy who perished in his youth." Our own James Whitcomb Riley, in his impish youth, hoaxed the pundits into accepting a tattered, counterfeited manuscript as one of Poe's lost poems. And the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam plunged the cognoscenti into furious debate as to whether Fitzgerald was a modern stoic, indifferent to fame, who had found a plausible alibi in Persia's jocund poet and despairing philosopher.

Kreisler's motive, frankly acknowledged, somehow ennobles the pretense. And the wish may occur to some that for once a hushed voice could be recalled, that Grautier by miraculous clemency, might be granted a brief parole to tell us, as he alone of mortals could, the glory of Fritz Kreisler's violin.

Rise of the Nazis

A HISTORY OF NATIONAL SOCIALISM. By Konrad Heiden. (Alfred A. Knopf, New York City.)

THE world's most successful and efficient political organization is, without question, the National Socialist German Workers' party, customarily and more briefly known as the Nazi party. This organization has done more than capture control of its country's Government, for the party now is the Government. Nor has it been content to dominate merely the governmental structure, but has placed its swastika brand on every phase of the people's activity.

The basis of the Nazi party's sweeping control is the spoils system, developed to epic heights. Not only governmental posts but private positions, social benefits, even citizenship and sometimes life itself, depend on the individual's attitude toward the party. No political minority embarrasses the ruling majority with criticisms, for both political opposition and criticism have been abolished. Parliamentary discussion has given way to dictation from above.

To reach such perfection of control, a tremendously efficient party machine and a leadership of overwhelming personal powers are required. How did this super-party develop, and how did it win its complete mastery over Germany? Konrad Heiden can and does answer these questions, as the result of his long study of the party. For 15 years he has watched its growth, attended Nazi meetings, pored over the speeches, documents and books emanating from the movement. As political correspondent for the Frankfurter Zeitung, he reported the stages of its development.

Heiden's two books on the subject—"History of National Socialism" (1932) and "Birth of the Third Reich" (1934)—are considered the most authoritative in all the mass of literature that has come out of the German revolution. The present volume is a translation of the greater part of those books, plus a final chapter analyzing the happenings of 1934, forming together a 428-page study of the movement.

The writer is definitely anti-Nazi, having been of Republican convictions since his student days. Despite his personal sentiments, which meant exile for him and the banning of his books, he presents his facts with a scientist's impartiality. In this objectivity lies the value of his work to those who would understand the Nazi movement. Because he tells the story in such full and unprejudiced detail, his adverse conclusions take on a greater weight.

Heiden's portraits of Nazi leaders differ considerably from those found in the flood of apologetic and denunciatory literature that the Third Reich has loosed. Hitler to him is a man of mediocre will but great brain. "The planning of his campaign for power is an intellectual achievement of a high order," Heiden says. "As a mob leader, Hitler is unrivaled today and almost unequaled in history."

The whole history of Nazi-ism naturally centers about Hitler, though he was not the founder of the movement. That forgotten man was an obscure locksmith, Anton Drexler. Hitler joined the tiny party in 1919, and became the seventh member of its "inner cell." Soon he had altered its objectives, captured control and Drexler was thrust into oblivion.

This is a theme repeated often in National Socialism's development. It has never hesitated to cast out leading figures when their usefulness ended, or to alter its course as new needs arose, or different appeals to public sentiment seemed necessary. Opponents in the struggling Republic were weak and confused, and Nazi leaders took prompt advantage. A scapegoat was needed for the people's troubles, and the Nazis preached anti-Semitism. Violence was adopted early to put down all activities that, to quote Dr. Goebbels, were "likely to distract the minds of our fellow nationals, which are in any case liable to waver."

All instruments of propaganda were developed to the highest efficiency. And when ruin threatened, "Declining National Socialism and declining capitalism spent their last effort in helping one another to rise anew." So wide and general were the leaders' promises, says Heiden, that every kind of political theory was at length represented in the party, subject to only one condition: "Unconditional submission to Hitler's personal leadership."

How the party rose to its heights of supremacy is an involved and exciting story, which the writer traces with a sure, skillful hand. The chief secrets of its triumph at length become evident—wizard-like expediency plus dictatorial leadership, backed by force. The book is a full-length study of this unprecedented movement, and a volume of solid historical worth. F. G.

HEAVEN'S MY DESTINATION. By Thornton Wilder. (Harper & Brothers, New York City.)

THORNTON WILDER, by his past conduct, deserves to be considered sincere in his dramatizations of philosophy, but the reader of "Heaven's My Destination" becomes frequently and uneasily suspicious that he is being laughed at. For just what, if anything, Wilder attempts to prove in this uproarious saga of a textbook salesman who irritates the world is impossible to say without further elucidation from the author.

If this six-foot, 23-year-old evangelist named Brush preached only the tenets of Christ and Gandhi, Wilder's indulgence of him would be understandable; but he declaims, too, against woman smokers, drinkers of both genders and Sunday travelers. His earthly ambition is to found "an American home," and the loveliest spot short of his destination is, to his mind, the Sunday dinner table when mother and father and six children gather round. In short, he's a Middle Western nuisance, bent with epic dignity upon reaching Heaven.

Wilder seems to like him. So do we, in spots, but there are moments when we fairly yearn for his incarnation so that, like the more intelligent characters in the book, we may sock his logical, prudish head. Perhaps the key to Wilder's attitude lies in the fact that Brush has everything but imagination, and the more imagination the other characters have, the more un-Christianly they behave.

In "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," Wilder dealt with the problems of life and death in a mood of poetic mysticism. To him the saddest of all things were the incommunicability of human love, the inequality of love in all human relationships and the inability of human beings to grieve at the graves of friends when the sun is shining.

In "Heaven's My Destination," he settles down to examine the basic tenets of Christianity in the light of constant, even raucous, hilarity. Pathos is rigidly restrained, and a terse idiom and comic viewpoint are maintained throughout. The adventures of George Marvin Brush in a naughty world are, in fact, rollickingly funny.

One thing only is certain in this latest novel of Wilder's, and that is that the sincere and ever-successful Brush will reach his destination. S. F.

ARMS AND MUNITIONS. Compiled and Edited by Joseph H. Baccus. (Noble & Noble, Inc., New York City.)

THIS first volume in the Pi Kappa Delta Series is designed primarily as an aid to college and university debaters, but all who are interested in the problems of armaments and war will find in it a wealth of information. The compiler, who is a member of the department of speech in the University of Redlands, Redlands, Cal., has gathered material from a wide variety of sources, including the bulletins of the Foreign Policy Association, the Congressional Record, the Information Service of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and a host of magazines. Moreover, the book is a key to much more information, since it contains a 30-page bibliography, listing books, magazine articles, brochures and pamphlets on munitions and implements of war.

Presumably, debaters on both sides of the question will use the book. Accordingly, there is an analysis of the proposition, "Resolved: That the nations should agree to prevent international shipments of arms and munitions," which states concisely and fairly the arguments pro and con. I. D.

OUR PLANET—The Blue Book of Maps. (C. S. Hammond & Co., New York City.)

WITH the shortening of world distances in terms of time, the publishers of this encyclopedic atlas of the world have undertaken to correlate in a comprehensive book of reference the many aspects of the last decades of scientific advance as they impinge on geography. The result is, in one compact volume of 239 pages, a geographical encyclopedia of physical, economic, topographical, political, historical and statistical information.

For the mapping of the 200,000,000 square miles of the earth's surface there are 224 colored plates, with an accompanying index listing 50,000 place names. The statistical data cover the earth and the solar system, length of degrees of longitude, principal waterways, largest rivers and canals, famous waterfalls, principal islands, highest mountains, voyages of discovery and exploration, notable flights, etc. The descriptive gazetteer is colorfully illustrated, and there are colored historical, classical and religious maps, physical and economic maps, state maps and foreign political maps.

The book, so compact as to be convenient for private as well as public libraries and for student use, was in preparation for four years, and is said to have cost in excess of $100,000. F. A. B.

'BABY BOND' ISSUE DETAILS; FIRST TO GO ON SALE MAR. 1

Only Question of 2.5 or 2.9 Pct. Average Discount Rate Remains to Be Settled by Treasury.

ROSEVELT TO BUY NO. 1 OF SERIES A

Offering Made to Small Investors — Secretary Morgenthau Thinks Figure May Exceed Billion.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb., 9.—As soon as the Treasury Department can decide between a discount rate that will average 2.5 per cent or 2.9 per cent a year, the Bureau of Engraving will begin printing millions of "baby bonds" for sale through postoffices to small investors.

These bonds, officially known as United States savings bonds, will be in denominations of $25, $50, $100, $500 and $1000, maturing at the end of 10 years.

President Roosevelt is to buy the first bond and series A of the issue will be offered to the public March 1. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthou has said that he expects the thrifty small investors to buy several hundred million dollars worth of these bonds. Eventually, according to Treasury officials, the figure may run over the billion dollar figure.

Questions to Be Decided.

The question the Treasury officials are trying to decide is whether the sale price of the bonds shall be $18.75 for a $25 bond; $37.50 for a $50 bond; $75 for a $100 bond $375 for a $500 bond and $750 for a $1000 bond, or whether the sale prices shall be respectively $19.50; $39; $78; $390, and $780.

If the lower sales price is adopted, the interest paid for the 10 years would be 2.9 per cent compounded annually; if the higher sale price is approved, the rate would be 2.5 per cent. Stated another way the interest rate would be 3.33 per cent not compounded if the bond were held until maturity.

The "baby bonds" will actually be discount certificates of the Treasury, and the increment received by the purchaser will not be the 2.9 or the 2.5 per cent annually unless the bond is held until maturity.

For instance, if a person bought a $100 bond for $75 he could not redeem it until 60 days had elapsed and would then get only what he had actually paid for it. If he held the bond for a year before redemption he would receive about 1 per cent, according to present tentative plans; if he redeemed the bond after two years, he would receive an increment amounting to an annual interest rate of about 1½ per cent.

Exact Tables Not Worked Out.

The exact tables of redemption have not yet been worked out because the Treasury officials have not yet decided whether the sale price shall be on a $75 or a $78 to $100 basis. The redemption table, calculated on a six-month basis, will be printed on the bond.

The bonds will be on sale at all first, second and third class postoffices and in fourth class postoffices which are at a county seat. They will be sold by the postmaster and will contain the owner's name, address, date of issue and date of maturity. Series B, C, D, etc., of the bonds will be issued out later.

The bonds will not be transferable and will be virtually non-negotiable because they are not assignable. The owner alone can redeem the bonds either at the Treasury Department division of loans and currency or at a Federal Reserve Bank. Like a Government check, they are immune from attachment, and like a Liberty bond—they are issued under the Liberty Loan Act of 1917—they are tax-exempt except for estate taxes and surtaxes, in the latter instance if the principal is not more than $5000.

$10,000 Limit Per Person.

No person can legally hold more than $10,000 face value of these bonds. There are several reasons for this according to Treasury officials. One is that the bonds are issued primarily for the small investor. Another is that what amounts to a low interest rate is above what the Treasury is now paying on short term loans.

The Treasury is now getting six-month money at one-fourth of one per cent interest; the "baby bond" holder who redeems the bond at the end of six months will probably get one-half of one per cent interest. Thus the Treasury would be paying twice the present rate on large sums of money. A third reason is that the Treasury wants the bonds in the hands of a great many investors so that it will not be required to pay out large sums at any particular time to meet redemptions.

If present plans are carried out, a new series of the bonds will be issued every month, to be retired at the end of a 10-year period. Under these plans there would be no great funds needed for maturities at any one time.

One of the questions under discussion is whether the bonds shall be assignable to a bank for collection. Under this plan, the bonds might be negotiable for loans. Treasury officials explained today that under the present plans, the bonds could not be used as collateral for a loan because they are not transferable. They pointed out, however, that the bonds could be used as a memorandum of ownership of property to back up a character loan.

PLAY LINCOLN WAS SEEING WHEN SHOT TO BE REVIVED

Chicago Historical Society to Dim Lights at Lines Spoken as Booth Fired.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—"Our American Cousin," the play Lincoln was watching the night of April 14, 1865, when he was shot, will be presented in the Auditorium of the Chicago Historical Society Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Tuesday is Lincoln's birthday.

While players take their cues in the comedy which Lincoln smiled at in Ford's Theater, the lights of the auditorium will dim at lines where the shots of the mad actor, Booth, rang out 70 years ago.

In another room of the society's quarters here, there will be a copy of the Petersen bedroom in Washington, in which Lincoln died, containing the bed on which the great emancipator lay, with the same sheets and the pillow cases.

One of the six manuscripts of the Gettysburg address which were written in Lincoln's own hand has been loaned to the society and will be exhibited under the eyes of a military guard.

For the first time, Charles B. Pike, president of the society, said the White House piano which served Lincoln will be played in a radio broadcast at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

RHODE ISLAND GOVERNOR FOR STATE CHILD LABOR LAW

Believes That Is Best Way to Accomplish Result Since People Oppose Federal Amendment.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 9.—Gov. Green said today that in view of the fact that the people of Rhode Island apparently were against ratification of the Federal child labor amendment he thought the "best way to accomplish the desired result is to pass a special law abolishing child labor in this State."

The Governor said he was much as ever in favor of abolishing child labor and did not agree entirely with those who fear that the wording of the proposed amendment is too broad, but he felt that passage of the so-called "Baby NRA" act for this State would be sufficient to achieve the abolition of child labor.

Supreme Court Soon to Occupy New Building

bates, the great speeches, the classic farewells of a day when the Federal Government was a forum for brilliant and learned orators. The United States Senate occupied the Supreme Court room from 1800 to 1859, and the court sat then in the room now occupied by the law library.

Here Calhoun said farewell in a speech that thundered and flashed with the fire of ante-bellum oratory. A few days later Calhoun died and his body lay in state in the Senate chamber, which was draped in black. Clay, "the picture of Southern gallantry," made two famous farewell orations and was likewise given a state funeral in the chamber in which he had so long served. Jefferson took the oath of office as President in the historic room in the presence of Chief Justice Marshall and the entire Government.

Here Senator Benton of Missouri and Senator Foote had their historic quarrel, that came close to bloodshed. And here Sumner as a Senator was unmercifully beaten with a cane by Col. Brooks of South Carolina. Here the Hayes-Tilden election dispute was settled by the Electoral Commission.

Changes in Room Since 1859.

The room was but little changed when the Senate left it in 1859. It has been two stories in height. It was reduced to one. A small gallery that extended all around the room was taken down, except at the back, immediately behind the bench where the Justices sit. Incidentally, this remaining gallery has been occupied only once since 1859, when the Electoral Commission sat in the room to pass on the Hayes-Tilden dispute.

And the life of the Justices in the Capitol has varied but little in the past 75 years. Many of them have chosen to do the greater part of their work at home, where they have found more quiet and convenience. If they stay for lunch, it is most often brought in to them on a tray, a sandwich or two and a glass of milk. Their present offices, which are not large, are on the floor above the actual chamber. They confer occasionally in a room off the court chamber itself, where the furniture is very old, consisting chiefly of a number of hair-cloth chairs, described as "a cross between an ancient ottoman and he curule chair of a Roman Senator."

The act of Congress, providing $9,740,000 for the new building and its furnishings, passed in December of 1929, stipulated that these rooms, or at any rate the courtroom itself, should be preserved as a historic shrine. Whether this will mean that the room will be in a certain measure restored to the state in which it was when the Senate occupied it, or be kept in its present condition, has not yet been determined. The vacated offices of the Justice, the clerk and the Marshal will be at the disposal of the Senate Committee on Rules, and, as veteran observers of the Capitol point out, the Committee on Rules never has any difficulty disposing of additional space. For one thing, every Senator is anxious to get some sort of private office in the Capitol proper.

Decisions on "New Deal" Laws.

History as significant as any in the past is being made in the old courtroom. Decisions of far-reaching import, such as that invalidating Congress' delegation of power to the President to regulate the production of oil, under the National Industrial Recovery Act, are being handed down from the bench. And the chamber rings with arguments over the experiments that the Government has embarked upon during the past two or three years. The gold clause, the NRA codes, the AAA limitation of production, arguments on these significant changes write a fitting close to a long epoch of American life that has played itself out in this room.

The room, empty as a shrine, will be a different room. Nor will the life of the court be the same when for the first time in the splendor of the new chamber, the court crier cries: "Oyez and oyez and oyez! All persons having business before the Honorable the Supreme Court of the United States are admonished to draw near and give their attention; for the court is now sitting. God save the United States and this honorable court." And when he cries at the close of that historic session, "This honorable court is now adjourned," the highest tribunal of the land will have entered upon a new phase.

"What One Hand Does in New Deal Undone by Other"

they were back again. For in concentrating its efforts on making deposits once more available in the easiest and quickest way (for use of capitalists), the Roosevelt administration salvaged private banking, the greatest instrument of capital control. There is little doubt that in those crucial days the New Deal could have nationalized our banking system. During the week Mr. Roosevelt was God. But he elected to compromise and the New Deal has been compromised ever since.

"At the end of the banking holiday, the thousands of banks which failed to reopen were, with a few middling exceptions, the petty service banks of the middle classes. The great institutions of capital control were among the very first authorized to reopen, despite the highly questionable nature of their portfolios. The administration continued as a matter of course the Hoover policy of lending public cash to private banks. And when the banks ran short of acceptable collateral, it out-Hoovered Hoover in furnishing them with a further $850,000,00 through the purchase of their preferred stocks and capital notes. Moreover, to protect the little man, an elaborate system of deposit insurance was set up, which, paradoxically, by increasing public confidence in private banking, tightened its grip on our whole economy."

The inner contradiction of political democracy, "no matter how 'progressive,'" the authors say, is that in protecting the slight property interest of the middle classes which vote in into power, it at the same time protects the holdings of "big ownership." In saving the widow's mite, it also saves the Morgan bank, Stolberg and Vinton assert. And in this arises the confusion of the middle classes, according to the author's interpretation. The middle class identifies itself, to its own undoing, with "big ownership."

"Synthesis of Errors."

Essentially, the authors say, in the chapter called "Roosevelt Panaceas," the New Deal is a "well intentioned synthesis of errors." What it accomplishes in one direction, they add, it undoes in another. The basic paradox, they write, is the New Deal dream of making "big ownership" accept an economy of abundance, whereas in actual fact capitalism is "an economy of measured scarcity."

"But since it is in the nature of panaceas," the authors write, "to mistake their objectives the New Deal goes right on believing that it is socially planning towards a more abundant life. And to reassure itself it has set up the National Consumers Board to attempt to undo exactly what the NRA and the AAA were set up to do. The purely academic function of this board is to organize the notoriously unorganized consumer to brave the massed power of Big Industry in its drive toward scarcity."

The authors seek to puncture one of the most persistent New Deal theories—that all that is necessary to start a business revival is to make credit resources readily available. In the spring of 1934, they point out, the Federal Reserve Board sent out questionnaires to find out how much of the huge sums that lay idle in the banks might be lent.

"It received 6024 replies from banks and Chambers of Commerce. They replied that the smaller manufacturers and business men ought to borrow from the Big Fellows to replenish the capital of which they had been relieved in the depression. They estimated that $662,000,000 could well be used, which would put to work 350,000 people."

Loans Begin.

The obvious conclusion seemed to be that private banks had been far too cautious and therefore the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Federal Reserve Board decided they would make these loans. The Governor of the Federal Reserve Board decided that $300,000,000 would be "enough for the next year, or the next six months." The RFC set aside $280,000,000 for direct loans to industry.

"It turned out to be far too much. The little fellows refused to bite. Up to the end of October, 1934, they borrowed from the Federal Reserve banks only $6,226,000 and from the RFC somewhat less than $4,000,000.

"In short, industry borrowed less than 2 per cent of the proffered $580,000,000. The little fellows didn't borrow. For one thing their credit was poor, just as the private bankers had known; and for another they lacked confidence in business revival and rightly feared to get in deeper than they already were. As for big industry, it didn't have to borrow. It has more cash in reserve than it knows what to do with. Those who have the credit have the money, and those who need the money have no credit."

Since the publication of "The Economic Consequences of the New Deal," the failure of the loans-to-industry policy has been given an airing on the floor of the Senate in connection with the bill to extend the life of the RFC. Senators were puzzled and annoyed that more of the $580,000,000 had not been lent and they voted to liberalize the terms under which money may be borrowed from the Government lending agency. But Chairman Jesse Jones of the RFC has indicated that this will make no essential difference in RFC policy.

"Priming the Pump."

Stolberg and Vinton also challenge the "priming the pump" theory of the New Deal which held that large sums spent for Public Works would start the business machine toward recovery. Far from "priming the pump," the authors declare, this has been in practice simply a process of pouring a little water into an empty well and then pumping it out again. Not only is a large part of the $3,700,000,000 allotted to Public Works still unspent, but much that has been spent has gone to the Navy, the Army, and to "make-work projects" under the CWA and the CCC, they maintain. These latter, the authors say, can by no stretch of the imagination stimulate the capital goods industries.

Of the remaining money spent for Public Works, Stolberg and Vinton point out, a considerable share has gone for "traditional Federal aid in road building" and for "the equally traditional Federal task of improving rivers and harbors." In addition, $798,000,000 has gone for sewers, water works, and street paving that would normally be paid for by municipalities. Merely maintaining expenditures in these traditional government fields cannot possibly stimulate the heavy industries, the authors hold. Only $146,000,000 has been allotted for low cost housing, the authors say, while the railroads have received in so-called "Public Works" loans $200,000,000.

The actual fact, Stolberg and Vinton insist, is that less is being spent on Federal and local public works than during the boom years up to 1929.

Although labor's position under the New Deal has been actually lowered, "Big Business, with the aid of the NRA, has been extracting greatly enlarged profits from our stricken society. Our great industrial corporations increased their profits during the first nine months of 1934 by 76 per cent as against the same period in 1933." The authors quote the New York Times business index to show startling increases in profits.

"When profits rise while wages lag," they say in conclusion, "it means but one thing. It means that behind the vivid confusion of the New Deal, the redistribution of the national income is stealthily and fatally progressing upwards, and that the power of Big Ownership is steadily enlarging. And unless the Government succeeds in reversing this disastrous process, Big Ownership is bound to intensify the crisis in the long run.

"There is nothing the New Deal has so far done that could not have been done better by an earthquake. A first-rate earthquake, from coast to coast, could have reestablished scarcity much more effectively, and put all the survivors to work for the greater glory of Big Business—with far more speed and far less noise than the New Deal."

Central Europe Inferno of Hate, Ferrero Declares

but they ought to be wars between small Powers.

Balkan Problems.

Why is the problem of Central Europe becoming insoluble? There are five small states—Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, Austria, Rumania and Yugoslavia—which all with equal energy claim contradictory rights.

There are only two ways of settling these conflicts: Either by submitting the five states to a superior authority which would decide each one's rights, or by allowing them to fight, so that each state could proportion its rights and pretensions to its strength. Strength is rather an uncivilized way of measuring right; but when there are no others!

Today both of these solutions are impossible. The higher authority which would decide the rights of each State in a definite manner, enforcing acceptance of its decision, does not exist.

The Great Powers are not in agreement between themselves. The League of Nations is without authority.

But the Great Powers, if they are not capable of deciding between the small states of Central Europe, at least succeed in preventing them from fighting, for fear of being drawn into the conflict themselves.

In this manner the disagreements of Central Europe are becoming exasperated to the point of insolubility. Each people measures its pretensions, not according to a higher principle, or according to its real strength, but according to its right, of which it is the sole judge.

Each people ends by convincing itself that it is entirely in the right and that the adversary is entirely in the wrong. The center of Europe has thus become an inferno of hate, intrigue, plots and terrorism.

Would Not Interfere.

The questions of Central Europe will only be soluble on the day when the Great Powers permit the small states to settle their quarrels between themselves, only exercising a moderating influence on the eventual excesses of their conflicts.

A small war bewteen two of these small States, if the Great Powers do not join in it, might serve from time to time to limit any exaggerated pretensions which rebel against reason.

Moreover, it is in this way that one day or another the insoluble situation of Central Europe will be resolved. The Great Powers will allow the small powers to make war on each other.

If the Great Powers continue to join in the small conflicts, as they have done for 15 years, without having the authority and the unity of views necessary to impose reasonable solutions, we shall never emerge from the present disorder and uneasiness.

Truces Are Illusions.

There will only be short periods of truce, which for a few months will give the illusion of a definite solution.

It may appear strange that in order to lead the world to a true peace, the possibility of wars, even small and limited, should be admissable in Europe.

But that is the law of life. The true peace, which is a virtue, is only possible through renunication and sacrifice.

What is in fact taking place today? The Great Powers, including the United States and Japan, do not want war anywhere, on any continent, for they are too much afraid of the consequences.

But to have true peace everywhere they would have to make so many renunications and sacrifices of all kinds that they prefer not to make any.

Thus the world has fallen into the disorder and uneasiness of a false peace.

It would be much better were the Great Powers to make the necessary renunications and sacrifices, so as to establish true peace within their sphere of action, even if outside this sphere small wars continued to occur from time to time. There would thus be some hope of saving at least the vital centers of Western civilization from the disorder which is increasing daily.

SEEKS MORE PWA AID IN SMOKE EXPERIMENTS

Washington U. Engineering School Applies for Grant of Several Thousand Dollars.

Washington University's engineering school has applied to the PWA for a grant of several thousand dollars to continue experiments on the elimination of smoke.

Hugh Miller, State engineer of the PWA, said yesterday it was understood that the application met with the approval of the City Plan Commission and that it would be listed as a desirable undertaking in the national inventory of public works being made at the direction of Administrator Ickes.

Prof. A. S. Langsdorf, dean of the engineering school and vice-chairman of the City Plan Commission, called the attention of Miller's office to the work being done at the university. Experiments have been made by Dr. Philip A. Shaffer of the medical school on the use of catalyzers, or agents of chemical change, to promote the oxidation of organic substances.

This led to a study of the effect of catalyzers in promoting combustion of the volatile substances in smoke. Several small models were built to show the possibility of eliminating smoke completely in burning soft coal, with the use of catalyzers. Results were so interesting that it was desired to continue the work with ordinary household heating apparatus; also to investigate the effect of catalyzers on sulphur, and to determine cost of installing and operating furnaces equipped with catalyzing auxiliaries.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 10, 1935.

Fancy Prices for Broadway Shows As Movie Fare

"Anything Goes," Musical Comedy Leader, Sells For $100,000 to Screen.

HOWEVER inferior the movies may look to the pundits of dramatic art along Broadway, the fact remains that this season, as indeed for many before, sundry impresarios, authors and performers are courting Hollywood for financial rewards.

Although a show may not be able to garner any great success in New York, it often is excellent material for movie adaptation and the sale of movie rights has many times in recent years paid production costs and something to spare. Half of the gains usually go to the author and half to the manager.

The motion picture rights, moreover, may never be utilized. There was the case last year of Paramount, paying $75,000 for the ribald comedy, "Sailor, Beware," which, even before the clean-up drive presented something of a problem to the studio and which since has been more or less just one of those things on the balance sheet.

Nearly any stage play or musical comedy, however, can be used by Hollywood in some form, even if a few little matters like a new plot, new dialogue, a few spare characters and songs have to be added. And Hollywood is willing to pay.

CONSIDER the current musical comedy success "Anything Goes" which looked worth $100,000 in movie rights to the West Coast. Now "Anything Goes" is one of the most enthusiastically comical extravaganzas seen on the Rialto in years, and immensely popular, but it would take several blue moons to make it worth on Broadway what it was to Hollywood.

"Merrily We Roll Along," the play which runs backwards and which ought to be a cinch for the mechanical accomplishments of the camera, has left New York for a brief run on the road. It brought an extra 75-grand, as they say in the movies, from the picture men.

To show their hospitality toward a new star, Warner Brothers paid $72,500 for the only moderately successful, "Page Miss Glory" and sent it over to Marion Davies' dressing-room. The same studio incidentally goes most of the other fellows one better by backing plays on Broadway, without as yet, however, any phenomenal success.

The movies themselves have been raising the prices in the last few years, having nearly doubled the average for anything they consider good. Some offerings, some successes even, are passed up because of the subject of which they treat. To date, there appears to be no rush to get "The Children's Hour." which is almost the epitome of the present season's art on the Great White Way.

ALMOST every day brings some announcement of successful dealings and scouts are always in first-night audiences. The Fox studio is almost ready to go into production with "The Farmer Takes A Wife," whose stage body, in the parlance, has hardly grown cold.

Janet Gaynor, who is to take the leading role, had time to go to New York to see June Walker do it. Her studio, eager in some kind of artistic purpose, has also hired Henry Fonda, the "discovery" of the cast to play opposite Miss Gaynor and will have Margaret Hamilton, character actress of both the stage and screen, in her original role.

One of the most serious problems for the perennial "come-back" of the road, legitimately, has been that very thing. Before a show can take the road, the producer usually finds his actors, his author, his stage designer have all hot-footed it for Hollywood. He may even be buying a ticket himself.

Little Theater Tryouts.

Tryouts for the play "Tom Jones," a dramatization of the Henry Fielding novel, to be produced by the Little Theater about the latter part of March, will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Little Theater playhouse, 812 Union boulevard. All parts are open for competition, according to F. Cowles Strickland, director. There is no restriction or entrance fee for those who want to try out.

Kubelik and Son With Orchestra.

Jan Kubelik, famous Czecho-Slovakian violinist, who has returned to America after an absence of 15 years, and his 20-year-old son, Rafael, who is accompanist for the elder Kubelik, will both appear with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra this week, the son as guest conductor and the father as soloist. The two will be heard in a recital at the Opera House here a week from today.

St. Luke's Play at American.

"One Sunday Afternoon," by James Hagan, will be given on the stage in St. Louis for the first time, by St. Luke's Dramatic Club players at the American Theater next Sunday evening.

Iturbi to Make Debut as Conductor With Symphony

JOSE ITURBI, famous Spanish pianist, makes his St. Louis debut in the role of conductor Friday afternoon and Saturday evening at the Municipal Auditorium, when he appears as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, playing the Haydn Concerto in D major, and conducts the entire program, the major feature of which will be the Cesar Franck's Symphony in D minor.

Iturbi, rounding out his musical education in Paris, was in those student years pianist in an orchestra of which Vladimir Golschmann, conductor of the St. Louis Symphony, was first violinist. He came to America first six years ago for a series of brilliant recitals and concert appearances, achieving distinction as an interpreter of Mozart and the modernists. His first appearance with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra was in the season of 1930-1931 under the baton of E. Fernandez Arbos, his countryman. He has since appeared annually in St. Louis, either with the orchestra or as recitalist. Three years ago Iturbi surprised the music world by appearing as guest conductor at a series of concerts in Mexico City. His triumphs there were succeeded by appearances with the New York Philharmonic and other major American orchestras in a similar role.

The pianist's choice of the Haydn Concerto, which he will conduct from the piano, promises much to music lovers. So, too, does his reading of the De Falla Spanish Suite, the colorful rhythms of which are a part of his own heritage. The suite will include "The Dance of Terror," "The Magic Circle," 'Midnight Sorceries" and the "Ritual Dance of Fire."

The Cesar Franck Symphony is the most popular of all symphonies among St. Louis audiences as was revealed recently by the balloting for last week's request program. Iturbi's complete program is:

Overture to "Don Giovanni" ..... Mozart
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra .. Haydn
Excerpts from the Ballet-Pantomime.
"El Amor Brujo" ("Love the Sorcerer") .... De Falla
(a) Dance of Terror
(b) The Magic Circle
(c) Midnight Sorceries
(d) Ritual Dance of Fire to Dispel the Evil Spirits
INTERMISSION
Symphony in D minor .... Franck
I. Lento: Allegro non troppo
II. Allegretto
III. Allegro non troppo

Playhouse Club Production.

The St. Louis University Playhouse Club will give three performances of the farce, "Three-Cornered Moon," at the university auditorium Feb. 21, 22 and 23.

Hollywood Beauty Supply Running Low, Directors Say

CONTRARY to tourist reports, Hollywood is not overrun with Venuses, nor are its hamburger stands operated by comely Iowans and Indianans who can't get a break, if two film directors may be believed.

In the last week, both George White, of the famed "Scandals," and Bobby Connolly, recent importation from Broadway handed the film town beauties some elegant slams.

"There are more lovely girls per square inch in every city in the United States than there are in all of Hollywood and Los Angeles," Connolly said. "Hollywood's beauties are a myth," White agreed. "If they ever have a beauty contest here, the winner should be called 'Myth Hollywood.'"

White said he called 5000 girls to find 150. Out of 3000 Connolly barely was able to enlist 120 suitable for a series of chorus routines. Both admitted, in whispers, they had dispatched hurry-calls to Broadway for girls they know to be beautiful.

"Musical pictures, with large choruses, have been appearing regularly for nearly three years," Connolly said. "In that time, audiences have seen virtually all the real beauties there are in Hollywood. A director must have some new faces."

White had another diagnosis. "A girl isn't satisfied to remain in the chorus," he said. "After she has worked once or twice in a line, she wants to become an actress. They all think of themselves as potential stars. Why even the girls who work in Hollywood restaurants are acting all the time. They hand you a plate of beans with the expression Garbo uses in her heavy love scenes."

Principal Scene For "Becky Sharp" Filmed in Full Color

THE Duchess of Richmond's ball in Brussels on the eve of the Battle of Waterloo, already the subject of a principal scene in "The Iron Duke," is to be a highlight of the new picture, "Becky Sharp," now under production in Hollywood with Miriam Hopkins in the lead.

Testing the new Technicolor process as applied to a full-length picture, the setting is one of the most elaborate and brilliant ever displayed at the studio. Filming of the ball scene already has been completed.

The set itself covered 14,000 square feet of space, employing one sequence where 500 dancers waltz. Robert Edmond Jones, designer and color director for the production, used simple blues and grays in contrast to red uniforms on the officers and gay colors on the women guests. The Duke of Wellington this time is William Faversham.

Knights in City Park.

Wealthy citizens of Los Angeles are seeing strange sights in Griffith Park these mornings—horses and riders in full medieval regalia. Cecil B. DeMille, who is working on "The Crusades," his next spectacle, is getting Henry Wilcoxon, Ian Keith, William Farnum, Joseph Schildkraut and Pedro de Cordoba used to wearing armor.

Howard as "Lawrence of Arabia."

An all-color film based on the adventures of "Lawrence of Arabia" has been announced on the production schedule of an English studio. Leslie Howard will take the title role.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS :: :: By Colvin McPherson

HAVING made a considerable success with "Here Comes the Navy," its producers set about to film another epic of the United States fighting services which would show James Cagney as a big-headed little somebody with the ability to back up what he said, 'Pat O'Brien as a superior officer secretly admiring the kid and Frank McHugh as a supernumerary who would be funny at sight. With the froth of fine photography folded in, that is the recipe. The studio has followed it and the cake is cake. "Devil Dogs of the Air," at the Shubert this week, is never dull. Opening with a burst of beautiful stunt-flying, it taxies around for a while and then takes off again for another interesting sequence. Cagney is not permitted as much character as he had in "Here Comes the Navy" and O'Brien is only an obvious fiction creation. The merry McHugh actually got applause last Thursday afternoon for his "shadow dance," which may be accredited to his unique popularity or perhaps to the increased energy in Grand boulevard audiences, who now have learned to hiss, hoot and call at shadow images, none of which things they do, however, for "Devil Dogs of the Air." Almost equally popular is "Father Brown, Detective," with Walter Connolly making a happy appearance as the Gilbert K. Chesterton fiction creation. Connolly again demonstrates his strength as an actor in the restraint with which he does the priest's role. The plot, rather closely knit, concerns the attempted theft of 10 famous diamonds.

Clive of India.

SO much was happening in the British colonies on this continent in 1748 and a few decades thereafter and so much space given to it in history books hereabouts that it would not at all be surprising to have movie audiences flunk disgracefully on the question: Who was Robert Clive? "Clive of India," at Loew's, will forever protect anyone who sees it on matters concerning the gentleman in question. It presents, in the best biographical fashion, the obscure clerk who became a General and statesman and gave Great Britain an empire. So much money has been spent in creating an authentic background that even the setting may be accepted. The atmosphere is new and strange, the spectacle of powdered wigs against the richness of the Orient something quite different in the movies. As it would be impossible, I am sure, to change the character of the English over centuries or even by such a shocking cinematic venture as shaving off a mustache, Ronald Colman may be taken for Clive. For the advancement of general knowledge, therefore, and for an interesting lesson on "Clive of India," the sitters in the dark at Loew's may be grateful. It must be said that "Clive of India" is not exciting. Too much has to be told in subtitles, which is the fate of all stirring incidents except one, the battle of Plassey, with its war in the rain and magnificent charge of armored elephants. If the practice is to be repeated next semester, lesson leaflets probably would be better.

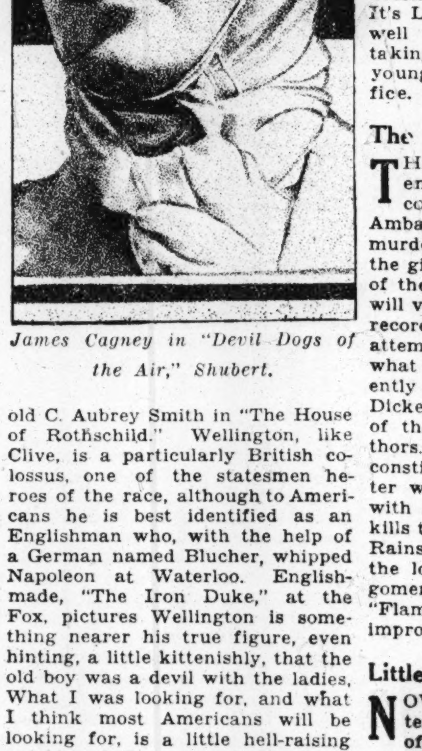
The Iron Duke.

EQUALLY obscure in the popular mind is the character of the Duke of Wellington, whom movie-goers know only as grizzled old C. Aubrey Smith in "The House of Rothschild." Wellington, like Clive, is a particularly British colossus, one of the statesmen heroes of the race, although to Americans he is best identified as an Englishman who, with the help of a German named Blucher, whipped Napoleon at Waterloo. English-made, "The Iron Duke," at the Fox, pictures Wellington is something nearer his true figure, even hinting, a little kittenishly, that the old boy was a devil with the ladies. What I was looking for, and what I think most Americans will be looking for, is a little hell-raising outside of Brussels. Instead the battle of Waterloo emerges as a series of famous paintings of the battle of Waterloo and directors can almost be seen pushing the cast around the field (outside Edinburgh in this case) and saying, "You stand here. You here. Lift the head, please." Apparently the English do not excel in the art of picturing a battle, not even comparing with American movie-makers in that respect. In costuming, settings and period pageantry, their talents and good taste are always in evidence. "I've Been Around," a second picture, opens on one of them-there yachts, with Chester Morris and Rochelle Hudson as examples of high society, and Ralph Morgan, always suggesting somebody who has just passed on, as the indulgent father.



James Cagney in "Devil Dogs of the Air," Shubert.

Enchanted April.

ANN HARDING, who, according to the modest informants in Hollywood publicity offices, was about to faint all the way through "Enchanted April," shows none of it in her performance, which reaches the screen at the Orpheum. Hewed out of the popular novel by "Elizabeth," the story is that of two English wives, and two other bored women, who rent a castle in Italy for a month and find that it does them a world of good, especially since the two husbands come down and get a new breath of life, too. Miss Harding's cameo loveliness is always peeping through her dowdy outfits and she repeats, "Oh, isn't it WONDERFUL!" too often. Beyond that, "Enchanted April" must receive a clean bill for a kind of casual entertainment that does lead away from the hum-drum. The second picture on the bill, "Maybe It's Love," is from a play by Maxwell Anderson, a comedy drama taking up a stenographer and her young man friend in the same office.

The Mystery of Edwin Drood.

THE novel which Charles Dickens left unfinished at his death comes to the screen now at the Ambassador as more of a straight murder story than a mystery, even the girls in stage show being aware of the true nature of the crime, I will venture. According to a studio record, 120 authors have made 103 attempts, since 1870, to figure out what Dickens had in mind, apparently without considering that Dickens himself may have had one of those problems peculiar to authors. Briefly, the story, as now constituted, is that of a choir-master who smokes opium, is in love with a sweet little young lady and kills two people in his quest. Claude Rains is the villain, Heather Angel the loveliness and Douglass Montgomery the winner. Muriel Page's "Flame Dance" is the feature of an improved stage show.

Little Friend.

NOVA PILBEAM (it tastes better the second time) is the name of the fine little English actress who is introduced to American audiences in "Little Friend" at the Missouri. The child, now 14 years old and with a heritage of the theater from her father, handles her role with ease and grace. Cast as the child-sufferer in a domestic triangle, she understands what it means to be just at that period of life when she realizes that the others her own age are only children. "The Best Man Wins" is the kind of role which Edmund Lowe can play with one hand tied behind his back (and does). Jack Holt and Florence Rice make up the party for the deep-sea diving melodrama.

Cornelia Skinner To Feature New American Sketch

Diseuse Will Present "Mansion on the Hudson" Twice This Week

RETURNING to St. Louis for her annual visit, Cornelia Otis Skinner will open her "one-woman" show tomorrow night at the American Theater with a new play, "Mansion on the Hudson," in which she covers a span of 54 years in the history of a wealthy family.

The gifted daughter of Otis Skinner, who almost has the field of solo-drama to herself in this country, not only acts her plays, but writes, produces and directs them, designing the costumes and stage settings as well.

"Mansion on the Hudson," her fourth successive stage story, shows the disintegration of a family from 1880 to 1934. Appearing first as Mrs. Stanley Howland, mistress of "Tall Trees," Miss Skinner gives later glimpses of the younger members of the Howland family through Spanish-American War days and down to the present era.

The play will be presented tomorrow evening and Wednesday evening, and will be accompanied, as usual on Miss Skinner's programs, by various character sketches. Major works on her other programs here will be "The Wives of Henry VIII" Tuesday night and "The Loves of Charles II" at the Wednesday matinee. Both pieces have been presented here before.

A SCHOOLGIRL predilection for entertaining her friends with character portrayals was the genesis of Miss Skinner's career. When she returned from studying in Paris, she had so many sketches in her repertoire that the head of a prominent woman's club asked her to accept a paid engagement. Other appearances followed and she has now toured the country for several years.

She actually made a stage debut with her noted father in "Blood and Sand" and had roles in six other regular stage productions, also writing "Captain Fury" as a vehicle for the elder Skinner. She is now a regular contributor to several national magazines and finds time in private life, as the wife of Alden S. Blodget, a New York broker, to carry on a variety of social duties and handle her responsibilities as the mother of a 6-year-old son.

The engagement of the Abbey Players from Dublin, Ireland, who were to follow Miss Skinner at the American in a five-day repertory beginning Feb. 19, has been postponed until April. The company is playing to an extended engagement in Chicago, will dash to Los Angeles late this month and visit St. Louis on its way back East.

PART THREE — ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 10, 1935. — PAGES 1—16C

12TH AND OLIVE CORNER BASIS OF $400,000 DEAL

Union-May-Stern Likely to Acquire 8-Story Building and Occupy It by Aug. 1 —Modernization Planned

While the final touch remains to be given the transaction, it is expected that the next few days will bring about transfer of title to the eight-story building on the southeast corner of Twelfth and Olive streets to the Union-May Stern Furniture Co. Should the negotiations to that end be successful as confidently anticipated, the conveyance will be by the Pleadwell and Wallace estate, through descent from Mrs. Marie E. Patterson, who died in Italy many years ago. The latter interest was represented in the negotiations by Cornet & Zeibig, the purchaser being represented by Jack Dubinsky. Among the details yet to be completed, Zeibig stated, is action by the Probate Court, made necessary by death of one of the two Misses Pleadwell, nieces of Mrs. Patterson, to whom she bequeathed the property.

In the event of completion of the deal as expected, the Union-May-Stern Co. will have acquired one of the most eligible business corners in the business heart of St. Louis. It will also make that company the central figure in the foremost real estate deal consummated in this city in the past half dozen years. A still further important fact for the company in that connection is that its acquisition will have come about on a bargain basis, the $400,000 paid being in contrast with an estimated normal value of $700,000.

For the Union-May-Stern Co., it means a permanent home for the central link in its chain of eight stores, that could hardly be surpassed in the lines of location and space. That company has for several years occupied three buildings adjoining the corner on the east, with an aggregate floor space of 100,000 square feet. In its new quarters, planned for occupancy not later than August, it will have 129,000 square feet. To create this extra amount of room, the company has practically completed plans for extensive alterations, including spacious mezzanine floors. Exterior changes include a modern front that will give it a highly impressive appearance.

In outlining the alterations definitely determined, M. C. Myerson, president, stated that there will be two high-speed passenger elevators to facilitate passage of customers from one floor to another. In their entirety, Myerson said, the improvements will convert the building into one of the most perfect, attractive and complete furniture and home furnishings establishments to be found in any city. More than $100,000 will be spent on the modernization process.

The building was erected between 40 and 50 years ago, under direction of Mrs. Patterson, for the Missouri Glass Co. Originally, there were several massive granite pillars in its Olive street front. When it was taken under a 99-year lease by the May-Stern Co., in the early 90's, these pillars were eliminated in favor of steel pillars, in order to introduce a series of attractive show windows, the beter to adapt it to the retail furniture business. When May-Stern retired from this field a few years since, disposing of its stock and firm name to the Union Furniture Co., which had a lease on its present home that expires this year, the building became tenantless and has so remained, except for a few temporary interruptions.

The 99-year lease entered into by May-Stern, of which Aaron Waldheim was president, was taken in the name of the Millard Realty Co., which was the corporate name of Waldheim for his extensive realty interests. The widening of Olive street west of Twelfth, of the latter thoroughfare, of Market street and of Gravois avenue, special taxes to cover costs of these improvements became so heavy that Waldheim deemed it prudent from a financial viewpoint, to surrender his lease, and the property thus reverted to the Patterson estate.

What is declared to be one of the most modern, complete and roomy residence in Lake Forest, passed under new ownership last week, it was announced yesterday by the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Realty Co., who represented the purchaser. The deal had been pending for several weeks. It was stated that the price asked for the property was $57,000, but this, it was explained, was no admission that the transaction was closed at that figure.

The residence, No. 8 Lake Forest, is on a lot 110 by 296 feet. It is one of the earliest constructed in that comparatively new subdivision, at Clayton and Hanley roads, also one of the most costly. It was built for Mary A. Louree and has been occupied by her. The succeeding owner, who will make it his family home, is H. R. Henderson, president of the Absorene company, who was represented by Le Grand Jones and W. L. Gourley, sales manager of the Lake Forest Development Co.

On its two floors, the residence has 10 rooms and four baths, while in the basement there is a rattskeller, or recreation room, and a room for the yardman. There is also a garage for three cars. The architecture will be fireproof, of modernistic design, carried out in brick terra cotta and structural glass. Plans and specifications were drawn by A. F. and Arthur Stauder, and construction will be by the Stamm Construction Co. The Federer Realty Co. financed the building.

Special attention has been given to acoustical correction and sound equipment, also to the cooling device for summer use, the water for which will be obtained from an artesian well which will produce water at a 54-degree constant temperature.

ADDED STRENGTH TO CENTRAL AREA SEEN IN LEASE

Building at 112-14 12th St. Taken by Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney for Its Exchange Furniture Store

Following closely the reported sale of the southeast corner property at Twelfth and Olive streets, in which the realty firm of Cornet & Zeibig had a conspicuous part, the same agency announced yesterday that it had concluded a long, term lease of the structure one block south of it, 112-14 N. Twelfth street, to the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney department store. The lessor was the Catlin estate, as owner, and both interests were represented by Cornet & Zeibig. The Scruggs-Vandervoort Co. will use the building, which contains approximately 35,000 square feet, as a trade-in and exchange furniture store.

The building involved in this transaction formerly was occupied by the Mulvihill Furniture Co. for many years, but which retired from business in 1930. It will supercede 814 Franklin avenue, now occupied as a similar store by Scruggs-Vandervoort. It will be under the management of Samuel M. Stuhlberg, formerly identified with the Denver branch of the company.

This lease together with the sale of the Twelfth and Olive streets corner, gives added impetus to the Twelfth street district, according to Zeibig. It is also reported that inquiries which Cornet & Zeibig have been receiving for the northeast corner of Twelfth and Chestnut streets, for which that company is agent, within the last few weeks, are likely to develop into something tangible in the near future, adding further to strengthening of this area.

Hobart Manufacturing Co. Leases Washington Ave. Corner.

Cornet & Zeibig, representing the Hobart Manufacturing Co., also leased, through M. H. Rodemeyer & Co., agents for the Wrought Iron Range Co., the premises at 1935-7 Washington avenue. This is a double store on the northeast corner of Twentieth street and Washington avenue, together with additional quarters on the second floor to be used as a paint shop. Extensive alterations have been completed and the lessee is occupying the quarters.

Cornet & Zeibig also report that the one-story garage building at 5800-6 Delmar boulevard, containing approximately 14,000 square feet of space, has been leased by Carl E. Bolch, for general garage business. He is now located at Seventh and Spruce streets, which he will continue to maintain. Cornet & Zeibig represented both the Anchor Realty Co., owner of the property, and the lessee.

PURCHASERS OF ELEVEN LOTS TO IMPROVE THEM SHORTLY

Victor Wm. Reitz Jr., 6635 Delmar boulevard, reports having sold 11 lots during January, all of which are to be improved by the purchasers without unnecessary delay.

9000 ATTEND SCOUT CIRCUS AT THE ARENA

St. Louis Council Presents Second Performance of Jubilee Show.

Boy Scouts of the St. Louis Council entertained an audience of about 9000 with the second performance of their Silver Jubilee Circus at the Arena last night.

About 8000 scouts took part in the grand entry, a lengthy and colorful parade around and around the Arena floor ,after which most of them packed themselves into the empty floor boxes while others prepared to take part in the 14 acts comprising the show.

One act, in 11 scenes, showed highlights in the history of scouting, from the day in 1909 when an English Scout approached William Boyce of Chicago in London and said, "Sir, I observe that you are a stranger here and seem to be confused.2 Is it the fog that is bothering you?" down to the present and beyond.

1500 Cubs Take Part.

Other acts gave the scouts an opportunity to demonstrate most of their activities and games, and in one abou 1500 Cubs, boys too young to be Scouts, paraded large handicraft models and fantastic animals about the floor.

The Negro Scouts, too, had an act of their own in which they played and worked to the music of their drum and bugle corps.

No less than the boys themselves, the 700 scoutmasters, troop committeemen, and other grown-up scouting directors seemed to enjoy the opportunity of donning uniforms decorated with medals, badges and sashes, and supervising details of the show with precision and speed.

As in circuses of recnt years, the main act was the finale, which gave the boys a chance to perform Indian dances, scalp pioneers, twirl lariats, crack whips and build stockades, towers, bridges and shacks.

Camparall Next May.

The circus ended for this year, Scouts began looking forward to their next big formation, which will be the camparall to be held in Forest Par'; next May.

SAYS STATE LICENSED 38,000 MORE AUTOS WITH LOWER FEE

Roy F. Britton Asserts Loss of Revenue in 1934 Was Less Than Predicted.

Net decrease in the income of the State Highway Department as a result of reduced license charges for passenger automobiles which became effective last year, will be only $875,000, instead of $2,887,169 as estimated by the department when the decrease was made, Roy F. Britton, president of the Automobile Club of Missouri, said yesterday.

The club favored the reduction in license fees, asserting it would result in more cars being licensed and in a larger gasoline tax revenue. Opponents feared the road-building program would be wrecked, that development of farm-to-market roads would be interfered with and that State road bonds would drop in value.

Britton said there were 38,802 more passenger cars registered last year than in 1933, and that the State gasoline tax collections increased $511,411 in the same period.

HENRI CHOUTEAU APPEALS $4843 INCOME TAX CLAIM

Charges Internal Revenue Bureau Erred in Determining His Income for 1932.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Henri Chouteau of St. Louis petitioned the Board of Tax Appeals today for the redetermination of a 1932 income tax claim of $4843.

His petition charged the Bureau of Internal Revenue erred in increasing his net income from rental of the Odeon Theater property from $10,012 to $20,267. The petition said the International Building Co. was able to pay him only $15,400 salary and charged the bureau was in error in assessing him for his full $24,000 salary.

ARKANSAS SHARECROPPERS' MEETING IS BROKEN UP

Four Speakers Escorted Out of Mississippi County After Alleged Threats by Planters.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 9.—H. L. Mitchell, secretary of the Southern Tenant Farmers' Union, tonight wired Gov. J. Marion Futrell of Arkansas that "upon further violations of our rights we shall petition you for the protection of state militia."

The telegram was sent from here after the arrival of four speakers for the union who said they were accosted by a crowd at Birdsong, Ark., late today and then escorted by Mississippi County (Ark.) officers across the county line into Poinsett County "to prevent trouble."

Atley Delany, a student of Commonwealth College, Mena, Ark., said he and three companions, Roy Chaplin, Bob Reed, Commonwealth students, and Gene Hayes, a sharecropper, were met by a "mob of planters" as they approached the site for a proposed rally of tenant farmers. "The mob searched us, demanded to see our union charter, then kicked us and told us to 'get along,'" Delany said. "The officers courteously escorted us away from the scene." Chief Deputy Sheriff Hale Jackson of Osceola, Ark., said he and three other officers escorted the four men out of the county "because of the possibility of trouble." Powers Hapgood of Chicago, "as representative of the American Civil Liberties Union," also telegraphed the Governor for "immediate protection."

$36,750 EXPENSE ALLOWANCE IN FIRE INSURANCE CASE

D. J. Calfee, Jefferson City Lawyer, Has Served as Referee in Rate Cut Litigation.

By the Associated Press

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9.—D. F. Calfee, Jefferson City lawyer, today was allowed $36,750 expenses by Circuit Judge Nike G. Sevier for services the last four years as referee in the 10 per cent stock fire insurance rate reduction case. The expenses, payment of which the Court ordered should be shared equally by the insurance companies which fought the reduction in rates and the State of Missouri, are in addition to fees previously allowed.

It was understood the expenses allowed are about half the amount requested by Calfee, who sought $100 for each of the 655 days required to complete the work involved.

The rate reduction case has been in litigation since 1922, when the late Ben Hyde, then State Superintendent of Insurance, ordered a 10 per cent reduction in rates. Until 1929, when the order was finally sustained, the 143 companies in the case had collected approximately $13,000,000 in excess premiums. The companies were ordered by Judge Sevier last December to make a preliimnary accounting by Feb. 15 of the unrefunded excess premium collections they made during the period of 1922 to 1929. Interest of 6 per cent was ordered paid on the unrefunded excess premiums.

JOBLESS MAN SHOT TO DEATH; WOUND NOT POWDER-BURNED

Pistol Nearby; Police Investigating as Worker Had Told of Threat Against Life.

Joseph Swezda, unemployed steel-mill worker, was found shot to death yesterday in his room at the home of Mrs. Phoebe Gilleland, 1513 Second street, Madison. A revolver, which he had borrowed from a friend two weeks ago, was found near his body. One cartridge had been discharged.

Swezda was shot over the right ear. Police are investigating the circumstances of his death, since there were no powder marks around the wound and a month ago, Swezda asked permission of police to carry a revolver. He said his life had been threatened.

Mrs. Gilleland told police she heard a sound like a body falling Friday night in Swezda's room, which is on the second floor, but had seen no one but Swezda go up. Swezda, who was 42 years old, had $3800 savings deposited, his bank book showed.

Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

SALESMEN WANTED

MEN
Let me set you up in a profitable business of your own, backed by a national institution with powerful resources.
During the past six weeks I have set a number of men up in business for themselves in Missouri and still have a few opportunities left.
If on a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable and trustworthy and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.
Our business is very profitable. Many of our associates earn as much as $50.00 in a single day and after they become experienced handling our business receive a sizable monthly income not regulated by season, as ours is a year-around business.
Selling experience not necessary, as if you are selected, you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you. Some of our most successful associates never sold anything before joining us. We stand all expenses of business, training you completely in our system, and in addition to giving you merchandise on open account, carry all your time payment paper. You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything. Our business is depression proof, as same has increased constantly throughout the past four years.
With 1934 our biggest year, we have thousands of satisfied customers in this territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected with this offer and if you can meet the above requirements, you will be granted a personal confidential interview which will quickly determine our mutual interests. Apply Monday, between 9:15 and 1:15, at 512 Paul Brown Bldg., 9th & Olive.

Alabama

FARMERS in Baldwin County, Alabama, are fortunately located; desirable climate, productive soils, good home conditions, abundant rainfall, several thousand carloads of early produce are shipped to Northern markets annually, growers receiving cash at shipping points. The early crops are followed by second crops on the same land. Baldwin County is a proved, good, prosperous general farming, livestock, poultry and trucking region; about 80 per cent of the farmers on lower Baldwin are from the North. Good land still available at reasonable prices. For illustrated literature write E. J. Hoddy, General Development Agent, Dept. B-94, Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co., Louisville, Ky.

California

IN CALIFORNIA, SMALL FARM HOMES beat the depression. Such homes are the solution of many of our economic and social problems. Less working hours per week make it possible to derive a good part of the living for the average family from a small tract. California offers this opportunity, where many varieties of fruits and vegetables are grown the year round. The Small Farm Home is a proven success in many localities in California. The Santa Fe Railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper, "The Earth," free for six months. Agricultural Development Department, Santa Fe Railway, 934 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

ROOSEVELT ATTENDS THEATER, SEES PLAY "DODSWORTH"

Second Such Visit Since Inauguration; Audience Cheers Party in Balcony Box.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—President Roosevelt tonight attended the theater where Walter Huston and Fay Bainter were starred in the play "Dodsworth," by Sinclair Lewis. It was the second time he had attended a theatrical performance here since he entered the White House. He had planned to see the play, which depicts life of a Midwest married couple in Europe, Wednesday, but was unable to go until tonight.

The President went into the theater leaning on the arm of his son Elliott. The orchestra struck up the "Star Spangled Banner" as the Roosevelt party entered a box in the front balcony. The audience cheered. Mr. Roosevelt bowed and smiled.

Besides his son and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, the President was accompanied by the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, Col. Henry Roosevelt, and his wife; Mrs. Franklin K. Lane Sr., widow of the former Secretary of the Interior; Miss Marguerite Lehand, his personal secretary, and Miss Grace Tully. Several White House aids and secret service men were presen

ARRESTED FOR ATTEMPTED HOLDUP OF BANK IN 1931

Man Sought for Three and a Half Years Taken Into Custody in County.

A man who has been sought for nearly three and a half years for participation in an attempted holdup of the Citizens' Bank of Florissant, Sept. 25, 1931, was arrested at his home yesterday by Sheriff Deuser of St. Louis County and deputies. They received anonymous information concerning his whereabouts earlier in the day.

The man surrendered without resistance when the officers, accompanied by St. Louis police, appeared at his home. He refused to make a statement. A "John Doe" warrant has been pending against him, but a new warrant will be applied f Monday.

OURT AFFIRMS P. S. C. ORDER N LACLEDE REFINANCING PLAN

ole County Judge Rules in Effect W Gas Company May Go Ahead With $3,000,000 Refunding.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 9.—Cole County Circuit Court has dismissed an application of Joseph M. Kelley, 3916 Arsenal street, St. Louis, for a review of a recent order of the Missouri Public Service Commission, authorizing the Laclede Gas Light Co. of St. Louis to refinance an unsecured note issue of $3,000,000, which matures on Aug. 1.

Dismissal of the application for a review, in effect an appeal from the commission order, leaves the company free to proceed with the refinancing of the note issue under the commission order.

Kelley stated he was the owner and holder of some of the outstanding notes to be refinanced. He did not state the amount. The petition was filed for him by State Senator L. N. Searcy of Eminence.

The commission authorized the Laclede company to refinance the outstanding $3,000,000 of 5½ per cent 10-year notes, by exchanging for them a new issue of $3,000,000 6 per cent secured notes, maturing in 1942, under one of two alternative plans offered holders of the outstanding notes.

HUGE STILL RAIDED IN JERSEY

Illicit Plant at Elizabethport Has Rail, Wharf Facilities.

By the Associated Press.

ELIZABETHPORT, N. J., Feb. 9.—A huge illicit still, described by Commander John D. Pennington, district superintendent of the Federal Alcohol Tax unit, as "large enough to supply all of New Jersey and most of New York" with bootleg alcohol, was raided today by Federal and State agents.

The still, Pennington said, was on property of the Texas Oil Co. which allegedly had been leased to the Jerome Products Co. of New York City. The plant was equipped with a railroad siding and a wharf, so raw materials could be brought in and the finished product shipped out by rail or water. Six men were arrested at the still.

CATCHER DELANCEY BECOMES CARDINALS' NO. 1 HOLDOUT

$5000 OFFER IS REPORTED; WAS A $3000 MAN IN 1934

Dizzy Dean At Hot Springs

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 9.

INTENT on teaching the young idea how to pitch, Dizzy Dean, accompanied by his wife, arrived here this afternoon. Dizzy, his brother, Paul, and Lon Warneke of the Chicago Cubs, will constitute the pitching department in the Ray Doan baseball school here.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Bill DeLancey, one of the outstanding first-year men in the National League last year and the best young catcher the Cardinals have developed in their chain-store organization, is the Redbirds' Holdout No. 1, now that Dizzy Dean has decorated the dotted line, it was learned last night. Holdouts No. 2 and No. 3 are Pat Malone, pitcher, and Joe Medwick, outfielder, the club being confident that all other unsigned members of the squad will be lined up without difficulty.

DeLancey was one of several young players who were signed to 1934 contracts which called for a salary of $3000. Others treated similarly were Paul Dean, who won 19 games during the league season and two in the world series; and Johnny Rothrock, who was good enough to play right field in every inning of every league and world series contest.

Won First-String Job.

DeLancey finished with a batting average of .316 and during the late weeks of the season he had become the club's first string catcher. He was behind the plate during every inning of the seven world series games. His 80 hits were good for 143 bases and included 18 doubles and 13 home runs.

Paul Dean, who recently was offered a contract calling for $8500 for 1935, won 19 and lost eleven, and figured in 39 contests, while DeLancey participated in 93 games.

DeLancey has returned the contract offered by the Cardinals, it was learned, stating his reasons for expecting a more substantial increase in salary, in view of his splendid work in 1934, when he was receiving the club's minimum salary.

The Cardinal club makes it a rule not to discuss contract controversies, but a friend of DeLancey's said he understood the young catcher had been offered $5000 or $6000 for 1935.

Medwick Wants $10,000.

Malone, who was obtained from the Cubs with cash for Catcher Kenneth O'Dea, recently informed the Post-Dispatch that he had returned the contract submitted by the Cardinals, convinced by the figure that the club did not count on having him in a St. Louis uniform. Malone, who was offered $5000, said he would not play unless paid his 1934 salary as a member of the Cubs, which is said to have been about $10,000.

Medwick recently announced from his home in Carteret, N. J., that he would not sign a contract calling for less than $10,000. The Cardinals answered by stating that he could not be classed as a holdout, as they had not sent him a contract.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 9.—In a hard fought game, the Montreal Canadiens downed the St. Louis Eagles, 4 to 2, tonight to consolidate their third place position in the International Section of the National Hockey League.

Before a crowd of 4000, the Canadiens and the Eagles battled in strenuous fashion with the result 10 minor and two major penalties were handed out during the 60 minutes. Roger Jenkins and Irvin Frew drew the majors for fighting in the third period. In addition Frew received two minors.

Canadiens sent four goals past Bill Beveridge in the final period while St. Louis scored their first counter half way through the first period and another with three minutes to go in the third. Beveridge was sensational for the first two periods but Canadiens found their shooting-eyes in the last canto. During the 60 minutes, Beveridge stopped 32 shots and in the Canadiens' nets, Wilf Cude stopped a total of 29.

Voss Starts Scoring.

Carl Voss tallied the first St. Louis counter with seven minutes to go in the first period on a neat play with Glen Brydson assisting. The second frame was scoreless with Beveridge being called upon to halt 16 shots and Cude 11.

The Frenchmen's scoring started after five minutes had passed in the last period.

Frew and Jenkins Fight.

Frew and Roger Jenkins started their fisticuffs and were given majors. George Mantha then tallied on a smart play, sweeping around the nets to poke the puck into the net. While Nels Crutchfield was off, Ossie Asmundson scored the

WRAY'S COLUMN

Voice in the Wilderness.

APPARENTLY all the baseball world has lined up solidly behind the opinion that the Cardinals cannot lose the pennant in 1935. Frankie Frisch probably is moaning softly to himself something to the effect that they "always make it tough for a manager."

We almost were wondering why it was necessary to play out the National League schedule for 1935 at all. Everybody seems ready to concede the race to the Redbirds before it starts.

FRISCH

But one voice protests. It suggests that we wait a minute. The voice is that of the old master, Connie Mack, who tells things while the telling is good—eh, Heywood?

"I've heard that there's nobody to stop the Cardinals this year, because they have not one, but TWO Deans. Yet I feel that Bill Terry and his Giants are going to win the 1935 pennant. The Giants are strong in all departments and they will have better pitching than they had last year," Connie told Jimmy Isaminger of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

"In 1934 New York missed Parmalee a lot and that threw an extra burden on the other first string pitchers. Parmalee this year will start the season as a regular and it is not likely that the pitching staff will again break down in the final month of the race as it did last year. Bartell will add infield and attacking strength. And so, unless Bill Terry has a lot of accidents and bad breaks I don't see how he can be kept out of the world series.

Goggin Leads Caliente Open; Orville White Is Tied for Eighth

By the Associated Press.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Feb. 9.—Willie Goggin, San Francisco, shot a 69, two under par, to climb into the lead in the Agua Caliente golf sweepstakes today with a 54-hole total of 215.

The rugged Northern California pro's score was not tops for the round or the tournament to date, for Johnny Revolta, Milwaukee, paraded in through the mud with a 68, three under par, for 216, a stroke back, to tie for second place with Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., and Ky Laffoon, Chicago.

Harry Cooper, Chicago, with Mortie Dutra, Detroit, and Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn were tied for fifth at 217. Orville White, St. Louis, and Craig Wood, Deal, N. J., had totals of 218 for an eighth place tie. Jim Fogertey also of St. Louis was out of it with 231.

Revolta's putter was working in top fashion as he toured the long 6189-yard, sopping-wet course in 34-34. He was in trouble on only three holes and managed to get a par out of one of them and bogies on the other two as he picked up five birdies along the way to chalk up his fine card.

The sturdy Milwaukee youth dropped a 20-footer on the second for his first birdie, pushed a 12-footer in on the ninth for another, and had a 15-footer on the fifteenth for one of the three collected on the back side.

Goggin needed a par for a 68 on the last hole. His drive caught a trap to the left, however, and he failed to get any distance out of the saturated sand with his spoon. His third was on the green but his putt from the farthermost edge rimmed the cup and he took a bogie five for a 69.

DEARDORFF TIED FOR SECOND IN U. S. 3-CUSHION BILLIARD MEET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9. — Edward Lee of New York, the defending champion, regained the lead in the National Amateur three-cushion billiard championship tonight when he defeated George M. O'Dea of Chicago, 50 to 20.

Lee ran out the match in 58 innings for his fifth victory in six starts and a half-game lead over Edward Spitz of New York and Gene Deardorf of St. Louis. Spitz and Deardorf each has won four matches and lost one.

O'Dea's defeat dropped the Chicagoan into a tie with Albert Primeau of Detroit for fifth place with two victories and three reverses. John Davenport of Philadelphia holds fourth position with an even break in six matches.

Of the six games remaining in the round robin tournament, four will be played tomorrow and the final two Monday night.

Chicago Bowlers Lead Hermanns By 283 Pins

The Hermanns will have to pick up 284 pins in their remaining blocks to win their intercity match with the Pabst Blue Ribbons, Chicago, as a result of lasing the opening block at the Rogers Recreation last night, 2901 to 2908. The second block will be rolled at the Rogers alleys this afternoon at 2 o'clock with the final three scheduled for 8 p. m.

Herb Freitag and Adolph Carlson were high for the leaders with 616 and 610 respectively and Mitzi Weinstein for the Hermanns with 626. Lowell Jackson with a 238 had the best high single, 238.

ILLINOIS JUMPS FROM SEVENTH TO TIE FOR THIRD IN "BIG TEN"

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9. — Illinois jumped from seventh place in the Big Ten basketball title race to a tie with Wisconsin for third position tonight by subduing Chicago's hapless Maroons, 43 to 36.

The Maroons made a battle of it in the first half, which ended with Illinois three points in front. In the second 20 minutes, however, the Illini, paced by Bob Riegel, spurted into a 15-point lead and coasted in. Riegel picked up 11 points during the game.

Bill Haarlow, slender Chicago forward, added 10 points to his league-leading total, giving him 103 for the conference season. Chicago, however, suffered its eighth straight Big Ten defeat, and its fourteenth in a row for the season.

The victory was Illinois' fourth in six games against conference foes.

COACH FAUROT WARNS PLAYERS REGARDING FAILURE TO REPORT

Special to the Post-Dispatch

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 9.—Disappointed over the failure of veterans of Missouri's 1934 football team to appear for indoor pre-Spring practice, Coach Don Faurot today issued a warning to the players that "their chances may not be so good for making the team next Fall."

A dozen of the outstanding candidates for the football team have not turned out for the practice which Faurot is holding until the beginning of outdoor workouts March 1. Faurot said, however, that their absence probably is due to a misunderstanding in the belief that the early practice would consist in conditioning exercises whereas fundamentals, plays and the new shift, inaugurated by Faurot, are being taken up.

9000 SEE PURDUE WIN IN THE GARDEN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Purdue's fast-breaking Big Ten basketball pace-setters stood off a strong Fordham rally to win, 46 to 39, before about 9000 fans in Madison Square Garden tonight. The visitors, making their first visit to New York, led at half time by 29 to 15.

The Hoosiers, avowedly out to show their metropolitan audience some fast shooting, lived up to all advance notices in the first half and appeared to be on the way to a lop-sided win as Norm Cottom and Jim Seward bagged five baskets apiece in that period.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 9.—Winning the last four holes to overcome a three-hole deficit, Miss Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., the medalist, today won the third annual Miami-Biltmore women's golf championship by defeating Mrs. Joe Bydolek of Buffalo, 1 up, in the 36-hole final.

The match was nip and tuck all the way. Mrs. Bydolek finished the morning round, three down, but came back with a sensational display of golf to square the match at the eighth and take the lead by winning the ninth, thirteenth and fourteenth holes.

Miss Bauer, however, played magnificently on the final four greens to win the match, the Grace Doherty challenge trophy, and succeed Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., as the champion.

FIRPO MAY BE BARRED AFTER DRUG EPISODE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Young Joe Firpo, Philadelphia middleweight boxer, may be permanently barred from Illinois rings if an examination discloses that he was drugged before a scheduled bout with Frankie Sagilio last night at the Cicero Stadium.

Firpo, apparently in normal health when he dressed for the bout, became suddenly and violently ill a few minutes before time to enter the ring. He collapsed and was taken to St. Anthony Hospital for treatment and examination.

Dr. W. J. Vopata, physician for the Illinois State Athletic Commission, said there was "no question in my mind but that Firpo was given some drug that made him violently ill."

Joseph E. Triner, chairman of the Illinois Commission, who ordered Firpo to the hospital when he became ill, said that Firpo and his handlers, Mickey Lennon, Lou Gross and George Ade, the latter from Chicago, would be barred for life if an exhaustive examination of the contents of Firpo's stomach revealed presence of drugs.

"I am having an exhaustive analysis made of the contents of Firpo's stomach," Triner said. "If it is found that some narcotic was given him, I am going to do plenty of cleaning up. Everybody who was in that dressing room will be barred for life."

Firpo, who was forced to take off more than five pounds between weighing in time and fight time, to fulfill an agreement, said he had no recollection of eating anything but a light lunch at noon. He said he had taken a drink from the water bottle in his dressing room, and became ill a short time later. A search was being made for the water bottle.

Dr. Vopata discounted the theory that the weight-shedding had anything to do with the fighter's collapse. A report on the stomach examination is expected by tomorrow. All involved have been ordered to appear before the commission Monday.

KANSAS BEATS IOWA STATE AND RETAINS LEAD

LAWRENCE, Kan., Feb. 9.—The four-time champion Kansas Jayhawkers stayed on top of the Big Six Conference basketball standing with a decisive 35-18 triumph over Iowa State College here tonight.

The sharp-shooting of Ray Ebling, Kansas forward and Big Six scoring champion last year, sent the Jayhawkers far ahead of the Cyclones. Ebling connected for eight field goals and one free throw for a total of 17 points—one short of the total registered by the touted Iowa State front line.

Much of Ebling's success at the basket was attributed to the floor work and "feeder" passing of Milt Allen.

JESSE OWENS LEADS BUCKEYES TO VICTORY

Owens broke fieldhouse records in the broad jump, and 70-yard low hurdles and in addition won first in the 60-yard dash and second in the 70-yard high hurdles for a total of 18 points.

Ollie Haupt Jr. and Miss Schulte Win U. S. Figure Skating Title

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 9.—Fifteen-year-old Polly Blodgett of the Skating Club of Boston won the women's junior figure skating championship in the national competitions today.

Miss Blodgett, competing with four other contestants, executed her repertoire of spins, jumps and dance steps with the grace and dexterity of one many years her senior.

Erle Reiter, 17-year-old schoolboy, won the plaudits of the spectators and the favor of the judges to become men's junior champion. His exhibition included the difficult Lutz jump and the Alex Paulsen spin, which he executed with accurate timing and rhythm.

Oliver Haupt Jr., and Miss Jeanne Schulte of the St. Louis Skating Club won the title in the junior pair competition against several older contestants. Haupt is 14 and his partner 13.

Leonard Fogassey and Ruth English, another St. Louis pair, finished second to Haupt and Miss Schulte.

A broken leg last year, which kept him out of the contests, had no bearing on Bruce A. Mapes' performance today as he won a runnerup position in the men's junior class.

Miss Frances Johnson of the Twin City Skating Club, Minneapolis, won second place in the women's junior group, won by Miss Blodgett, and Miss Ardelle Vklossas third.

Spares: St. Louis—Radley, Scott, De Paul, P. Palangio, T. Palangio and R. Paddon. Oklahoma City—Holmes, Sims, Smith, Burns and MacKinnon.

By W. J. McGoogan.

In an effort to gain at least temporary possession of first place in the American Hockey Association, the St. Louis Flyers engage Oklahoma City at the Winter Garden tonight.

It will be the last appearance here of the Flyers for 10 days, as they are scheduled to make their final swing north to meet members of the Central League this week. They are down to play Minneapolis Wednesday, Eveleth Saturday and the following Monday, before returning to the Winter Garden to play Oklahoma City again Wednesday, Feb. 20.

Thus tonight's game is important, for the Flyers will be seeking their ninth successive victory at home and as they have been rather weak on the road they want to get a victory over the Warriors to take with them to the north where, on their first trip, they dropped three games to St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Tied With 17 Victories.

The Flyers have won 17, lost 11 and tied 3 for a total of 34 points this season while Tulsa has won 17, lost 12 and tied two to give them also 34 points. Kansas City is eight points behind the leaders while Oklahoma City is last with 22 points.

All of the Flyers are in condition following their tiresome trip to Oklahoma City earlier in the week when they defeated the Warriors to tie Tulsa for the lead.

Coach Alex McPherson has sent his men through several short workouts since they returned home but in view of the strenuous schedule ahead decided that rest was what they needed most.

To Lay Plans for Play-off.

Altogether the Flyers have 16 games left on their schedule, eight at home and eight on the road. They are a cinch to land a play-off position and it is understood that President William F. Grant of Kansas City is to come here this week to make arrangements for the title series which probably will include, as it did last season, the three leading teams in a round robin with the winner to play the first place club of the Central League in a post game series. St. Paul is so far ahead in the Central race, which is between only three teams, that they appear to be a certainty to oppose the winners of the American Association flag.

CANADIENS DEFEAT THE EAGLES, 4 TO 2

Rangers Oppose Eagles Here Tuesday.

A team which threatened for a while to set a new record in the National Hockey League—the New York Rangers—will oppose the Eagles at the Arena Tuesday night.

Starting the season badly, the Rangers were nominated by hockey followers generally as the big flops of the season. The veteran stars of the club, Ching Johnson, Bill and Bun Cook and Frank Boucher, were headed for the scrap heap, it was declared, and the club was in terrible shape.

But from the day that Lester Patrick, Ranger Coach, disposed of Andy Aitkenhead, goalie, and secured the services of Dave Kerr from Montreal Maroons, the team began to climb and recently went through 13 games without losing one. In that streak they won 10 and tied three; then they ran into their home town rivals, the Americans, and were defeated, 6-4. The modern non-losing streak in hockey was compiled by the Montreal Canadiens who, a few years ago, went through 18 games without losing one. It was that record which the Rangers were after when they ran afoul of the Americans.

The Eagles are still handicapped by several incapacitated players, chief among them of course being Joe Lamb, who is still nursing a cracked bone in his arm. Another casualty is Mickey Blake, who is suffering from an infected foot.

The Eagles triumphed over the Rangers at the Arena the second night of the season, 4-2. Since then the teams have met twice, with the Rangers winning both games.

Toronto Returns to Winning Form Before 13,000 Crowd.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Feb. 9.—The Toronto Maple Leafs ended a string of five games without a victory, their longest losing streak of the National Hockey League season, by whipping the Montreal Maroons, 4 to 2, before a crowd of 13,000 tonight. The victory increased the Leafs' International Division lead to 12 points.

After being held to a 1 to 1 score in the first period, Toronto tallied twice in the second to make victory certain. Bill (Headline) Hollett scored on a sensational dash through the whole Montreal team and Red Horner batted home a pass from Harvey Jackson. Jackson was credited with the fourth counter when Bob Gracie accidentally batted the puck into his own cage early in the third period. Chuck Conacher was the first Maroon goal getter while Gracie and Herb Cain did the sharpshooting for the Maroons.

Adams, vice-president, who would like to sell his holdings; Emil Fuchs, president, who sought to turn the Braves park over to the greyhound races, and Bill McKechnie, manager, whose job will be to see that the Braves make a bigger noise in baseball than the million-dollar Red Sox. To finance their spring campaign and pay back rent, the Braves sold ticket books in advance of the season's opening and raised $43,000. But can they eat their cake now and still have in June?

Slavia and Curry Soccer Teams To Oppose Centrals and Marres; Patenaude Leads the Goal Scorers

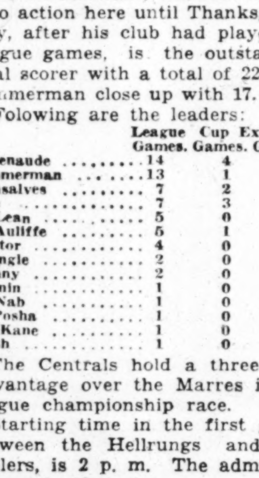
By Dent McSkimming.

Slavia of Cleveland and Curry of Pittsburgh, two of the strongest soccer clubs in the Western division of the United States Football Association, will appear here in national challenge cup games Feb 17 and Feb. 24, it was announced by Commissioner Don Anderson late yesterday.

Slavia will oppose the Centrals and Curry has been drawn against the Marres. If both local clubs survive these second-round tests they pobably will oppose each other here on March 3.

Today's league games at Sportsman's Park will provide the final opportunity for these two clubs to polish up their play for their meetings with Cleveland and Pittsburgh. The Centrals meet the Marres in the second game and the national champions appear to have a big advantage, if goal scoring records mean anything.

For example, the Centrals' regular forward line of McLean, Roe, Patenaude, Gonsalves and McNab has scored 43 goals in 15 league and cup games while the Marres have accounted for only 24 goals in 14 games.



PATENAUDE

And for the full season, including league, cup and exhibition matches, the Central players have scored 62 times for an average of 3.44 goals a game as compared with 2.2 for the Marres.

But, when these clubs line up against each other, averages and percentages go out the gate. They have met five times and the Centrals have scored only seven goals for an average of 1.40, which is a considerable drop from 3.4. The Marres have averaged one goal a game against the Centrals.

Some strange things have happened in those five games. Jack Simmerman, very effective center forward, has yet to score a goal against the Centrals, whereas Jim Kenny, halfback, has scored twice. Roe and Patenaude have each scored a pair of goals against Rodriguez and the other Central goal getters were Phelan and Pastor. Earl Fay put the ball in his own goal on one occasion and Nash, McAuliffe and Brengle accounted for the only other goals.

Patenaude Leads Scorers.

Bert Patenaude, who did not get into action here until Thanksgiving day, after his club had played six league games, is the outstanding goal scorer with a total of 22, with Simmerman close up with 17.

Folowing are the leaders:

	League Games.	Cup Games.	Exhibition Games.
Patenaude	14	4	4
Simmerman	13	1	3
Gonsalves	7	2	4
Roe	7	3	1
McLean	5	0	2
McAuliffe	5	1	0
Pastor	4	0	0
Brengle	2	0	1
Kenny	2	0	0
Cronin	1	0	1
McNab	1	0	1

Starting time in the first game, between the Hellrungs and Ben Millers, is 2 p. m. The admission charge is 40 cents.

Bob Corbett, the boy who recently scored seven goals in a Municipal League game while at center forward for the Hellrungs at Fairground Park, will be given a trial by Manager Phil Kavanaugh this afternoon. Harry Crawford, a fullback, a graduate from the Strodtman club, will also make his pro debut with the Hellrungs.

BALSANOS EXPECTED TO WIN MUNY SOCCER GROUP TITLE TODAY

The team that will represent Fairground No. 4 division in the Municipal Soccer League elimination games is expected to be decided at Fairground No. 2 this afternoon when the four clubs of that division wind up the Muny's schedule.

The Balsanos play Happy Hollow at 2 o'clock and the Wellstons battle the L. J. Voglers at 3:30 o'clock. At present the Balsanos lead the second-place Wellstons by two points.

A tie or a victory would put the Balsanos in the eliminations. A defeat, however, along with a victory for the Wellstons, would force the two clubs to meet in a divisional play-off game.

WASHINGTON FENCERS DEFEAT M. U. TEAM

Co-ordination of hands and feet, coupled with almost-perfect marksmanship, gave the Washington University fencing team an 8 to 1 victory in the foil bouts with Missouri University at the Washington Field House yesterday afternoon. The two teams divided honors in the four Epee bouts.

Capt. Gail Potter of the Missouri team scored the two victories in the Epee events for his team, while Capt. Tracy Barnes and Mauthe Frech of Washington scored for the Hill Toppers.

In the foil events, Capt. Barnes of Washington won three of the nine bouts, Harold Blackmon and Phillip Mutrux gaining two victories, while Ben Harris added one triumph to his teams' list. The lone foil victory for Missouri was scored by Joe Holmes.

P. G. A. Frowns on Pari-Mutuel Bets on Golf Events

By the Associated Press.

SARASOTA, Fla., Feb. 9.

PARI MUTUEL betting on an open golf tournament, such as is being done in the Agua Caliente Open, is frowned on by the Professional Golfers' Association of America and P. G. A. members are urged not to participate in such affairs, George J. Jacobus, president of the P. G. A. and pro at the Bobby Jones course here, said tonight.

"At our annual meeting in Chicago last November," Jacobus said, "the P. G. A. voted unanimous opposition to such practice and our members are urged not to encourage such tournaments by participating in them."

SHAW-STEPHENS GIRLS BASKET TEAM TO PLAY CHICAGO FIVE TODAY

There will be a championship atmosphere attached to the intercity girls' basketball game today between the National A. A. U. men's rules Champion Chicago Spencer Coals and the runners-up Shaw-Stephens American Legion club of Maplewood. The game will be played at the Maplewood Senior High School Gymnasium and will follow a 1:45 p. m. men's preliminary involving the Holy Family team, titleholders of the 1934 Greater St. Louis Catholic League, and the Club Barbers of Maplewood.

Following the Shaw-Stephens-Spencer Coal battle, the Pabs, champions of the Tuesday Night Division of the Men's Muny League will oppose the powerful Maplewood Wolfs, until recently the Granite City Pals. The Wolfs recently established what was thought to be the season's highest basketball score, when it rolled up 202 points against a local five.

The probable lineup:

JACK SRENCO AT PEAK, WINNING 'Y' HANDBALL TITLE

Jack Srenco, one of St. Louis' leading handball players, who learned the game as a youngster while hanging around the handball courts of Engine Company No. 18, at Seventh and Franklin, retained the Downtown Y. M. C. A. singles championship by defeating I. N. "Nig" Kessler, 21—11, 21—4, in their Class A final yesterday afternoon at the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

Kessler, a star before Srenco entered the first flight, started with a rush and built up a lead of 10—3 in the first game. At this point Srenco came to life, making "impossible" saves and shooting the ball back into the corners for "kills." Kessler added only one point to his 10 while Srenco was running from three to the required 21.

The second game brought merely a continuation of the style displayed after Srenco got under way in the first, with Srenco playing what the experts who looked on considered the best game of his career. He is favored, locally, to reach the final of the National Y. M. C. A. championships at Memphis, Feb. 19 to 26.

Following the Class A final Srenco and the man who taught him the game—Mike Cunningham, city fireman—teamed together to defeat Kessler and Sam Wolff in the Class A doubles final. The scores were 21—17, 21—2.

Harold Srenco, young nephew of Jack's who recently graduated from high school, made it something of a "Srenco day" by defeating Jewell Browning for the Class B singles title, 21—8, 21—10.

Gordon Wins But St. Louis Loses in Team Squash Meet

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Two Chicago teams and one each from Detroit and Minneapolis, reached the semifinals of the Western Squash Racquets championship tournament today at the Chicago Athletic Association and the Lake Shore Athletic Club.

The Chicago team defeated the Milwaukee "C", 3 to 0, and eliminated the Chicago Athletic Association, 2 to 1. Its opponent tomorrow morning, the Chicago Racquet Club, won by default from Cincinnati, and defeated the Minneapolis "B" team, 3 to 0.

Minneapolis' "A" entrant, shutout the Chicago Interfraternity team, 3 to 0, and eliminated Purdue University by the same count. The Minneapolis club meets Detroit, which defeated Milwaukee "A", 2 to 1, after drawing a first round bye, in its semifinal match.

In the individual event, Jack Gordon of St. Louis, one of the big favorites, advanced to the semifinals by defeating Joe Jannotta of Chicago, 15—7, 18—17, 17—15, and eliminating H. Hickson, Chicago, 15—10, 18—15, 15—12. He meets James Anderson, Chicago, who drew a first round bye, then defeated W. E. Jones, Chicago, 15—7, 15—9, 15—6.

Dr. D. Davidow of Detroit, moved up by defeating L. L. Meyers, Chicago, 15—1, 15—11, 15—9, and overcoming R. E. Nord of Cincinnati in the longest match of the day, 15—6, 15—12, 13—15, 15—11. Dr. Davidow's opponent in the semifinals will be Robert Pope, Chicago, who eliminated Marshall Allen, Chicago, 15—4, 15—9, 15—6.

The St. Louis three-man team, made up of Edward Haverstick, Charles Fox and Isaac Orr, was eliminated in the first round by Chicago A. A., 3 to 0.

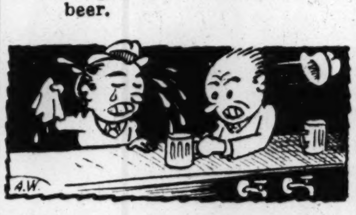
Who poured a sad tale in me ear,
As he spoke of the way the old Cubs used to play
The night that he cried in me beer.

They didn't shake hands with their rivals,
They played without favor or fear;
They fought with McGraw and I listened with awe,
The night that he cried in me beer.



Babe Ruth, he said, got as much money
As all the Cubs got in a year,
But it wasn't the dough they were after said Joe,
The night that he cried in me beer.

In memory Joe was reverting.
I could easily see at a glance,
To an earlier day when the great double play

Cricket Pays $40 a Week; Ruth Decides to Stick to Baseball

Babe Enjoys Himself in First Lesson at England's National Game—Issues Challenge to Britain's "Fast Ball" Thrower.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—Babe Ruth, baseball's home run king, broke his first cricket bat as he learned all about England's national game in an hour's lusty lesson in a subterranean school beneath the Thames today.

Coached by Alan Fairfax, former Australian star, the Bulbous Bambino donned leg pads and smashed the offerings of two "fast bowlers" all over the premises.

Ruth enjoyed himself hugely and stopped only when he discovered he was already an hour late for a luncheon engagement with his wife.

Fairfax was enthusiastic about his famous pupil. "I wish I could have him a fortnight. I could make one of the world's greatest batsmen out of him," he said.

Babe Beams Under Praise.

Babe beamed under the praise of his tutor even though he is already considered a fair to middling batsman by thousands of American fans.

"I guess it's a better game than I thought but I think I will stick to baseball," he said. "They tell me $40 a week is top pay for cricket. I believe I had rather be a club owner than a player."

Although visibly disappointed at the Babe's mercenary attitude, the audience admired the way he slammed into the ball. After a half-hearted attempt to adopt a cricket stance he reverted to his familiar baseball posture and smacked everything Fairfax and his assistant served up.

When he finished his bat was in a deplorable state. The handle was broken and big chunks of wood had disappeared from both edges.

"I wish they would let me use a bat as wide as this in baseball," he chuckled. "I'd be good for at least five more years and top Col. Rupert's payroll."

Ruth next turned his attention to bowling and spent a gleeful 15 minutes blazing away at Fairfax, but never succeeded in knocking down his teacher's wicket.

The test terminated in a terrific argument over whether a baseball pitcher is faster than a cricket bowler with Ruth and an Associated Press reporter debating bravely against British odds.

Ruth finally settled it for the time being with the challenge that "anybody who thinks this Larwood fellow throws a faster ball than Walter Johnson used to throw past me can have my money."

As a result, there is a move afoot to bring Larwood to London and have him bowl at Ruth. The Babe also was skeptical of cricketers' statement they can knock a ball over 600 feet on the fly.

"That's more than my record of 559 feet. I don't believe it," he growled.

Ruth went out to see his first British soccer match this afternoon.

BURROUGHS SOCCER TEAM WINS AGAIN

Burroughs continued its unbroken record in "A"-"B"-"C" soccer competition yesterday, defeating Western "A" 4 to 0 on the Western Field. Not only has Burrough remained undefeated in league play but it has not been scored on. The first score of the game came in the first quarter when Russe and Scudder teamed to drive the ball into the net. At the half Burroughs was leading 3 to 0. The final tally was made in the third quarter when Russe again was on the sending end.

The Western "B" and Burroughs "B" played to a scoreless tie on a muddy field at Western today. The Western team seemed superior in offensive power but were severely handicapped by the mud.

Principia showed vast improvement in holding Country Day to a 1-1 score, Friday. Country Day outplayed and defeated Principia, 2 to 1, in their previous meeting.

The Western "B" team, defeated Burroughs "B," 26 to 9.

BROWNS EXPECT ALL BUT FOUR MEN AT CAMP ON OPENING DAY

Unless the Browns encounter unexpected contract trouble, only four members of Rogers Hornsby's squad will be absent when the St. Louis Americans start spring training at West Palm Beach, Tuesday, Feb. 26, Vice-President L. C. McEvoy announced last night. Usually the first squad includes only pitchers and catchers.

Oscar Melillo, Jack Burns, Sam West and Ray Pepper have been given permission to delay reporting until March 5, but Hornsby wants all other athletes to get as much work as possible.

"We have a flock of youngsters on the roster," Hornsby explained, "and I believe by giving them extra attention during the first week we can help their hitting and fielding. Clift and Strange learned a lot during their first big league year, but a young ball player always has plenty to learn and I figure they're entitled to as long a training period as we can give them."

Much time will be devoted to Clift's batting. The "boy hermit" of Yakima, Wash., was the big strikeout hitter of the league last season and observers are inclined to attribute his trouble to a tendency to guess what the pitcher will throw. Successful batters will tell you that you can't guess and do much hitting and efforts will be made to try to train Clift to "hit 'em where they are."

McEvoy and Hornsby are well satisfied with their progress in the work of signing the players. Only ten players are unsigned and only two—Beau Bell from Galveston and Ashley Hillin from San Antonio—have expressed dissatisfaction with salaries offered. Several of the regulars make a practice of taking their signed contracts to training camp with them.

Players still unsigned are Pitchers Blaeholder, Hillin, McAfee and Walkup; Catcher Grube; Infielders Burns and Clift and Outfielders West, Pepper and Bell.

As a result of the cancellation of the two Havana exhibition games, the first Cardinal squad will not report at Bradenton, Fla., training camp until March 4 or 5, with the second squad due the following week

TRAVELING TIME OF PLAYERS, IN SOME INSTANCES, WILL NOT COUNT

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 9.—The United States Lawn Tennis Association late today ratified allegiance to the controversial eight-week rule, and at the same time adopted a means by which the rule may be waived.

It accepted the rule, promulgated by the International Tennis Federation, as its Executive Committee urged. At the same time it approved, though not without dispute, what the committee offered as a "clarifying rider."

The rule says amateur players may not accept expenses for more than eight weeks in any one year, including time spent traveling from one tournament to another. The "clarifying rider" exempts participants in national and sectional tournaments if they are certified by their sectional associations as "official representatives" of such sections. In such cases traveling time does not count.

But for a flurry over the eight-week rule, the meeting moved with dispatch and harmony.

Will Hold a U. S. "Wimbledon."

The association decided to put on a "Wimbledon" basis the national singles for both men and women. Both tournaments were awarded to the West Side Tennis Club of Forest Hills, Long Island, for the period Aug. 20 to Sept. 6. It will be the first time the events have been held together.

The association backed its president, W. Merrill Hall of New York, in rejecting a suggestion of Czechoslovakia that amateurs be permitted to accept money for appearing in tennis action-films. Great Britain had supported the proposal. Hall turned the suggestion down, declaring it an "encroachment upon the amateur spirit," which "would only be the first of a series" of similar demands.

It awarded the intercollegiate championships to Northwestern University for June 24-29; the National Clay Court to Chicago, June 17-22; the Public Parks Championship to New Orleans, Aug. 19-24; announced tentative dates for the men and women's doubles championships to the Longwood Tennis Club, Boston, Aug. 17-19, and awarded the Junior Boys' singles and doubles to Culver, Ind., Aug. 12-17; and the girls' championships to the Merion C. C., Philadelphia, opening Sept. 2.

And it decided to hold the 1936 winter meeting—with no date set—in Philadelphia.

East Also Objects to Rule.

Adoption of the eight-week rule, and its qualifying resolution, drawn to meet objections voiced previously by the Western Lawn Tennis Association, proved the high spot of the meeting. But the major issue surprisingly found objection coming as much from the East as from the West.

William Rowland, Philadelphia, former member of the U. S. L. T. A. Executive Committee, said he viewed enforcement, as devolving upon a "rule-breaking committee" and asked, amid laughter, if "the rule-breaking committee" would be prepared to provide bail for amateurs who might sidestep the rule."

Says Rule Is a "Threat."

Ray Jones, Louisville, Ky., saw the rule as "a distinct threat" to many tournaments, citing that "people won't patronize a tournament with a lot of local players participating."

The qualifying resolution places administration of the rule on a committee, empowered to make exceptions of any player "provided . . . that . . . to come within the exception so granted (he) must first be designated as the official representative in such championship by his sectional association."

A report of Lawrence A. Baker of Washington, D. C., treasurer, indicated the U. S. L. T. A. profited some $8600 through tournament play last year—"not much," he observed—"but considerable when you remember the nature of the times."

Benny Kessler, chairman of the Ozark A. A. U. Boxing Committee, has resigned his post as Supervisor of Men's Athletics in the City Community Centers, it was announced last night by Frank Sullivan, City Superintendent of Recreation, who accepted his resignation.

In addition to his work for the Ozark A. A. U., which includes preparations for the National A. A. U. boxing champions which are to be held here in April, Kessler this winter has been promoting amateur boxing at the Coliseum and conducted the Post-Dispatch boxing school which was concluded with a tournament at The Arena Jan. 25.

Pressure of these outside interests has caused Kessler to resign from his City office.

Title Fight a Fadeout.

AN opponent for Max Baer next June has not yet been determined. No attractive factor has been built up during the winter. At this time the prospect of a warmed-over fight between Baer and either Carnera or Schmeling—if he beats Hamas—seems the most likely prospect.

Lasky, out because of illness, is at best far from being an attraction worth a title bout. Charley Retzlaff slapped him around less than a year ago and the bout with Levinsky crowned him with nothing more imposing than a foolscap.

Hamas would be something new and if he defeats Max quickly in Germany, perhaps they can build him up interestingly. But to all intents and purposes a chance for a fine fight program has been ruined by inept management.

With a little diligence Hamas, Lasky, Schmeling and Carnera could have fought an elimination series of their own, during the winter, with the climax at Miami in March, the winner to face Baer in June. That is not possible now and the chances are that either Lasky or the winner of the Hamas-Schmeling fight will be the next to oppose Maxie.

Too Late It Comes Out.

THE prodded worm will turn. In recent days boxing officials who have been classed among the creeping organisms by irate fans, who have shown resentment at the way commissions, the public and Max Baer have put the blame on the referees and the judges.

One protesting referee is Art Donovan, who handled the Baer-Carnera fight last summer. Here's what Art told Ed Van Every, in substance:

"Baer was pretty lucky he was not disqualified when he fought Primo Carnera. If I had lived up to the letter of the rules, Carnera would still be titleholder.

"After an early knockdown Baer was so crazy that he wanted to hit Primo while he was still down. I chased him away with difficulty and saved him from losing on a foul.

"There is also a rule against stalling and I warned Baer frequently to no purpose. He knew he had me in a spot. But Baer deserved to be disqualified, under ordinary conditions.

"As for Baer's physical condition that night, no matter how he looked the only part of him in shape was his chin. He was wheezing so badly after the first knockdown that he couldn't finish his man. Carnera would not have been able to come up for the second round, had Baer been in condition. He had to stall and clown through most of the fight to recover.

"He never did finish Primo—I stopped the bout because the look in Primo's eyes indicated that his resistance was over, for the moment, and he might suffer a broken neck, if I let the fight go on."

Not a Real Test.

THE interesting new feature of major league baseball this year will be Cincinnati's test of night baseball. Inasmuch as only seven games will be permitted, the experiment will not be conclusive. It is highly probable that crowds will turn out for each game—because of the small number permitted. Opinion based on the attendance at these seven games will not necessarily mean definite approval of night baseball for the entire league. Curiosity may bring fans out, for a few shows. But a sustained schedule of night games might pall.

The major leagues have regarded night baseball skeptically—perhaps with justice. Baseball is a daylight sport and should perhaps remain so, unless conditions make patronage to the fullest degree impossible.

But if circumstances continue to make it difficult for daytime workers to go to baseball, then baseball will have to leave its traditions behind and go to the worker.

67 Night Baseball Parks.

LAST year, a survey by Edgar Brands in a recent issue of Sporting News disclosed, some 67 baseball parks in the minor leagues served night baseball to patrons. And they prospered. In fact, the minor leagues today seem to be on the uptrend where the major leagues are wondering just what the future has in store for them.

This year baseball men anticipate that perhaps 100 minor league parks will dispense night baseball—and the Cincinnati National League club will feel out the situation for the majors. In some cities, and Cincinnati is one, it may be that night baseball would help the big leagues.

The past year or so seems to have indicated that baseball has been trending toward week-end attendances. Working men who like the game can't afford to take time off of their pay checks to attend ball games. In fact, taking time off from work is not so good now, when jobs are as scarce as refrigerators at the North Pole.

Naturally, everyone would prefer to see daylight baseball. But if conditions make it possible for them to view it only at night, then the men in the business will have to sell the public what it wants when it wants it.

The great improvement in light facilities today make the argument of insufficient lighting merely a childish objection. Anyone would rather see baseball survive by night rather than die by day.

Campbell's Auto Set Up, Tested

By the Associated Press.

DAYTONA BEACH, Feb. 9. —Three days and nights of bolt tightening by six English mechanics resulted today in Sir Malcolm Campbell's Bluebird racing car throbbing with life as its 2500 horsepower motor started for the first time this side of the Atlantic.

Compressed air is used to start the 12-cylindered aviation motor. The car was not moved from the garage floor during three tests of its power plant.

The Bluebird, in which Campbell hopes to set a new world land speed record this month above 272.108 miles an hour will not be taken on the beach before Monday morning. On that day also, Campbell will drive a new stock car in an attemtp to raise stock car records for its class.

If Campbell does take his mighty Bluebird on the beach Monday morning, he'll drive only slowly—"not over 200 miles an hour." A. A. A. sanction for Campbell's record trials extends from Tuesday to Feb. 25.

HORNBOSTEL IS EASY WINNER IN 1000-YARD RUN

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Feb. 9.—The illness of Elton Brown of Kansas City, probably prevented Indiana's great Charlie Hornbostel from breaking his second world's record in as many weeks in the Boston A. A. game's 1000-yard run tonight at the Boston Garden. With no one capable of pushing him, Hornbostel broke the tape in 2:14 1-5, two and a fifth seconds behind the mark set by Hal "Flying Parson" Cutbill 13 years ago.

The mid-western speedster, who pulled away from his field with a mighty spurt at the halfway mark, led Glen Dawson of Tulsa by 15 yards when he finished. Dawson had a yard on the third-place winner, Waldo Sweet of the New York A. C.

Brown was an easy winner of the Millrose half-mile and his entry in this B. A. A. event seemed to be just what was needed to force Hornbostel to give another record-breaking performance. Brown, however, was stricken with grippe and was unable to leave New York. Hornbostel's 2:14 1-5 was the best time ever made in the B. A. A. event which dates back 46 years. He had absolutely no competition after the third lap and had plenty left when he finished.

After equalling the world record of 5 4-5 seconds in his 45-yard high hurdles trial heat, Ray McLaughlin of the Host Club was beaten by a yard in the final by Milt Green, Harvard's crack timber-topper, in one of the early events.

Green won in six seconds flat and third place went to Dick Hayes of Harvard. John Fatseas of New York U., who also matched the world mark in his trial, failed to qualify for the final.

Gene Venzke was victor in the Hunter mile. The Pennsylvania undergraduate dominated this classic from start to finish. Because he set his own pace he broke the tape in 4:17 3-5, slow when compared to the amazing performances of the absent Glenn Cunningham, who won this classic last year.

Venzke led from start to finish but for 11 of the 12 laps had Eric Ny of Sweden at his heels. The victor cut loose with the bell and beat Ny to the tape by 20 yards. Brendon Moynahan of the B. A. A., the third man, was a half-lap behind when Venzke finished and the laboring Frank Crowley of the New York A. C. was fourth.

TWO RECORDS FALL IN A. A. U. RELAYS

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 9.—Two records went by the boards tonight and another was equaled in the annual A. A. U. relays held here.

Mullins of Western State Teachers' College, negotiated the 65-yard low hurdles, open, in 7.1.

Running the two-mile event in 9 minutes, 21.8 seconds Zepp, of Michigan Normal, shattered the old mark.

METCALFE EQUALS HIS WORLD RECORD FOR 70 YARDS, INDOORS

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Feb. 9. —Beaten twice by a newly-rising star from the University of Maryland, the veteran Ralph Metcalfe, formerly of Marquette, came back with a burst of speed tonight to take the 70-yard special sprint dash in seven seconds flat, equalling his own world's indoor record for that distance.

Earl Widmyer of Maryland who earlier had beaten Metcalfe in 60-yard and 50-yard sprints, finished third in the final match with the Marquette Negro.

Peacock, Negro star of Temple, who a few minutes later won the broad jump contest with a leap of 23 feet, 4¾ inches, finished second to Metcalfe.

Despite this performance, Widmyer earned the title of sprint champion, with 11 points to nine for Metcalfe and seven for Peacock.

A dozen field house and state track and field marks fell before the assaults of 280 athletes representing 14 colleges and 17 high schools who took part in the meet, in addition to Metcalfe's record-equalling performance.

Winners in the college final events:

50-Yard Special Sprint—Widmyer, 5.2 seconds.

Record Entry of 2825 Teams For American Bowling Congress

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 9.—A new all-time entry record of 2825 teams was announced today for the thirty-fifth annual American Bowling Congress championships which open March 1 at Syracuse, N. Y.

Elmer Baumgarten, A. B. C. secretary, with offices here, reported also that a new high mark for visiting teams has been established. With the enrollment of 1485 line-ups in metropolitan Syracuse, the outside entry of 1440 quintets surpassed Cleveland's 1930 record by 18.

Buffalo held the former total registration figure with the 2639 mark set in the 1931 tournament.

A total of 14,125 individuals will compete. Of the rollers shooting from March 1 to April 10, there will be seven Canadian teams, four from Montreal and three from Toronto. The Far West is represented by one team making the trip from San Francisco.

Heavy entries, besides the Syracuse county, came from the following: Buffalo, 111 teams; New York City, 83; Auburn, N. Y., 76; Detroit, 67; Chicago, 59.

MAPLEWOOD HIGH LOSES THRILLER TO WEBSTER FIVE

Maplewood lost a splendid opportunity to tie University City for the lead in the Suburban League basketball race when the Leafs were nosed out, 26 to 25, by Webster Groves last night on the Maplewood floor. University City invaded Ritenour to return with a 39 to 19 decision in the other game. It was the Indians' seventh victory in eight starts.

After holding a half-time edge of 18 to 9, Maplewood fell apart in the last two periods. While Jim Heitert was doing great defensive work to break up numerous Maplewood plays, his teammates kept whittling away at the Leafs' lead until they were only two points behind when the final period started. The score then was 20 to 18.

Norman Ficke gave Maplewood a four-point margin on a field goal, but Morris Hoffman and Dan Muther followed with short shots that tied the score at 22-all. With less than five minutes to go, Allen Payne pushed in an overhead, two-hand shot, that brought the crowd of 800 to its feet and there they stayed for the balance of the game. That goal put Webster out in front, 24 to 22.

Before the contest closed Dick Kohlman was on the receiving end of a sneaker play that put Webster's total at 26. Bob Orf revived Maplewood's hopes with a field goal and a free throw with two minutes left to play. However, neither side scored in that time.

Maplewood's defeat put it in a second place tie with Webster Groves and Clayton, each school having won six games and lost two.

Tigers Again Beat Kansas State and Climb to Fourth

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 9.—The Missouri Tigers made it two victories in succession over Kansas State by defeating the Wildcats, 34-20, here tonight and avenging a double triumph the Purple scored over them in Manhattan last weekend.

The double victory pulled the Tigers from last to fourth place.

Led by Carmin (Chink) Henderson of Springfield, Mo., elongated forward, Missouri, took a 10-3 lead halfway through the first half and held the advantage all the way. The half time count was 17-12.

Lacking the services of Long Jim Freeland, Wildcat scoring ace who was withheld from the lineup with a sprained ankle suffered in last night's Tiger victory, Kansas State was crippled on offense despite the expert individual work of Thornbrough, subbing for Freeland, and Groves, center.

Henderson's work on rebounds enabled Missouri to stretch the gap to 24-16 in the second half. Strom and Powell both found the basket while the lengthy Henderson tipped in rebounds.

Captain Duke Jorgenson, guard, who made 15 points last night, made a disappointing showing with only a single field goal to his credit. A Wildcat rally failed miserably as the Tiger defense tightened up and allowed the visitors only one point in the last five minutes.

Henderson was the individual scoring leader with 11 points. Thornbrough was the Wildcat scoring ace, sinking two field goals and two charity tosses. Approximately 3600 Tiger fans witnessed the game.

ST. LOUIS BOY BETTERS BIG TEN SWIM MARK

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 9.—Iowa swimmers bettered one Western Conference record, equaled another and set six new university marks in defeating Minnesota tonight, 58 to 26. The Hawkeyes won eight of the nine events.

Adolph Jacobsmeyer, St. Louis boy and Hawkeye free style swimmer, bettered the Big Ten mark in the 440-yard event, being clocked in 4:54. His time was more than six seconds faster than the record.

PABS AND GOLUBS IN FIRST MUNY TITLE CONTEST WEDNESDAY

The St. Louis Pabs' strong offensive will be matched against the Golubs' tight defense when these two divisional champions of the Men's Municipal Basketball League open their city championship series Wednesday night in a mixed doubleheader at the Sherman Park Community Center.

Final figures on the season's play of nine games, reveal the Pabs have outscored the Golubs by 67 points, 332 to 265, while showing an apparent weakness on defense, 226 to 207, a difference of 19 points.

The winner of the two-out-of-three-game series will become the twenty-first titleholder in the history of the muny sport, dating back to the 1914-15 opening campaign when the Columbian A. C. won the title.

Since the Golubs won the city title last season, if they triumph again this year, they will become the fifth team to have won the amateur title two or more times. The Leacocks hold the record of four conquests. Other squads that won the crown twice were the Columbian A. C., Central Y. M. C. A. and Los Angeles Club.

Regulars to Be in Lineups.

Both managers, Paul A. Bick (his initals form the name "Pab") and Russ Lyons, are expected to start their same lineups that came through to title. The one exception may possibly be the Golubs were Barney Braimmer, husgy guards, is recovering from an infection of his right leg.

Johnny Corcoran of the Affton Boosters, who scored 114 points or 34 more than the second highest player (Covington), will not participate in the play-offs. Covington with 80 points beat out Elmer Serb of the North St. Louis Turners by two points for the honor of leading Division No. 2 and becoming the second ranking scorer behind Corcoran. Serb was third high with 78 points and Pralle was fourth with 76.

Opening the program Wednesday night will be a seventh-round Girls' Municipal Basketball League game between two of the outstanding squads of the season, the Bachelor Club and the Hellrung-Grimms. These two clubs are in a three-way tie with the S-K's for second place behind the White Ways who were upset by the Bachelors last week.

HEAD PLAY IS SURPRISE WINNER OF SANTA ANITA RACE

1933 PREAKNESS VICTOR REFUNDS $35; GALLANT SIR FINISHES FOURTH

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 9. — Head Play, a long shot, recorded a sensational upset victory today to win the $7500 added San Antonio Handicap over a mile and one-eighth in 1:52.2. Fleam, another long shot, was second, and Azucar, the favorite, placed third.

The winner, owned by Mrs. Silas B. Mason, paid $35.20 to win, $15.40 to place and $6.40 to show. Fleam paid $9.80 and $4.20, and Azucar was good for $3.20.

Head Play, a Preakness winner and second to Broker's Tip in a much-discussed Kentucky Derby, went to the post a 16 to 1 shot. Fleam was rated at 11 to 1 and Azucar started at even money.

$68,000 Bet on Race.

Mutuel tickets on the race, a prepping for the Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 23, showed wagering amounting to $68,523.

Charles Kurtzinger, who rode Head Play to victory in the Preakness in 1933, was guiding the famous horse again today. Head Play broke away from his stall and, getting to the front soon after the start, was well rated to the far turn. The San Antonio winner then lengthened his advantage and never was in danger.

Gallant Sir Leads at Start.

Gallant Sir was the first away, but at the quarter mile Head Play forged into the lead by a length and never relinquished the advantage, boosting the margin to a length and a half at the half mile, three lengths at the three-quarter mark, and was two and a half lengths in the lead at the stretch. The winner finished by this margin ahead of Fleam.

Azucar was only a neck behind Fleam, but Gallant Sir trailed in fourth position, three lengths behind Azucar.

The race, run on a slow track, was the first weights for ages stake at Santa Anita.

Head Play had the railbirds guessings at post time. Rejuvenated despite bad underpinning, the "red head" has been unable to show much in previous performances. Few apparently thought today was his day and the winner started at the widest odds of the field.

RENS WILL TRY TO AVENGE LOSS IN CELTIC GAME

Already one up on their Negro rivals by virtue of a 28-20 victory in Chicago Friday night, the New York Celtics will risk their undefeated record in St. Louis Friday night against the Renaissance at the Coliseum.

As usual, Nat Hickey and Pete Barry led the Celtics attack in the Chicago game, scoring more than half their team's points. The six foot, 185-pound Barry, an "iron man" of basketball, has been playing with the Celtics for 20 years. He alternates at all positions on the team which boasts that it has nothing but forwards and believes in a stout offense being the best defense.

The Rens will present in their starting lineup some of the most widely known names in basketball. The Negro team depends to a considerable extent on the famous "Pappy" Ricks, forward, for the big scoring punch. "Pappy" in 140 games last year scored more than 2000 points for an average of 14.3 per game. The other forward position is held by Capt. "Fat" Jenkins.

GRANITE CITY TRIMS COLLINSVILLE, TAKES LEAD IN BASKET RACE

Granite City High took the lead in the Madison-St. Clair basketball race by defeating Collinsville, 30 to 28, in their game at Collinsville last night. Granite City now has seven victories and one defeat. Collinsville, in second place, has six victories and two defeats. In another conference game last night, Madison won from Alton, 31 to 14.

Field Trials at Sturgeon.

MORE than 30 of the country's finest hunting dogs are now at Sturgeon, Boone County, and others are expected there preparatory to the start of the Amateur Quail Championship of the Amateur Field Trial Clubs of America tomorrow. This trial, the first of its kind ever run over a Missouri course, is one of the country's major hunting dog events.

Included in the list of entrants from Missouri is Shenie's Freckles, a setter and winner of the Missouri State Field Trials Association's meet last fall. This dog won its State championship over the same course that the national trials is to be run. As the officials of the St. Louis Pointer and Setter Club did not retain their membership in the national association last year, its dogs are not qualified for the national amateur, but may take part in the all-age open stakes to be run after the national event. Ozark Joe is a St. Louis dog entered in the Missouri all-age race.

First man to arrive for the meet was John Rhisko of Buffalo, N. Y., with a string of dogs, including Ch. Seaview Rex's Queen, a famous Eastern circuit dog. This dog and others from Rhisko's kennels have been worked over the Missouri course during the last several days.

Thatcher A. Parker of Effingham, Kan., of the grounds committee of the American Amateur Association, spent three days this week riding the course and reported to Dr. Z. W Street of Sturgeon, secretary of the Missouri Field Trials Association, host to the national trials, that the Missouri course was in excellent condition, with an ample supply of birds in the area. In addition to the natural stock of birds in the area, the State Game and Fish Department last fall planted approximately 800 additional quail in the 16,000-acre field trials grounds.

The trial courses as now laid out provide about 28 miles of riding paths. As the national trials run for two hours for each brace of two dogs, instead of the one-half hour braces used in the State trials, the additional course facilities are needed.

Tuesday promises to be one of the biggest days of the meet. With the drawings and other preliminaries out of the way Monday, the trials should be in full swing by Tuesday, those in charge say. A "dog strutters' ball" will be a social event that evening at the Sturgeon Tavern, which is the headquarters for the trials.

A bench show will be held at Centralia on Wednesday night. It was necessary to make arrangements for the bench show to be held in the adjoining town because adequate facilities were not available in Sturgeon for the large number of entrants.

Because the trials promise to attract a great number of visitors, special arrangements have been made to provide horses for those who wish to follow the braces as a part of the gallery.

Immediately following the national amateur trials, expected to be ended by Thursday, an all-age open stake will be run for cash prizes. These contests always attract a large entry list in addition to the amateur lists.

Believe It or Not.

A prize fox hunting story comes from Shelbina where Garnet Threlkeld is credited with an unusual feat. According to Shelbina authorities, Threlkeld recently killed two foxes with one shot as the two animals were running side by side. Garnett and his sons, Joe and Pat, killed 17 foxes near Shelbina during the hunting and trapping season just closed.

Novel Crow Trap.

Brunswickers believe they have something unique in a crow trap they have built. One day recently, when one of the builders of the trap visited the device, he found a dozen crows, a small field hawk and two vultures in the cage. Later a great horned owl was caught in the trap.

Waterfowl Survey.

State and Federal game protectors, making a survey of waterfowl remaining in Missouri during the winter, have estimated that approximately 100,000 birds have remained on the 61,000-acre Lake of the Ozarks, Harry Barmeier, United States game protector of St. Louis, says. The greatest concentration of ducks, largely mallards, was on the eastern end of the lake, the survey showed. It is at this end of the lake that several thousand bushels of corn are fed each winter to waterfowl.

KILBANE WILL BRING TEAM OF AMATEURS HERE

Johnny Kilbane, former featherweight champion of the world is selecting and training a team of Cleveland amateur boxers to compete at The Arena, here, Feb. 20, according to Dr. Jesse R. Robinson, president of the Olympic A. C., who announced last night that the Ohio ring men will be paired against St. Louis and Illinois boxers who turned in victories in the Olympic Club's last two fistic tournaments. Kilbane's boxers will show in six of the 10 events.

Fighters who gained the finals in the seventh annual Golden Gloves tourney at Cleveland a week ago head the group from which Kilbane will select his squad. Listed among the Golden Gloves finalists are Steve Smozy, heavyweight, Eddie Kelly, featherweight, Lloyd Marshall, lightweight, and Frankie Kara, bantamweight. Another prospective member of the Ohio squad is Frank Bojak, winner last year of Golden Gloves lightweight title honors in both the Cleveland trials and the grand finals at Chicago.

Tickets for The Arena boxing tournament will go on sale tomorrow at the Olympic Club's downtown box office in the Arcade Building. Five thousand seats will be available at 15 cents to boys under 16 years of age.

Officials of the Olympic Athletic Club are also working out plans for the National A. A. U. women's field and track championships, recently awarded the local organization. The meet will be held at The Arena, the date to be determined upon the return of C. D. P. Hamilton, president of The Arena Co., who is expected back Tuesday from a trip to Boston.

MILWAUKEE AMATEURS TO BOX HERE FEB. 22

Spica and Kopylodowski will be meeting in a return match, as the Milwaukee fighter recently won a close decision from Spica in the north. In his last two matches, Spica outpointed Tommy Starr, Southern Illinois champion.

The headline matches will be supported by six bouts starring newly crowned Community Center champions and contenders.

Swarts, 5362 Waterman avenue, was announced by Mr. and Mrs. Keeler at a cocktail party at their home from 5 until 7 o'clock last night. Golden Wedding Anniversary of C. H. Ledlies

ST. LOUIS society a half century ago today was preparing to attend the wedding the following evening of Miss Elizabeth Lucas Johnson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Johnson, 2131 Lucas place, and granddaughter of the late James H. Lucas, to Charles H. Ledlie of New York. Society columns of the day heralded the ceremony as one of the most important events of the social season.

Tomorrow Mr. and Mrs. Ledlie will quietly observe their fiftieth anniversary at their present home, 4446 Westminster place, while their contemporaries recall elaborate plans for their wedding, and the ceremony itself.

Lucas place, then one of St. Louis' most fashionable streets, buzzed with excitement Feb. 11, 1885, as wagon loads of "tropical plants, flowers and bright foliage" arrived to "decorate the spacious halls, salons and parlors, and fill the windows and fireplaces." An arch of smilax, much like those used today, "converted a bay window into a bower from which depended a wishbone of pure white roses and camelias, beneath which the happy couple stood during the ceremony." The bridal chorus from Lohengrin was played by Spering's orchestra as they entered.

The bride, "a blonde," wore a robe of pure white ottoman silk, with a long princess train falling "in unbroken folds" over a petticoat covered by three deep flounces of point duchesse lace." The "corsage was decollette and sleeveless," and the bride's flowers a "bouquet du corsage of snowdrops and jasmine." An illusion veil, falling to the floor, "did not conceal the elegant toilette."

There were six bridesmaids—Miss Eugenia Johnson, Miss Marie Brown, Miss Henrice Johnson, Miss Mamie Tompkins, Miss Marie Flanagan and Miss Marie Reed of Washington. Mr. Ledlie brought most of his groomsmen from New York.

The old stone mansion with its luxurious appointments was razed years ago as the city moved westward. The bride and bridegroom

Cruise Party At Woman's Club Saturday Evening

THE Steamer Gala Night, built into the ballroom of the St. Louis Woman's Club, will set forth at 8 o'clock next Saturday night on an imaginary world cruise with 223 "passengers" on board. Reservations were closed yesterday, when the Junior Committee, under whose auspices the party is being given, announced that no further "accommodations" were available.

At a signal from "Captain" Jerome Schotten's whistle, the guests will go to their "life boat" positions, indicated on cards previously distributed, and guests will be introduced to each other. Dancing will follow.

As the vessel touches various ports, announced by the master of ceremonies, entertainers will be taken on board. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Folk (Elizabeth Jamison) will dance the Argentine tango, and Mrs. T. Middleton Levis will sing "La Cucaracha' of Mexico. Feuerbacher Jr.

The "Japanese" entertainers will be Miss Mary Louise Hammett and Mrs. Nelson Howe; Miss Lola Aquado will dance the nautch dance of India, and Mrs. Frank Hickman will impersonate a French night club entertainer. In England the ship will be boarded by the "Tiller Chorus," comprising Miss Patricia Thompson, Miss Jane Lamy, Miss Virginia and Miss Elizabeth Cave, and Miss Marion Davis, debutantes of two seasons ago. Miss Mary Elizabeth Hunter and James Fisher will dance the "Continental."

During the entertainment, the guests will be seated for dinner at small tables arranged in night club fashion. Yellow flooring, a rail, and panels depicting blue sky and passing ships, will add to the ship atmosphere. Models of the panel decorations were designed by Mrs. Howe, and the enlargements painted by a committee of junior mem-

Dog Fashion Show Costume Ideas

MISS MILDRED WEBSTER has prepared a schedule of costumes to be displayed in the dog fashion show, a feature of Welcome Inn's dime fair and circus at the Coliseum, March 4 to 10.

Dog sweaters and various styles of harness may be used in the conventional attire class, Miss Webster has told the debutante committee, headed by Miss Jane Wells, which has agreed to manage the show of dog fashions.

For dogs qualifying in the most extraordinary attire class, the wardrobe of a movie star or person prominent in politics or social life is suggested.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

THE trouble with American diners-out is that they will stand for anything without making a scene, and that is one reason why restaurateurs get away with so much bad food and slovenly service. An Englishman or a Frenchman being served cream soup in a cup or a badly cooked dish is likely to throw it in the waiter's face and start for the manager with a serving fork, which is just what each deserves, but a New Yorker is willing to be abused to any extent before he will call attention to himself.

An exception to this rule is Karl K. Kitchen. A distinguished gourmet and a traveler of world-wide experience, he can't be bullied by waiters. If an order of food improperly prepared or served is set before him, he smashes it on the floor and starts howling to heaven for the scalps of chef and waiter alike.

A week or two ago at a Fifty-seventh street resort the service was so unspeakable that 40 couples walked out without paying their checks, leaving the management vainly screaming for payment, as happy a sign as has been seen in years. That night every single waiter, captain, busboy, pantryman and chef was fired and a new staff moved in next day. A few more such revolts and the cleaning out of entire staffs in a score or two of the town's biggest hotels and restaurants is what the business of dining out in New York needs. Any sensible person ought to realize that no mainager will call for police to collect a check from a complaining patron. It causes too big a scene and the patron can shout his grief all over the place before he can be removed.

There has been a vast pother over the election by a tailors' jury of William Goadby Loew as the best dressed of New Yorkers, even though the laugh is on the merchant tailors, since Mr. Loew has all his clothes made in London. Our personal nomination for the smartest of the town's boulevardiers is Richard Newton, the sporting artist and painter of many famous hunting mounts. Mr. Newton is a familiar figure on the smart avenues and at the Ritz or Colony at lunch time and, perhaps because there is a flavor of sportiness about his dress, invariably cuts a handsome figure. He is one of the last regular Ascot wearers and favors a black silk tie folded magnificently and secured with a neat pearl. His coat skirts have a slight flare to them, reminiscent of a riding jacket and he is usually accompanied by a pert pup on a leash. In addition to being a connoisseur of clothes, Mr. Newton is a famous huntsman in his own right and possesses magnificent gardens on Long Island.

The fact that the Ascot tie is rear except for formal morning occasions makes it all the smarter with street clothes. George Wrangle affects one, and so does Dan'l Frohman. Whitney Warren likes a silk stock loosely thrown about his neck and tied with a heavy hunting pin.

They're still whooping about the gunfire evening in one of the mid-town luxury hotels, where an old gentleman has the suite right next one of Manhattan's gayest young blades. In the youth's drawing room there used to be a foolish calico horse with crazy legs and an absurd red mane, hooked from Reuben's one hilarious night. The other morning about 4 a grand party was in progress in the youth's rooms, and his candy lamb of the moment complained that the horse was getting on her nerves. Whipping a large caliber revolver from a desk drawer, the young man blew the stuffed horse into a snowstorm of ribbons with six deafening shots. Everybody had fun.

The next morning the old gentleman remarked to the manager of the hotel on the terrific backfiring that had awakened him during the night. "It sounded just like gunfire right in the next room," he said, "and so strong is the power of suggestion that I could have sworn a minute or so later that I smelled powder smoke!"

A while ago this department mentioned something of a stir created in the circle of local gourmets by the arrival from Texas of a number of smoked turkeys, to the vast satisfaction of all the recipients.

It appears that smoked turkey is also a local contribution to good living and that Brown's Grand Meat Market, in Ossining, has been stocking it for years, while it is a house specialty at a resort called, hair-raisingly enough, Ye Olde Chop House, in downtown Cedar street.

Mr. Brown's smoked birds, which are available at Voisin's in Manhattan, are edible even to the skin and are great favorites with sportsmen and winter sports enthusiasts who have them put up for country lunches. The meat is smoked by a secret process taking about three weeks. Only the best apple and hickory nut woods are used, and Mr. Brown has a list of old customers whom he notifies whenever a batch of the birds is nearing edibility. Smoked turkey can be eaten straight, as an entree with potato salad, or in sandwiches, or as an hors d'oeuvre with cocktails.

"I'll Sue You!"

Amusing and Unpredictable Are Many of the Altercations That Have Recently Come Before the Courts of the Land for Consideration by Harassed Jurists.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

ROCCO URGO, a Chicagoan, was haled into court one day last year at his wife's instance. After she'd had her say, the Judge granted a series of injunctions per Mrs. Urgo's petition. Urgo was peremptorily ordered never to enter his house by the chimney and shout "Boo!" at his wife. He was further enjoined from tossing things that clatter down the flue and from shouting "down same." Mrs. Urgo had declared there were things that made shivers run down her spine. "And well they might," the Judge was heard to mutter; he added something about granting her a divorce if she wanted one.

This incident is not out of the hectically imaginative fiction writings of a James Thurber. It actually happened. What is more, it is only one of many such events which transpired in the courtrooms of the United States during the past year. Some of them were generally heralded at the time of their occurence, but only a few; for the most part they have gone to join their prosaic forgotten brother-cases in the thousands upon thousands of pages that have been transcribed by bored court stenographers during routine trials.

One fertile source of such anecdotes is Superior Court Judge Joseph B. David of Chicago, who was asked to rule on the question of naked tableaux vivants at the World's Fair last summer. Previously, when Sally Rand, the fan dancer, was brought before Judge David, charged with indecent exposure, he had put himself down as a champion of the fine arts by dismissing the charges, with the comment: "Some folks would put pants on a horse!"

When Peggy Hahn was brought before Judge David, she had been taking the part of Olympia in a tableau vivant, representing Manet's famous reclining nude; the exhibit was of the famed Streets of Paris concession. Judge David's comment was in the tradition of his earlier utterance. "There is too much prudery around here. There is nothing indecent about the human body. There is evil only to those with evil thoughts." But he went on from there. He stipulated that Miss Hahn might continue to be the nude Olympia in the tableau, only she must keep still. If she waved to spectators, that would be vulgar and she would be liable to prosecution.

ANOTHER Chicago Judge, Joseph B. Sabbath, gave an opinion while granting a divorce to 200-pound Donald Verkler.

"What did she do?" the Court asked the plaintiff.

"She threw hot grease at me," Verkler said ruefully.

"Don't you know," the Judge admonished him gravely, "that the common law still gives a man the right to chastise his wife moderately if she misbehaves? Why didn't you spank her? That's what I'd have done."

An interesting precedent was set in Judge John J. Gregory's court in Milwaukee during another domestic case. The wife, Mrs. Herman Buchholz, was suing her husband, a manufacturer, for divorce. During a temporary alimony hearing, Mrs. Buchholz's attorneys brought forward a suggestion for compromise. If Buchholz were instructed to fire his secretary, they said, Mrs. Buchholz would agree to return to her husband. (She said that her husband was accustomed to working late at night, taking his secretary to dinner and then driving her home in his automobile.) Judge Gregory's opinion was given freely. A Circuit Court Judge cannot compel a married man to discharge his private secretary, he ruled. And the judgment stood.

There have also been severe judgments with an element of humor. Judge Edward Hanify, sitting in a New Bedford, Massachusetts, court, fined Octave Benjamin, a 54-year-old storekeeper, $1000 for stealing two kisses. Benjamin was instructed to pay the fine to his victim the next time she came into his store . . . but, apparently there is no stock price for unsolicited kisses in the courts of the country, for in Cleveland, when a woman sued for $25,000 as compensation for one stolen kiss, she was awarded only six cents.

There is a certain satisfaction, however, in discovering that some Judges are as severe with themselves as they are with others. Judge King Dunn of Etowah, Tennessee, brought charges against himself in his own court, pleaded guilty and fined himself five dollars—which he promptly paid out of his own pocket. Judge John Goodhouse of Pierre, South Dakota, was even more rigorous in his self-chastisement. After getting into a fight with a neighbor, Judge Goodhouse brought himself to court, fined himself $10 and locked himself up in jail for 30 days.

Such courage may be inspiring to disciples of common law, but they are as nothing compared with the case of Neno Oliver, who did more than go through fire and water for his wife—who had gone through her share of fire water. Mrs. Oliver was arrested when the man with whom she was driving in an automobile was picked up for driving while intoxicated.

She, too, was charged with drunkenness and ordered to appear in a Denver police court.

BUT when the day for the trial came, she was ill and unable to appear. Her husband came in her stead and when the case was called by Judge Alvin H. Pickens, he came forward and gave his explanation. The Judge asked Oliver whether he would be willing to take his wife's punishment for her. The husband agreed, not knowing it would be a generous dose of castor oil, Judge Picken's favorite remedy. And Neno Oliver took it.

The man who created the character, John Bull, is responsible for an aphorism with which many laymen have been warned at one time or another; he said, "The law is a bottomless pit." Never was that catchword borne out more succinctly than in the case of Edward Hrdlicka, a Chicago attorney, who was sued for divorce in Judge Rudolph Desort's court. Hrdlicka was forced to agree during the proceedings that if he ever decided to commit suicide he would first tell his wife, so that she could get a court to enjoin him to keep right on living. This was a compromise measure. Mrs. Hrdlicka had asked the Court to give her an injunction so that her husband could never commit suicide, but the court ruled that the injunction could not be given until the lawyer gave notice of intention to do so. Thus it is implied that if Hrdlicka ever wants to die, wilfully and maliciously, he must first inform his wife, then get it over with quickly before she has a chance to get the injunction served on him.

It was in Chicago that Adolph Schnidzel was ordered to pay $10 for doing in a cat with a niblick; the cat was frightening his canary. In Chicago also the aforementioned Judge Sabbath pronounced that "a woman's right to talk is her prerogative"; he gave Mrs Etta Rohr permission to phone her husband whenever she wants to and to say anything she pleases to him, adding: "The right (of free speech) is especially important to this woman, who had practised it for 20 years of married life without restraint." But the poetry of the law may raise its head outside of Chicago, too, as it did when Justice Gray Haddon of Richmond, Virginia, stated that flowers are not luxuries, but household necessities. Some of the poetry went out of this decision when it was added that flowers are in a class with eggs, wood, oysters, game and vegetables. Here it may have been the spirit that called blossoms a need; the letter of the law called them "family supplies."

Although some of the above cases reflect judicial individualism, it would be unfair to assume that most courtroom humor comes in from the Court. Judge Harry Sewell of Los Angeles was the only Judge last year who was taken to the psychopathic ward for observation after conducting an insanity hearing. Plaintiffs are responsible for most of the anomalies that occur; plaintiffs and juries.

IN Philadelphia, for instance, Miss Jean Marsh got $3500 damages because she could no longer smell an onion. In Elmira, N. Y., Lovell Short got the same amount for not being able to stop crying since he was hurt in an accident. In Kansas City, Kansas, Winthrop Williams asked $25,000 because he had lost the ability to whistle, and in Burlington, North Carolina, two men whose car was smashed by a freight train said the railroad was responsible because the locomotive engineer had been busy flirting with a girl at the roadside and hadn't whistled.

There is no end to curious suits. A Muskogee, Oklahoma, physician sued the telephone company for listing him in the directory as a paper hanger. Mrs. Nellie Murray filed suit in Salem, Massachusetts, to recover $380 from the brother of the man she had buried instead of her husband, who disappeared in 1929. In Pittsfield, Massachusetts, a farmer got $50 damages because his cow's tail was bitten by a dog. The dog was a stray and the county had to pay the damages. In Denver, L. W. Ross was ordered to pay alimony to his own daughter because he owed money

How Science Forced a Conviction in the Famous Magnuson Bombing Case

The Three Experts Who Met at the Hauptmann Trial and the Chain of Proof They Forged From Scraps of Wood and Iron.

By R. G. LYNCH

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MILWAUKEE.

THREE men of science met recently in Flemington, New Jersey. By day, they were under the eyes of all the world, for they were star witnesses against Bruno Richard Hauptmann. In the evening, outside the courtroom, they had much to talk about, for 11 years ago they convicted a man in one of the most scientific trials on record.

They were Arthur Koehler of the United States Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis., who testified at Flemington that the kidnaper's ladder and a floor board in Hauptmann's attic came from the same piece of lumber; John F. Tyrrell of Milwaukee, who declared the handwriting of Hauptmann's samples and the kidnap notes "identical," and Albert S. Osborn, who pronounced the evidence against Hauptmann as writer of the notes "irresistible, unanswerable, overwhelming."

In 1923, in the case of the "Marshfield Yule Bombs," though their testimony was as striking, the stage had not been set by international interest. But their solution was so dramatic that the Postoffice Department displayed the evidence in the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial Exposition.

A package inscribed "Do not open before Christmas" was mailed in December, 1922, to James A. Chapman, a farmer of Wood County, Wisconsin. When he cut the string, with Mrs. Chapman looking on, hell belched forth. Chapman saw red stains spreading over his wife's apron, saw her falling, and reached out to help her—but only a part of his right hand was there. Mrs. Chapman died. Chapman survived.

Only bits of wood and metal and scraps of paper remained of the bomb, and only suspicion existed of the maker, but science named the murderer just as surely as though he had written his return address on the package. A jury thought so, at any rate.

Chapman, an old resident of the community and chairman of the county board, apparently had not a real enemy in the world. The only friction of any sort that his neighbors recalled had been with one John Magnuson, another farmer, over a drainage project of which Chapman was a commissioner. It was hardly a killing matter, but Magnuson had talked about his 30-30 going "peck-peck-peck" when the dredge reached his land, and the dredge had blown up mysteriously when it got within 20 rods of his line, so the postoffice inspectors decided that he was the only suspect in the murder and locked him up.

The torn paper wrapper of the "Christmas package" was pieced together. The address read, "J. A. Chapman, R. 1. Marsfilld, Wis." in printed script. One end of the bomb was found intact and enough pieces were dug from the walls and ceiling to reconstruct the infernal machine.

It consisted of a piece of white elm about 14 inches long and an inch and one-quarter square, with a hole bored through it lengthwise to receive a brass tube containing a wagon bolt inside of a coil spring. A slot in one edge of the block held a triangular steel trigger, with one notch that fitted under the head of the bolt, and another, in its outer edges for the wrapping cord. When the package was tied up, the trigger would force the bolt back, compressing the spring, and cock the bomb as one cocks a rifle.

Arthur Koehler.

Prof. David Fahlberg.

At the end of the wagon bolt, a small firing pin was fastened so the bolt, when released, would drive it into the cap of a shotgun shell from which the paper part had been cut away.

A SHORT piece of gas pipe, with a coupling and a small collar, was screwed on the end of the block as a container for the explosive, which was identified as picric acid, made by the Government from wartime T. N. T. for the use of farmers in blasting stumps. A detonating cap evidently had been buried in the explosive.

With the bomb reconstructed, the investigators turned to Magnuson's farm in search of evidence that he had made it. Magnuson laughed at the suspicion, saying that no man would commit murder over a drainage argument. He knew his rights under the law but he gave the officers free access to his premises.

"Did you ever work white elm on your lathe?" he was asked.

"No," he replied. "I never had any on the place—ash, oak and hemlock, but no white elm."

When they asked about pens in his home, he produced his son's broken fountain pen and said that his daughter had another, which the officers obtained from her. A bottle of black ink was found in the house.

Prof. J. H. Matthews.

Magnuson had a fine workshop. The searchers found a variety of tools and materials—lengths and couplings of iron and lead pipe; pieces of wood, but no elm; a dismantled brass bed, some of the tubing of which corresponded to the piece in the bomb; and a set of coil springs from a mail order house. More significant discoveries were the brass end of a shotgun shell with the cap exploded and a box of picric acid blasting sticks. Both might have been found on any farm of the neighborhood, except that the paper had been cut away from the shell as if it might have been used to test the bomb, and that some of paper-wrapped blasting sticks had been broken open and emptied.

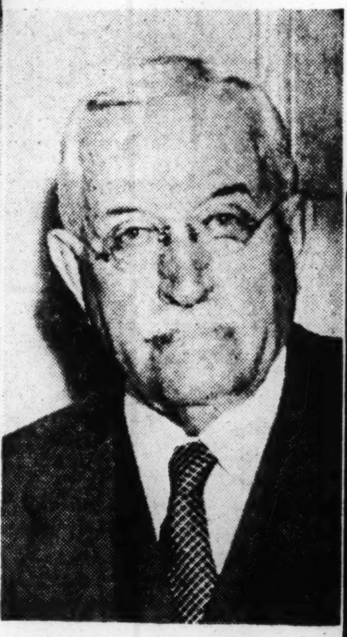
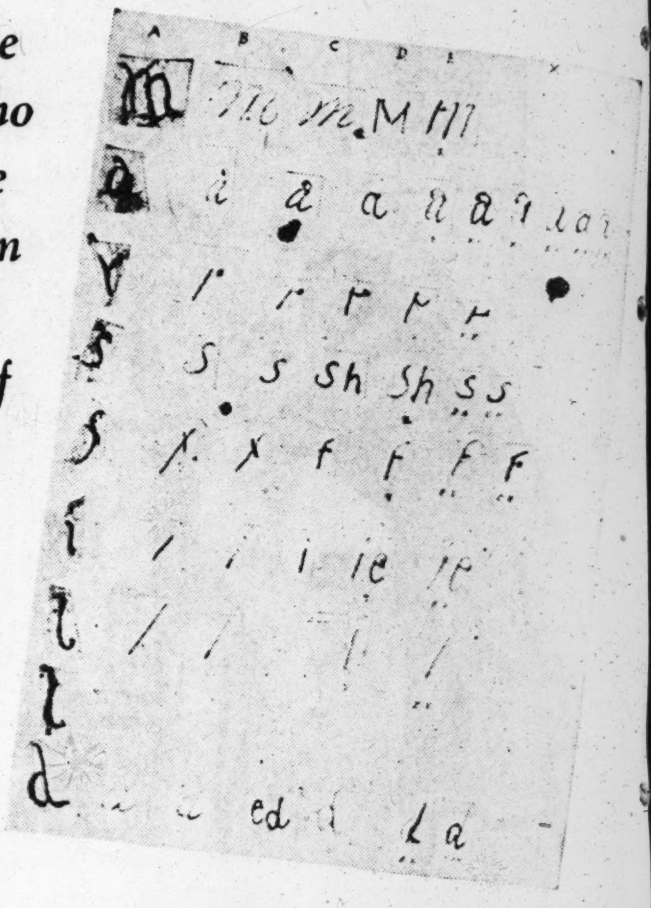
Theodore Brazeau, "the little giant of Wisconsin Rapids," was named special prosecutor. The prospects of conviction seemed very slim. The evidence appeared wholly circumstantial and Brazeau knew from experience that it would not impress a jury of Wood County farmers. Persons in the community were indignant that Magnuson was kept prisoner on such flimsy evidence. The veteran court stenographer who took the testimony at the preliminary hearing was outspoken among friends, calling it an outrage and expressing firm belief in the defendant's innocence. The defendant's attorney told his familiars, "The man is innocent. If they convict that fellow I'll never take another case."



Albert S. Osborn.

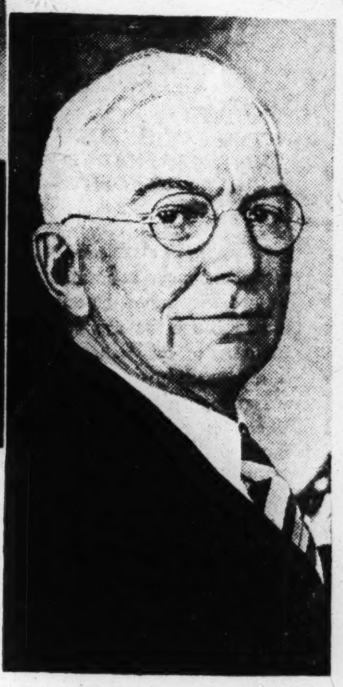
Brazeau surveyed his evidence: The partly reconstructed bomb, the heterogenious collection from Magnuson's premises, and some samples of the prisoner's handwriting. He could not go before a jury with that; in fact, he was not sure of Magnuson's guilt himself. He sent the bomb wrapper and handwriting samples to Tyrrell and asked the Milwaukee man to enlist other leading experts. Then he took the sawdust, the bomb trigger and the gas engine on a trip down to Madison to see if Prof. J. H. Matthews, head of the University of Wisconsin chemistry department, could help him.



Letters from bomb address in upper left enclosure, and letters from suspect's writing at right and below.

Magnuson was still laughing when his trial began. Neither he nor his counsel had much doubt of the outcome. The prisoner watched with a broad grin while Brazeau scattered exhibits—mostly "junk" from Magnuson's workshop—over the surfaces of two broad tables. He chuckled at the testimony of the handwriting experts and looked around to see if the jurors were getting as much of a kick out of the scientific palaver as he was. The jury, however, was not watching him. Its interest had been gripped, and continued to be held, by the presentation of scientific evidence so graphically that farmers and housewives could understand.

Tyrrell, Osborn and Jay F. Wood of Chicago identified the bomb address with Magnuson's writing, while the jurors followed the explanatory testimony by means of photographic copies of the experts' worksheets. Prof. Stromberg of the University of Minnesota testified that the address evidently had been written by a Swede, as Marshfield would be pronounced "Marsfilld" by a Swede and it had been written that way not only on the bomb but also in every sample written by Magnuson.



John F. Tyrrell.

Francis S. Du Pont, a Milwaukee chemist, testified that the ink of the address on the bomb wrapper was a mixture of standard brands of black and blue-black inks, identical with the mixture in the fountain pen of Magnuson's daughter, which evidently had been filled with black ink at home and refilled, when partly empty, with blue-black ink at school.

Koehler, of the forest products laboratory, swore that there was elm among the sawdust found under Magnuson's lathe and produced pictures of the cellular structure of different woods to show the jury how easy it was to tell them apart under a microscope.

While these men were testifying, Prof. Matthews and Prof. David Fahlberg, University of Wisconsin metallographer, were having a field day. They had gone to the trial prepared to testify about the bomb trigger and the gas engine trip and, while awaiting their turn, had discovered the bo[illegible] of pipe and other odds and ends collected in Magnuson's workshop. Fortunately, they had with them a metallographic microscope and with it they rigged up a metallographic camera, working all night in a hotel room to do it. Then they went to work.

WHEN the time came, Prof. Fahlberg explained to the jury that in examinations of 10,000 to 15,000 pieces of iron and steel he had never found two whose crystalline structure was the same unless they had come from the same pouring of metal and been subjected to the same treatment, heat, rolling, drawing, etc. He showed the jurors photomicrographs of the polished and etched surfaces of various irons and steels to demonstrate how greatly they differed.

Then he not only testified that the bomb trigger and the gas engine trip had been cut from the same parent piece (of such low grade that it probably was a barrel hoop), but went on to identify the pipe coupling of the bomb as having been cut from a coupling in Magnuson's workshop and the collar of the bomb as having been cut from a piece of pipe in the workshop.

To make sure of convincing the jury, the metallographers drew very accurate circles on photomicrographs, pricked through every crystal in the encircled areas, and counted the pin holes to prove that there were exactly the same number of crystals in a given area of a piece of the bomb and its mate from the workshop.

When the State rested, the defense attorney who had been so positive of his client's innocence told the Judge in chambers that he thought his client was guilty and asked advice. The Judge told him to advise the man to plead guilty if he was guilty. Magnuson replied to his attorney, "I am not guilty!"

The jury decided that he was. He insisted on an appeal, but the State Supreme Court, commending "the highly scientific and enlightened" evidence as a standard for prosecutors to emulate, affirmed the verdict and Magnuson went to the penitentiary for life.

Thrown Over the Palisades—But Caught on a Bush

But Russell A. Hey Hung on Even While Being Attacked With Stones to Find Out After He Had Been Rescued That His Wife Had Confessed to Being a Participant in the Plot on His Life.

Russell A. Hey.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

BOGOTA, New Jersey.

RUSSELL A. HEY, 42-year-old electric refrigerator salesman, who is growing slightly stooped and somewhat bald, and his wife, Lucille, a vivacious brunette six years his junior, stood one evening last fall on the towering cliffs of the Palisades watching the lights of New York City just across the Hudson River. They had parked their automobile at Point Lookout, highest crag of the Palisades, about 400 feet or so from where they stood. In that section the cliff falls away sheer to the river, 400 feet below. There have been quite a few suicides and accidents there, and authorities have built a wall at the outer edge of Point Lookout itself. The southern end of the wall is a few yards north of where the Heys were standing.

As Russell Hey placidly stood watching the electric lights and his wife fidgeted beside him, another automobile drove up and parked near theirs. Mrs. Hey clutched her husband's arm. He was wishing he could sell as many refrigerators as there were electric lights across the river that lapped at the base of the trap rock 400 feet below them. Suddenly his wife gave a stifled exclamation.

Hey glanced around and saw a tall and powerfully built youth with a pistol in one hand coming toward him. There was another man a few feet behind him. A holdup, Hey thought, as he automatically reached in his pocket and brought out the two $1 bills he had with him—his one idea.

"Put up your hands," said the roughly dressed youth in a sharp manner that had an air of nervousness about it.

Holding one hand well above his head, Hey extended the two crumpled bills from the other. With an oath, the youth knocked them from his hand as Mrs. Hey was seized by the other man.

"Get back there, you," snarled the youth impatiently, "get back—move back."

Hey took a step back and one to his right toward the wall's end a few yards away. Still the youth waved him back, cursing him and menacing him with the pistol.

"I can't go back any farther—I'll go over the edge," Hey quavered. "I'm sorry I haven't any more money. That was all I had."

Throwing the pistol to the ground, the youth flung himself on the salesman. Although he was no match, Hey struggled with the desperation that comes from love of life about to be lost. He yelled at the top of his voice for help as he fought wildly over the few inches that remained between him and a plunge to death. He fell headlong to one side of the youth, tried to crawl forward away from that horrible 400-foot drop to the turgid waters below. He gained a couple of feet before his assailant fell on him with redoubled effort, beat him about the head, seized him around the shoulders and half-carried and half-pushed him to the brink. Hey tried to dig in his heels, tried to break the iron grip about his shoulders, tried to roll or twist—anything to gain a moment's respite from that drop that meant eternity. He felt his heels slide off the good solid rock into space, then his ankles scraped over the edge. He opened his mouth to make a last plea to the youth who sought to murder him, but no sound came. Then came the final heave and a grunt of relief from the youth.

Hey twisted about as he fell, got one arm over the edge, ground his finger nails against the rock, felt his feet touch a spur on the face of the precipice. He threw his other arm over the edge, drew in another breath of life and, hoping against hope that the relentless figure above him would show mercy, strove to drag himself back to safety. A heel stamped one hand and then the other. Then came a kick in the face that stunned Hey as he started down to the river 400 feet below.

Wildly he felt for something to cling to as his body gained momentum. Fifteen or twenty feet down he crashed into a bush. Desperately he clung to it with both hands, regained his breath with a sobbing cry of relief that let the assailant know his end had not yet been achieved. Hey's hopes rose. Here he was saved from the fatal plunge and out of the reach of the ruffian above.

At that moment a rock crashed through the bushes, then another. Determined to kill him, his assailant was leaning over the edge hurling rock after rock at the helpless salesman. A jagged one crunched sickeningly against Hey's right hand, and again Hey started downward. The lights across the river swung round and round. Then a thud and a jarring stop that knocked the breath out of Hey. He lit on a narrow shelf covered with bushes.

AS HE lay there, not daring to believe he was still alive, he heard his wife crying for help. After listening to make sure the men were gone, he called up. She leaned over and was barely able to make out his form 50 feet below her. Screaming wildly she ran to the nearby road and stopped some automobiles that were passing. One car went on to notify police. An ambulance returning from a trip to New York City was stopped. Police arrived in a few minutes.

A rope was lowered to Hey and in a few minutes willing hands had drawn him to safety. As he staggered to his feet he embraced his wife and expressed joy that she had not been hurt. Except for a crushed hand, a lacerated face, exhaustion and shock, he was none the worst for his harrowing experience.

Mrs. Hey eagerly gave the police descriptions of the tall youth and the short man who had accompanied him. She told how she had fainted during her struggle with the short man. Her descriptions were broadcast to the police of five states almost before Russell Hey had regained his composure. Circulars followed up the radio. Police agreed that the two men probably were maniacs, who killed for the thrill of it.

There were no results from the radio or the circulars, but State Troopers Norman Monroe and Ralph Dowgin, who happened to be a little more observant and a little more suspicious than other officers on the case, got results. For one thing, they learned from neighbors of the Heys that when a certain bus passed the Hey home at 124 East Fort Lee road, the driver tooted a salute. They also learned that Mrs. Hey had taken out $10,000 additional insurance on her husband without his knowledge. He already carried $13,000 and owned a house in Houston, Texas, valued at $8000. The house yields $60 a month rent. The Heys, investigation revealed, were married 10 years ago and moved to New Jersey from Houston six years ago.

The rugged face of the Palisades, near Alpine, New Jersey, where Hey had his harrowing experience.

Closer investigation showed, the officers said, that Mrs. Hey used the bus a good deal and was said to be on more than speaking terms with the driver, Charles Mucci, 26, of 12 Warren street, Hackensack, a dashing and courteous cavalier six years her junior.

The officers reported to their superiors after weeks of investigating and watchful waiting. Chief Michael Forster of Bogota and Detective Sergeant Theodore Morgan of Teaneck were called in for co-operation. Mucci was watched again for a few days, and then, late in January, he was brought in "for questioning."

Mrs. Russell A. Hey.

When the police had finished with him they got hold of Edward Price, 19-year-old newsboy of 46 West 126th street, Manhattan, a tall and stoutly built lad with a rough and ready air about him. They obtained a statement from him, as they had from Mucci.

Then they had Mrs. Hey, petite and gay in manner, drop in for a little conference about the statements. According to Assistant Prosecutor Nicholas A. Carella of Bergen County, in whose hands the cases lie, Mrs. Hey very calmly admitted that she had engineered a plot to kill the not-so-youthful Mr. Hey by having him shoved over the Palisades.

Why did she wish to dispose of her slightly bald husband? It seems, she is said to have replied, that she never did really love him. "I disliked to tell him that," she said, "because I didn't want to hurt him."

FURTHERMORE, Mrs. Hey said she had been in love with the horn-tooting bus driver for some time, according to Carella, and even had a key to the cavalier's apartment. Police add that in Mucci's apartment they found a detailed plan for the Palisades murder, drawn up by Mrs. Hey, and the pistol used in the attempt.

Mrs. Hey did balk at one point, Carella said. She maintained that the conspiracy was not based on a plan to collect the $23,000 life insurance on her husband. But she admitted having taken out $10,000 insurance on him without his knowledge.

Young Price is alleged to have told the police that he actually pushed Hey over the precipice, that he was to have received $100 for the act, but only got $15 of the $25 that Mrs. Hey is alleged to have given Mucci when the plot failed. "I was hungry," Price replied when asked how he could push a man over a cliff to death for $100. He said his mother and father were in institutions for narcotic addicts. Price, Mucci and Mrs. Hey are charged with "atrocious assault and battery and attempted murder."

The news was broken to Russell Hey, the rather unromantic refrigerator salesman. Everything was laid before him.

"It just can't be possible," Hey insisted to the assistant prosecutor. "I still can't believe it."

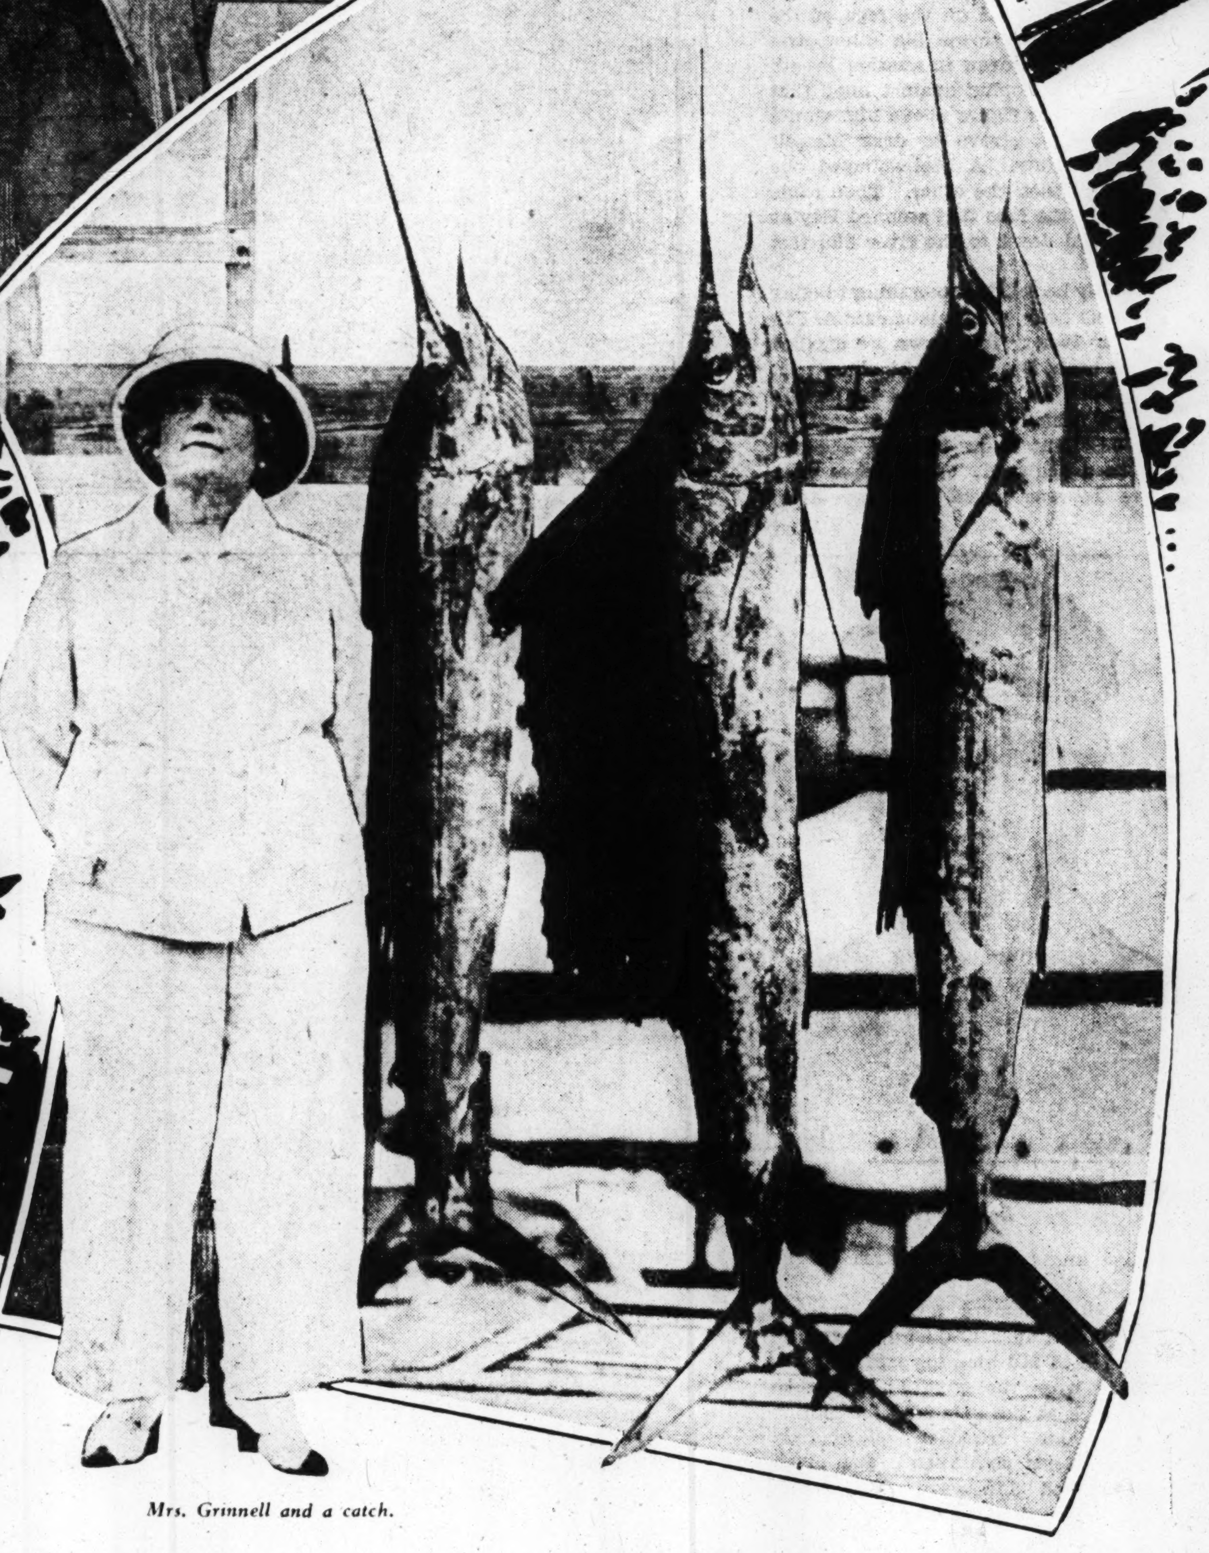
Officers continued to talk to him until at last the salesman recalled that a few months before the attempt on his life he had gone to the same vicinity for a picnic lunch with his wife. He related that after the lunch was eaten he and his wife had played a game of tag and he had fallen at the edge of the cliff. Mrs. Hey, he said, had helped her husband back to safety, full of apologies for the part she had in his stumble.

"I hadn't the slightest idea that a single thing was wrong at home," the salesman mused as he sadly shook his head.

SHE GAVE UP a SUCCESSFUL BUSINESS to GO FISHING

Mrs. Oliver Cromwell Grinnell being presented with one of her many angling trophies

Haunted by the Memory of a 20-Hour Battle With a 450-Pound Swordfish, Mrs. Oliver Cromwell Grinnell Sold Her Holdings to Her Employes and Now Prepares to Tangle With Bigger and Better Sea Creatures.



Mrs. Grinnell and a catch.

NEW YORK.

DYNAMIC, dominant Mrs. Oliver Cromwell Grinnell, one of New York's most successful business and sportswomen, has been whipped by a memory. It was a vivid, thrilling memory of a triumphant 20-hour struggle to the death with a 450-pound broadbill swordfish. It spread itself over the ledger sheets when she tried to concentrate on business and taunted her inwardly while she was lecturing an inept employe. Her business boomed and profits rose sky-high, but she was far from a satisfied woman.

So, recently, at the age of 57, she sold her business to her employes and set out to accomplish an ambition that had been bothering her for months—to lock horns with a 1000-pound marlin swordfish in the waters about Bimini, where she believes such monsters may be found; to match wits and endurance with it and to prepare it for the gaff; to feel the salt spray hardening on her cheeks and the blisters of battle burning their way onto her hands and arms. She says there is no greater thrill in her experience.

This goal achieved, she will head for Peruvian waters for a tussle with some of the meanest deep-sea devils nature has produced. After that a leisurely cruise of the world, with fishing as the chief object.

"From now on, I'm going to be in New York just as little as I can be in New York," she said. "What I mean is that I plan from now on to be doing what I darned please. I'm going to travel and I'm going to fish and I'm going to go where the fish go.

"Settle down? Never. I've been settled down all these years. What I want to do is things. I'm a very energetic woman and I would die if—well, in other words, I'll never learn to knit, if you know what I mean."

For 34 years, ever since her marriage to the late Oliver Cromwell Grinnell, Mrs. Grinnell has never missed a work day at the office of the Grinnell Lithographic Company, 406 West Thirty-first street. Grinnell supervised sales and she managed the production end. After his death in 1930, Mrs. Grinnell took over his job, too. Their marriage and their business partnerships were equally successful, though they had no children. From the beginning, the bride learned to love the sport her husband was so deeply interested in. They studied angling scientifically and sailed the fishing grounds together. Scores of cups and trophies adorned their home.

Ultimately they decided to concentrate on swordfish. It was several years before Grinnell made his first capture, in 1927. Not until a few months before her husband's death did Mrs. Grinnell feel qualified for the swordfish league. That year she captured three.

Her big moment began at 9 a. m., June 22, 1933, off Fire Island Inlet, in the Atlantic. Her 43-foot fishing boat Oligrin had just cleared Fire Island Lightship when Captain Wally Baker, master, sighted the broadbill finning along the surface. He maneuvered the Oligrin into position and Mrs. Grinnell cast out the lure, a pound-and-a-half pickerel. The swordfish made a mad rush for the pickerel and missed, turning about in a swirl of foam. It struck again and hooked on.

The weapons of the contest were (for the swordfish) the wiles and stratagems with which nature had endowed it, including an uncanny talent for snapping a line; (for the fisherwoman) a regulation fishing tackle, consisting of a 9-0 reel filled with 24-thread line, with a breaking strain of 48 pounds, and a rod of split bamboo, whose tip weighed 12 ounces.

The swordfish opened with a neat assortment of tricks. It dived under the boat, swung around it, dashed off on long races and turned abruptly a hundred times, in an effort to break the line. Each time it was checkmated by masterful reeling and unreeling. But the scrap was just getting under way. The swordfish suddenly spurted out away from the boat at a terrific pace, spinning the reel at a furious rate. At almost the very end of the line it made a mighty leap out of the water, but lost that decision. Again it headed back for the boat, diving under it. Captain Baker put on full steam and cleared the line.

Hour after hour, Mrs. Grinnell played the fish, conserving her strength while it sulked and fighting hard when it renewed hostilities. Porpoises played around the Oligrin. An enormous hammerhead shark hung about as if watching the progress of the match. As the word of the struggle got back to shore, cruisers put out to witness it.

Noon came and went. It was hot. The Oligrin rolled in the trough of the waves as Mrs. Grinnell pumped the big fish closer and closer to the boat. Finally it was on the surface and almost where the wire leader could be reached when, with a surprising spurt, it came to life and the reel hummed as the fish again shot out at express train speed. Two hundred, 400, 600 feet of line went smoking off the reel.

Again, at the end of the sprint, that leaping, graceful soar upwards. The afternoon hours dragged on with no sign of weakness on the part of the fish. Its rushes seemed as strong as ever. Three more times it was hauled almost within gaffing distance.

At 6 p. m. Captain Baker, worried over his employer's health, begged her to give up the fight, but she insisted on carrying on. The spectators put their craft about and headed home for dinner. No one ate a bite aboard the Oligrin. At 7 p. m. Captain Baker took matters in his hands and snatched the rod forcibly.

"That fish is almost beaten," he said. "I'm going to land it in 20 minutes."

He sat up all night trying to do it. The fish's rushes were as strong as ever. Baker forced the fighting, taking risks with his frail line in order to end things. At 4 a. m. on June 23 he could feel his opponent weakening a little. Tuckered out himself, he handed the rod back to Mrs. Grinnell. She could sense the failing power. The fish's rushes were shorter, its resistance weaker.

At 5 a. m. it summoned all its strength and sped away through the waves on a final rush. At the end it soared out of the water—then settled and became a dead weight on the line. It was easily reeled in. The fishing pair steered for shore. They hadn't eaten a bite. The fish had towed them 30 miles out.

THAT is the memory that broke down Mrs. Grinnell's resistance and caused her after passing her fifty-seventh birthday to cast off from everything that had been her life for years. That and the 20 blisters on her hands, the deep cuts of the leather angler's harness on her shoulders and underneath her arms, the sunburn on her back and arms, the hundreds of bites on her legs and ankles from the striped and greenhead flies, the swelling in her forearms which puffed them twice normal size.

"I have lots of qualms about leaving all my friends and dropping business connections," she said. "It will be a very great heartache. I've begun to miss going to the office already, but the fish will make me forget, I have no doubt.

"The business is going on exactly as if I were there. Most people, you know, have to be carried out—they don't retire in favor of the employes. But why shouldn't I do it? You take E. H. Munson. He's the new president. He's only 39 and he's been with the concern 25 years. That gives you an idea of the type of organization it is. The others are like that, too. The shop will get along without me, all right. I can't kid myself otherwise."

An idea of the hardiness of this unusual woman may be gained from the daily routine she followed in the life she has abandoned. She rose at 6:45 a. m., bathed, dressed and took one cup of coffee for breakfast. No toast or anything else. Usually she walked to her office, a matter of several miles, arriving at 8 a. m.

She ate no luncheon, because, she explains, she once observed that hunting dogs got along excellently on one meal a day. For dinner, there were ordinarily several guests, so that duties of hostess fell upon her, too.

Her pastimes, besides fishing, are cards and the theater. She believes the cure for age, trouble and feminine discontent are: Fight. Do not yield an inch. Meet life squarely, face to face. Never let yourself become soft, physically, morally or mentally. Forget all nonsense about being a woman. Think of yourself as a human being.

FREED from a LIFE SENTENCE BECAUSE HE LIKED CANARIES

Joe Blazenzits.

The Strange Chain of Events That Caused Two Women Who Had Never Seen Him to Take Up Successfully the Task of Winning Executive Clemency for Joe Blazenzits.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MINNEAPOLIS, Minnesota.

IN MARQUETTE, Michigan, Joe Blazenzits was passing the years in a harsh world of stone walls, steel bars and iron routine. The son of Yugoslavian immigrants, he had stopped school in the grades, run with a gang of young toughs, made his first trip to prison at the age of 15. Joe was called a dangerous criminal. He was serving a life sentence for murder in State Branch Penitentiary.

In Minneapolis, Mrs. Bertha Marie Hayden was comfortably keeping house for her husband. A small, youthful-looking woman, a graduate of the University of Minnesota, she lived gently her cultured, sheltered life. She raised canaries as a hobby, and her home was pleasantly murmurous with their subdued twitterings.

Joe Blazenzits had never heard of Mrs. Hayden, and she had never heard of him. There seemed to be no reason for them ever to hear of each other.

But four years ago these two remote existences touched, and there was set in motion a chain of events which has reached a climax with the release from prison of Joe Blazenzits, the "lifer"—a freedom which he owes largely to the skillful, persistent efforts of Mrs. Hayden and another amateur investigator, another sedate housewife.

Canaries started it. Joe, with 10 years of prison behind him and a long, dreary succession of such years—the rest of his life—apparently ahead, fell to thinking that it would be nice to hear birds singing again. In a trade journal devoted to canaries, he saw Mrs. Hayden's advertisement of birds for sale. He had just $17, and it represented many hours of hard work. He sent it all to Mrs. Hayden in a letter asking her to send him the best pair of canaries that amount of money would buy.

Mrs. Hayden shipped the birds to him promptly. She also sent back his money. She hoped her gift would make life pleasanter for him. Joe wrote a letter of sincere thanks, in which he also asked for advice on the care of his new pets. The information was sent him. Mrs. Hayden was highly competent to give such information. On one of her tables are 40 silver cups, trophies won by her entries in national canary shows.

Chance stepped in again then on Joe's behalf. Mrs. A. C. Macbeth, who was interested in camps for delinquent boys, called on Mrs. Hayden as a customer. She thought the raising of canaries might be added to the activities of the camps with benefit to the boys. Mrs. Hayden told her about Joe and his canaries—and that gave Mrs. Macbeth another idea: it should be interesting to find out what Joe, who had entered prison as a youth, who, presumably, had been a delinquent boy himself, thought of these camps.

She wrote to the prisoner, and then showed his reply to Mrs. Hayden. Both women were deeply impressed by what he had written. It seemed to them that this inmate had a fine understanding of the problem of dealing with young wrongdoers, and exhibited a remarkable maturity of thought and soundness of judgment.

THEY wondered why a fellow like that was in prison for life, what sort of family and environment he came from, what was the actual peronality behind his written words, whether he deserved to be behind the bars. They resolved to seek the answers to these and the many other questions that arose in their minds in connection with this obviously out-of-the-ordinary convict.

Mrs. Macbeth wrote to the Governor of Michigan, who was then W. M. Brucker, for information about Joe. The reply stated that young Blazenzits was "a dangerous criminal."

The ladies were not convinced. They decided they would have to find out what they wanted to know by personal investigation. And it was evident inquiry would have to be made in Detroit, where the prisoner had lived and where he had been sentenced to the penitentiary. But Mrs. Macbeth was past 70 and in poor health and felt unequal to a part in an investigation that called for such activity.

At this juncture Mrs. Nell Corwin entered the case. A neighbor of Mrs. Hayden's, she had a 17-year-old son and a mother's interest in young people. What she had heard of Joe from Mrs. Hayden made her, too, eager to know more about him and to be of help to him if he merited help. She agreed to aid Mrs. Hayden in the investigation.

Mrs. Junior F. Hayden.

Mrs. Hayden and Mrs. Corwin went to Detroit and looked up Joe's record. They found that when he was 15 years old he had pleaded guilty of taking some brass from a box car in the company of a gang of boys. He was sent to the State prison at Jackson for a year. Then, on December 14, 1918, Thomas J. Houghton, cashier of a bank in Redford, a suburb of Detroit, was shot to death. Three days later Joe was arrested for the crime—by the same officer who had arrested him in the previous case. Joe was found guilty. At a second trial, a year and a half later, he was convicted again and sentenced to life imprisonment.

The women investigators examined the evidence given at the trial and talked to various persons who had been connected with the case.

"IN OUR investigation," Mrs. Hayden says, "we simply wanted to discover the truth. We were looking for evidence to prove either innocence or guilt. All that we found indicated innocence very strongly. Aside from the statements of the officer who arrested Joe, everything we encountered was in his favor. Even the Judge who presided at the trial wrote us that he had always had grave doubts of Joe's guilt, both from the weakness of the State's case and the strong alibi which Joe offered."

The identification of Joe as the man seen fleeing from the scene of the murder impressed the women as being quite inconclusive. The identification was made by three witnesses who said they saw him, a stranger to them, on a poorly lighted street at 9:15 of a cloudy December night. On the other hand, Leo Schulte, a carpenter, testified that Joe was being introduced to him at a skating rink at the time the crime was committed.

Mrs. Hayden and Mrs. Corwin were convinced by what they learned on that first trip that Joe was innocent of the crime for which he was "doing life." And they forthwith threw themselves with energy and intelligence into the task of having him freed—a task which was to engage them for three years. Time and money they gave unstintingly in the work of getting what they believed was justice for an obscure convict whom they had never even seen.

For it was only after they had devoted themselves to his cause and had worked a year on the case that they saw the prisoner. They went to the prison and talked with him for three hours in the presence of prison officials. They found Joe to be a dark, slender, quiet, rather bashful young fellow, plain featured, but likeable. He was very appreciative of what they were doing for him, but not very hopeful that they would be successful in having him released. They had two more interviews with him while he was in prison.

Mrs. Hayden occupied herself principally with the evidence, Mrs. Corwin with interviewing prison and parole officers and others who could be of assistance. These officials tried repeatedly to convince the women that their cause was hopeless.

Mrs. Hayden bought a transcript of the case and made a brief, showing contradictions in the evidence. She wrote to some of the most eminent legal experts in the country, asking for their advice. She sent a record of the evidence to Clarence Darrow, knowing that in his brilliant legal career he had often espoused the cause of the underdog. Darrow wrote that the evidence indicated Joe was innocent, but that he was too old and too tired to get into the fight.

She interested John Barker Waite, professor of criminal law at the University of Michigan, in the case, and he supported the move for further consideration for Joe. He said the prisoner, despite the fact he had left school early and had been self-taught since, had a breadth of knowledge and an intelligence that would do credit to a university graduate.

In their search for facts, the two women located the alibi witness, and he reiterated his certainty that Joe did not kill the cashier. They obtained from the foreman of the jury a statement that he had voted Joe guilty under a misapprehension. From the physician who had attended the cashier after he was shot they got a statement to the effect that the dying man had said: "The man who shot me was the same man who held up the bank two years ago." This statement had not been brought out at the trial.

Lawyers from whom the women sought advice said this evidence provided sufficient basis for a new trial. But money was lacking for the expensive process of getting the case again into court. Joe's champions continued their efforts to obtain clemency through prison and parole officials.

Determined to neglect no means of impressing these officials, they hit upon the idea of having Joe take the polygraph, or "lie-detector," test.

WITH this idea in mind they wrote to the inventor of the instrument, Leonarde Keeler of Chicago, and also to the scientific crime detection laboratory affiliated with Northwestern University, which included the polygraph in its scientific devices. Keeler suggested that the "lie-detector" be used in connection with the drug, scopolamine, which is said to induce truth-telling.

The next step was to obtain permission for the test to be made from prison authorities. Having been able to make little impression on these officials thus far, Mrs. Hayden and Mrs. Corwin decided to keep in the background in this move. They arranged for the request to be made by two prominent Michigan men. One of these men, the head of a large corporation, was enlisted as a supporter of Joe's cause only after he had had his attorney look into the case and had received the lawyer's report that the cause was meritorious.

The request for the polygraph test went to the Prison Commission, which voted to turn it over to the Pardon and Parole Commission. This body granted the plea, but only on condition that the examination cost the State of Michigan nothing.

In the presence of the Prison Board, two members of the State police, the Warden of the penitentiary and representatives of the press, the test was given. With the machine offering its check on the truthfulness of his answers, Joe was questioned about the killing of Cashier Houghton. The result was reported to the two women waiting anxiously in Minneapolis in a

SOMETHING NEW IN THE WINTER MODE

SHOWINGS of late Winter and early Spring models seem to indicate that Dame Fashion is in her kindliest mood. In every type of frock, from the tailored suit to the glamorous evening gown, long lines are much in evidence. How flattering such lines are to the tall woman is self-evident, but to the petite girl this style is indeed a boon, for it adds to height and, consequently, smartness.

In every detail, the long, straight line is favored. Skirts are long; suit coats are three-quarter length; sleeves, whether tight or full, feature length rather than a focus of interest in the cuff Evening gowns are dazzling in their gorgeous sweep of line.

As far as color is concerned, greens and browns predominate. Both Maggy Rouff and Worth particularly favor these shades and use them, either alone or combined in frocks and suits for street wear. For those who do not look their best in these colors there is, of course, black. The importance of black can never be overestimated and for midseason wear it is particularly suitable. Present showings, however, enliven black frocks with gay trimmings, such as the gold clips and gold kid bow which ornament the woolen dress shown at the lower right-hand corner.

Wide belts, set high, almost in Empire fashion, are also a distinct feature of the present fashion trend.

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

DOROTHY THOMPSON
ANTONINO AJELLO

The American Woman Journalist Who Tramped Poland in Evening Slippers

IT HAS been suggested that one of the remarkable things about Dorothy Thompson is that she has made a go of marriage with the temperamental Sinclair Lewis. It may seem remarkable also—but only to those who don't know her—that she has refrained from availing herself of all the commercial possibilities of this marriage; she still works as Dorothy Thompson, not under the name made famous by her husband.

Perhaps that's a matter of pride; she has a pretty good professional record herself. As a journalist she has been a tremendous success — the kind of journalist who not only can report events but who delves beneath their surface for their philosophical significance. Her career as a European correspondent has been brilliant. She attained, last year, the distinction of being requested by the German Government to leave Germany.

Dorothy Thompson has good looks, courage and independence. She doesn't ask odds of men. The American habit of marveling at the success of women outside domestic activities annoys her a good deal. Some years ago when the Nation asked her to write an article about the work of women in European journalism, she wrote it but she took the opportunity to lambast that magazine for ordering such an article. She said it was time women were taken for granted, and denounced the "see-what-the-little-darling-has-done-now" attitude.

This aversion to the playing up of women seems to have been responsible for her foreign career. She explained in this article: "Large bodies of women agressively being women . . . . . are infinitely wearisome when not somberly terrifying. A career of reporting such assemblages was unpleasant to contemplate, and therefore I chose to begin my newspaper work on the continent of Europe where women are accepted as indigenous, and where such things as exclusive women's activities do not exist."

In Europe she certainly escaped the fashions and women's clubs and needlework kind of reporting. She wrote of nations and world figures, of governments and revolutions, of great social and economic trends. She was always turning up some place just as important news was breaking, and she scored some impressive beats. Luck, brains and a personality that both won friends and conquered difficulties contributed to her success. She became head of the Berlin bureau of an American newspaper. She married twice and bore a child. She broke into magazines and wrote a book or two. She's free-lancing now, living in America, and showing an increasing analytical interest in the American scene.

Dorothy Thompson is the daughter of a Methodist minister. She was born in Lancaster, New York, 40 years ago, studied at Lewis Institute in Chicago and took an A. B. degree at Syracuse University. She did publicity for a woman suffrage campaign in New York State, social work in Cincinnati; in 1920, went to Europe.

After a short period in London, the American girl, eager and curious, dropped in on the revolutionary disturbances in Ireland, talked to leaders of the movement and took away with her an account of what all the shooting was about. She also took back to London the last interview given by Terence McSweeney, which she obtained the day the Lord Mayor of Cork went to jail and started starving himself to death. Her stories were turned over to a news agency and she was off to a flying start on her career.

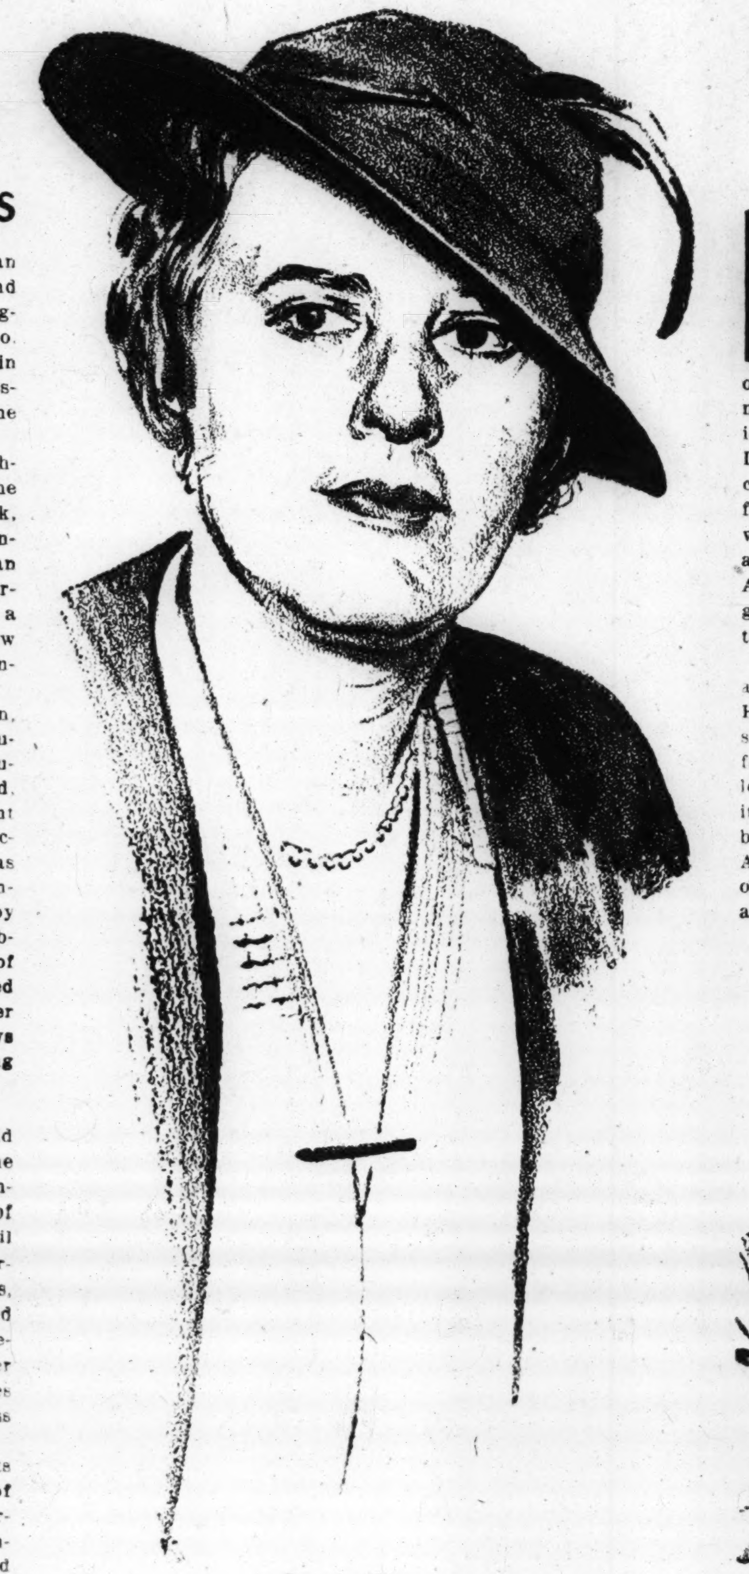
SHE went to the Continent, did some publicity work for the Red Cross, and formed a connection with the foreign service of an American newspaper. Until 1924, Vienna was her headquarters, and for the next four years, Berlin. She became acquainted with practically everyone of consequence in Central Europe, her home a meeting place for notables and others interesting but less eminent.

One of her sensational beats concerned the second attempt of Charles, former Austrian Emperor, to regain the throne of Hungary. After Charles was defeated he retired to a castle near the battlefield. Aided by a Red Cross friend, Miss Thompson, got into the castle ahead of other correspondents and got an exclusive story. She also took out a message from the Empress Zita to Crown Prince Otto.

Wearing evening dress, she departed hastily for Warsaw to cover the Pilsudski revolution, and part of the journey she had to make on foot—in satin slippers. Other correspondents got to Warsaw, too, but were delayed in sending their stories out by the censorship. Miss Thompson took her story to a village telegraph office, which hadn't heard of the censorship yet, and got it out.

In Budapest, in 1923, she married Josef Bard, a writer. They were divorced in 1927—on the day she met Sinclair Lewis. That meeting took place at a dinner in Berlin. After dinner Lewis, without preamble, asked the blue-eyed journalist to marry him. The idea interested her, but she was not ready to admit, offhand, that it was a good one. Besides, the novelist was married at the time to someone else, although a divorce was pending.

Lewis followed her about Europe, proposing whenever he had opportunity. The story is told that when he followed her to Russia, he was met at a railway station by an official delegation, welcomed to Soviet-land and asked why he had come. Lewis' answer was candid: "To see Dorothy." And when he was asked what would be of interest to him in Russia, the visitor replied, "Just Dorothy." So in the spring of 1928 they were married. They have a son, Michael, 4 years old.



Dorothy Thompson.

That trip to Russia gave her the material for her book, "The New Russia," and incidentally laid the groundwork for the Lewis-Dreiser "incident." Soon after her book was published, Theodore Dreiser's "Dreiser Looks at Russia" came out and was found to contain passages which were much the same as some in her book. Dreiser said both books had drawn on the same source materials, but Lewis accused him of plagiarism—and Dreiser slapped him.

Although Dorothy Thompson and her husband maintain residence in this country—they have a home in Bronxville, New York—she has continued spending considerable time abroad since their marriage, observing and writing about conditions in Europe. Last summer she was invited by a representative of the Hitler government to leave Germany. She attributed this to Hitler's dislike of an unflattering interview with him she wrote three years before.

She has also devoted a good deal of time to lecturing in recent years, and has proved an uncommonly popular platform attraction; she is one of the few lecturers who can fill the New York Town Hall.

Straightforward and realistic, Dorothy Thompson yet has a great gift for friendship. She's a liberal but not a radical in her social and political views. She's enthusiastic and sincere. And she loves to find out things.

KEITH KERMAN

CANDLEMAKER to the WORLD —by SKILL and INHERITANCE

NEW YORK.

THE tables of four Presidents of the United States have been graced on state occasions by the candles of Antonino (Papa) Ajello. The Prince of Wales and Queen Marie of Roumania order their favorites periodically. Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh have a special Ajello candle they fancy and so has Alfred E. Smith. All over the world, where nobles and nabobs gather around glassware and napery, Ajello candles are apt to be found giving off subtle scents and glistening in the goblets.

No one can make candles quite as well as Papa Ajello does in his Harlem shop. The process of scenting the beeswax has been a family secret for 150 years. Ajello's great-grandfather discovered it in Sorrento. Ajello's father brought the secret to America. Ajello will pass the secret on to one of his sons. And it is by no accident that he is called Papa, for he has 16 children. Which son will be entrusted with the closely-guarded process of imparting the odor of lily of the valley, orange blossoms or sweet pea to wax candles probably will not be known until the will is read.

But the task does not stop with the scent. Papa Ajello is justly proud of the holy images and the other ornamentations that grace his works of art. Duse and Caruso adored them, Galli-Curci gurgled with delight over them and the late Otto H. Kahn pronounced them things of perfection.

One of the saddest blows the master candle-maker ever suffered was the marriage of his daughter, Virginia, a few weeks ago. Virginia's figure carving was superb. She was a natural sculptress. Yet the blow was softened by the opportunity the wedding gave for a rich display of candles. At the altar burned 46 Isabella Romanesque candles, all carefully impregnated with the secret orange blossom scent. Throughout the rest of the church burned 252 other ornately carved and delicately perfumed tapers. At the climax of the ceremony a flock of white doves were released in the belfry.

"Ah, it was beautiful," sighs Papa Ajello, "simply beautiful. Virginia, she is my favorite of all my 16 children. Of all my children she is nearest to me in her art. It hurts my heart here. But, ah, what a wedding! When you enter the church you cannot tell whether you are in Sorrento in the springtime, or in the Bronx!

"ON HER honeymoon my daughter takes eight candles, four to the Holy Father, four to Mussolini. Both have promised special audiences.

"But, as for my art, sometimes I am ready to give it up. I meant to retire three years ago but Otto Kahn, he says: 'You retire and I'll crack you over the head with a candle. Keep on. We need you.' So I kept on. But my heart is not so much in it any more."

Ajello gets his wax from his own bees upstate. The candles are manufactured in his plant in Long Island City, where he employs 110 men. Then they are brought to his shop in Harlem where only Ajello applies the perfume-bearing compositions and carves the shafts. A Spanish Marquis takes appropriately scented Ajello candles with him whenever he travels.

But the Ajello masterpiece is the Caruso memorial candle. Eighteen feet tall and containing a ton of beeswax, fretted with gilt from top to bottom, it is to burn every All Saints Day for 1800 years in the Church of the Madonna at Naples, where Ajello's great customer is buried.

"I'll Sue You!"

to his ex-son-in-law. In Portage, Wisconsin, two tennis players sued for recovery of two tennis balls which had been hit into a garden that verged on a public tennis court. And in Omaha, Mrs. George Lauritsen sued "Rowdy Joe" Cox, a wrestler, for having been dropped in her lap.

Of all last year's suits, none is more curious than a claim which was filed by John Edward Sievers. This Oakland, Cal., clerk insisted that he should be awarded the $100,000 which a New York millionaire, Horace Elliott Wadsworth, feeling that a violent end was in store for him, offered as a reward for the apprehension of his own murderer. Sievers said that the millionaire died of acute alcoholism, according to the Coroner's verdict, and that Satan was thus his murderer.

"Satan has a legal status," he said. "Courts recognize the Bible by offering it for oaths. Courts must then recognize God and the devil." Sievers said he would give the $100,000 to charity if he won it. He didn't.

If cases involving Satan and $100,000 are rare, other juridical trivia involving washlines, witchcraft and megaphones are more or less frequent.

On Sixteenth street in Milwaukee, backyards are too crowded for simultaneous washdays; there is considerable competing for place and precedent. When Mrs. Leo Meyers was drenched with a flood of dirty water as a result of one dispute, she charged her neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Burghard, with assault and battery. The Burghards had no sooner received the summons from a beat patrolman than they descended wrathfully on the front porch of District Court Judge G. E. Page, demanding instant trial and that the Judge listen because he was a former friend of Mrs. Burghard's father. He refused and when Mrs. Burghard and her husband appeared in court without witnesses he fined them $1.

It was in Kearney, Nebraska, that a farmer insisted that the pretty girl with whom his son had become infatuated be locked up as a witch. And in Columbus, Ohio, a sensitive theater-goer brought suit against a vaudeville crooner who, the patron saic, had embarrassed him by focusing his megaphone on his chair.

But if some people are ready to go to court, others prefer frontier methods; witness a recent advertisement in the Merced (Cal.) Sun-Star: "Parties stealing gas from crane at gravel pit please use wrench to take off pipe from gas tank, and be sure to wear tin pants, for sure as hell you will receive a bonus of buckshot."

Of all the courtroom dialogue that was recorded in 1934 none was more bizarre than that which occurred when the case of Walter Weaver and Marshall Bradley, two Negro taxicab drivers, came up for a hearing in a St. Louis police court; they were charged with disturbing the peace. When their names were called, only Weaver came up to the bar.

"Do you know the other defendant?" said the Judge.

"Yes, your honor."

"Do you know where he is?"

"Yes, sir, your honor."

"Well, where is he, then?"

"He ain't here."

"Yes, I know that." The Judge was getting impatient. "But where is he?"

"He's dead, your honor."

"Dead! What do you mean?"

"I killed him, your honor."

"You killed him?"

"Yassuh. I knocked him down and he hit his head on the bumper of a car. It was in front of Union Station."

Freed From a Life Sentence

telegram which said: "Test affirms absolute innocence."

Joe went back to his cell. And Mrs. Hayden and Mrs. Corwin, after waiting in vain for some move toward the prisoner's release went back to work for him.

During these years, while his two champions were striving mightily on the outside to set him free, Joe was making an excellent record in prison. He made plans and ordered materials for prison projects, and directed building operations. The building of a conveyor for the saw mill was one of his jobs. A particularly ambitious piece of work was the making of plans for 10 State camps to take care of male first offenders; the camp at Hardwood is now completed. A new warden, W. R. Dell, trained as a mining engineer, recognized the young "lifer's" ability in such work and called him the most reliable and valuable man in prison.

So for 18 months after the "truth test" Joe went on with his convict career. He wrote to his friends in Minneapolis, "I don't believe there is any use in your trying any more." As tokens of his gratitude, however, he sent them gifts he had made—a table lamp and a filing cabinet of unusually fine workmanship.

Then, on the last day of 1934—and William Comstock's last day as Governor—Joe received a pardon. Mrs. Hayden and Mrs. Corwin say they are not sure what finally caused the Governor to issue the pardon. They say he mentioned the "lie-detector" test, but emphasized Joe's remarkable prison record. They think the influence of prominent Michigan men and others whom they interested in the case probably was a factor.

Anyway, on December 31, Joe walked out of prison a free man, carrying all his worldly goods: a radio which he had made, a typewriter—and the two canaries which proved to be harbingers of liberty. He has a job now and a new start in life. He is still young—only 34. His benefactors expect him to be as successful outside as he was in prison.

But they insist he doesn't owe them any debt of gratitude. "It wasn't something we did for him," says Mrs. Hayden. "It was a matter of justice for us. We wanted to see a wrong made right, even if it took three years to accomplish it."

SICK HEADACHES were driving me CRAZY!

I suffered intensely from sick headaches for years—until I wished my head would open to relieve the pain. Nothing seemed to help the constipation that caused them. When I was visiting my sister-in-law in Tacoma she gave me her favorite medicine, FEEN-A-MINT. I feel duty bound to let you know what a help FEEN-A-MINT has been. It cleansed out my system wonderfully—the poisons left me. And it keeps me so regular that I am a new woman. It doesn't cramp or gripe a person either. I've told all my friends about it.

Poor Buddy and Bob, what strange experiences they are having in this odd Land of Snow, where everything and most everyone is made out of snow or ice. The other day they were out in a terrible snow storm and were completely covered with the drifting snow. Zero, who was passing, saw them and pulled them to the surface. They are very grateful and we see them thanking him as BUDDY BUNNY—Thank you, very much.

ZERO—Thank me? I thought you were hiding down there. Up to some of your tricks?

BOB BUNNY—Oh, no. We were snowed under. We couldn't move.

ZERO—Well, if that doesn't beat anything I ever heard! All the rabbits I ever met around here like snow.

BUDDY BUNNY—Do you meet many rabbits around here?

ZERO—Lots of them. Don't you live up here?

BOB BUNNY—No. We live in Hickory Hollow.

ZERO—Oh, I see. Strangers, eh? Well, you come over and sit right on my lap and I'll tell you all about the rabbits that live in the Land of Snow. (He sits down and the Bunnys climb on his lap and listen to him closely. When he has finished his story they decide to find some of these strange rabbits. They try hopping and jumping along and find it hard work. So they start plowing their way through the snow. They are making slow progress when they hear someone calling them. They look around and see a queer little rabbit, all dressed in furs, hopping along on snowshoes.)

HARRY HOPALONG—Hey! What are you fellows doing? Why don't you hop on top of the snow?

BUDDY BUNNY—We can't. We sink down all the time. Who are you?

HARRY HOPALONG—I'm Harry Hopalong. Who are you?

BOB BUNNY—We're Buddy and Bob Bunny. We live in Hickory Hollow.

HARRY HOPALONG—Oh, I've heard of you folks. I must be your Northern cousin. Welcome to the Land of Snow, cousins. I'll get you some snowshoes.

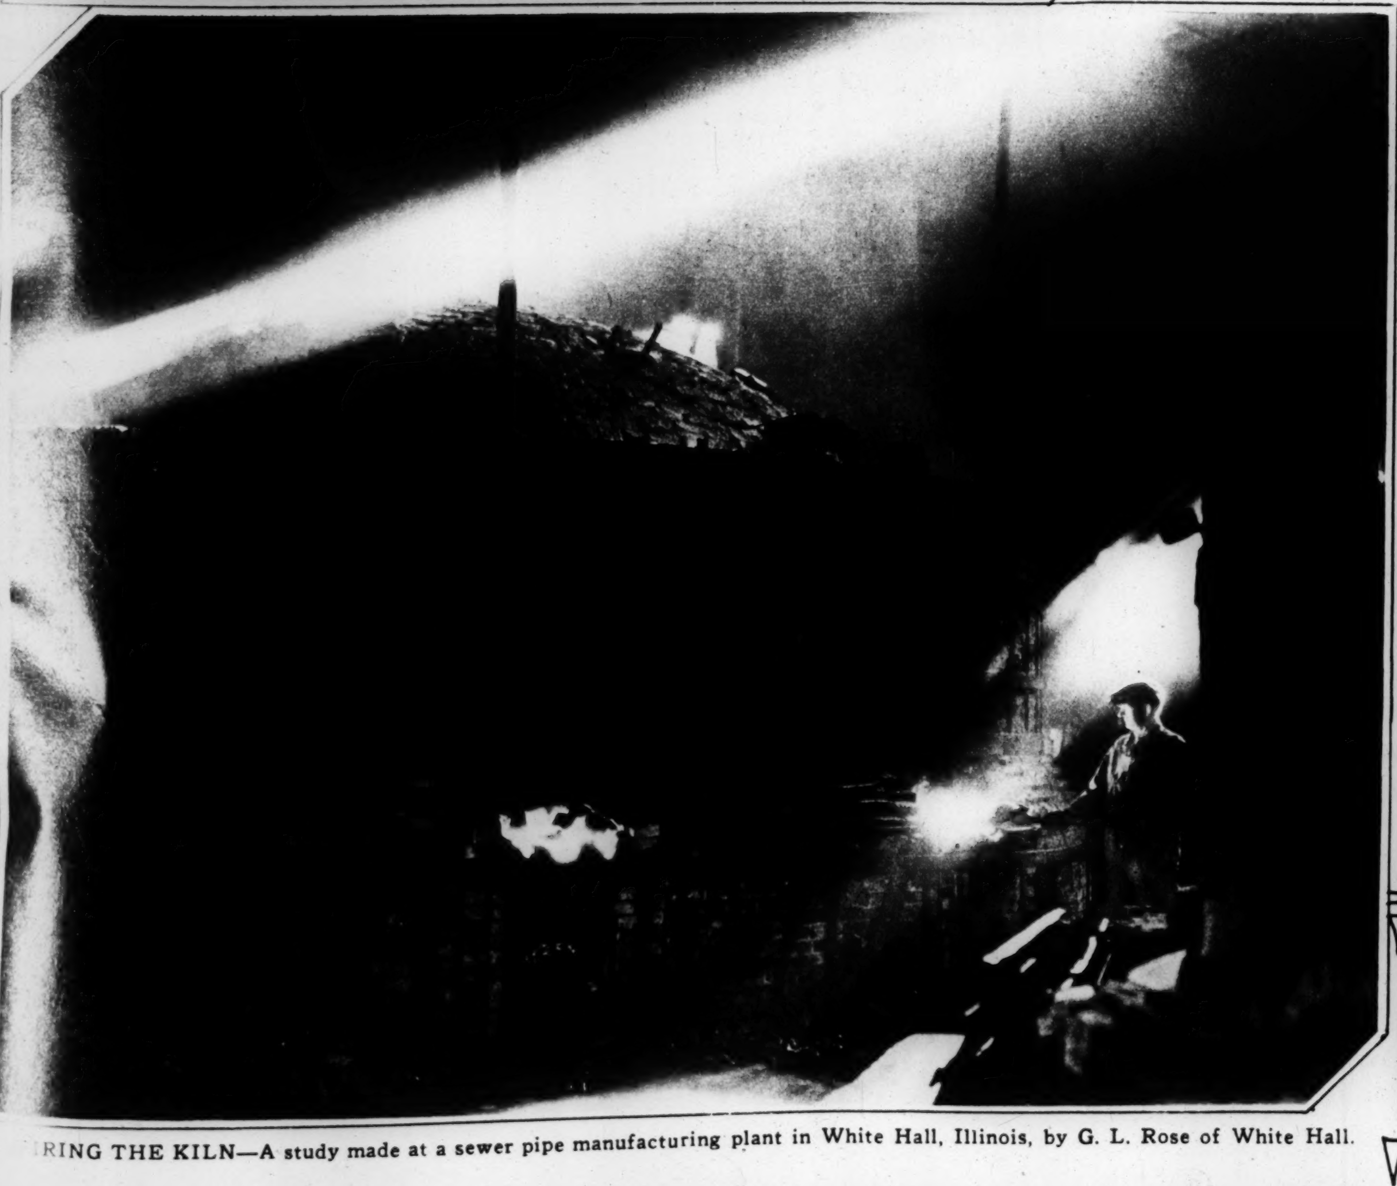
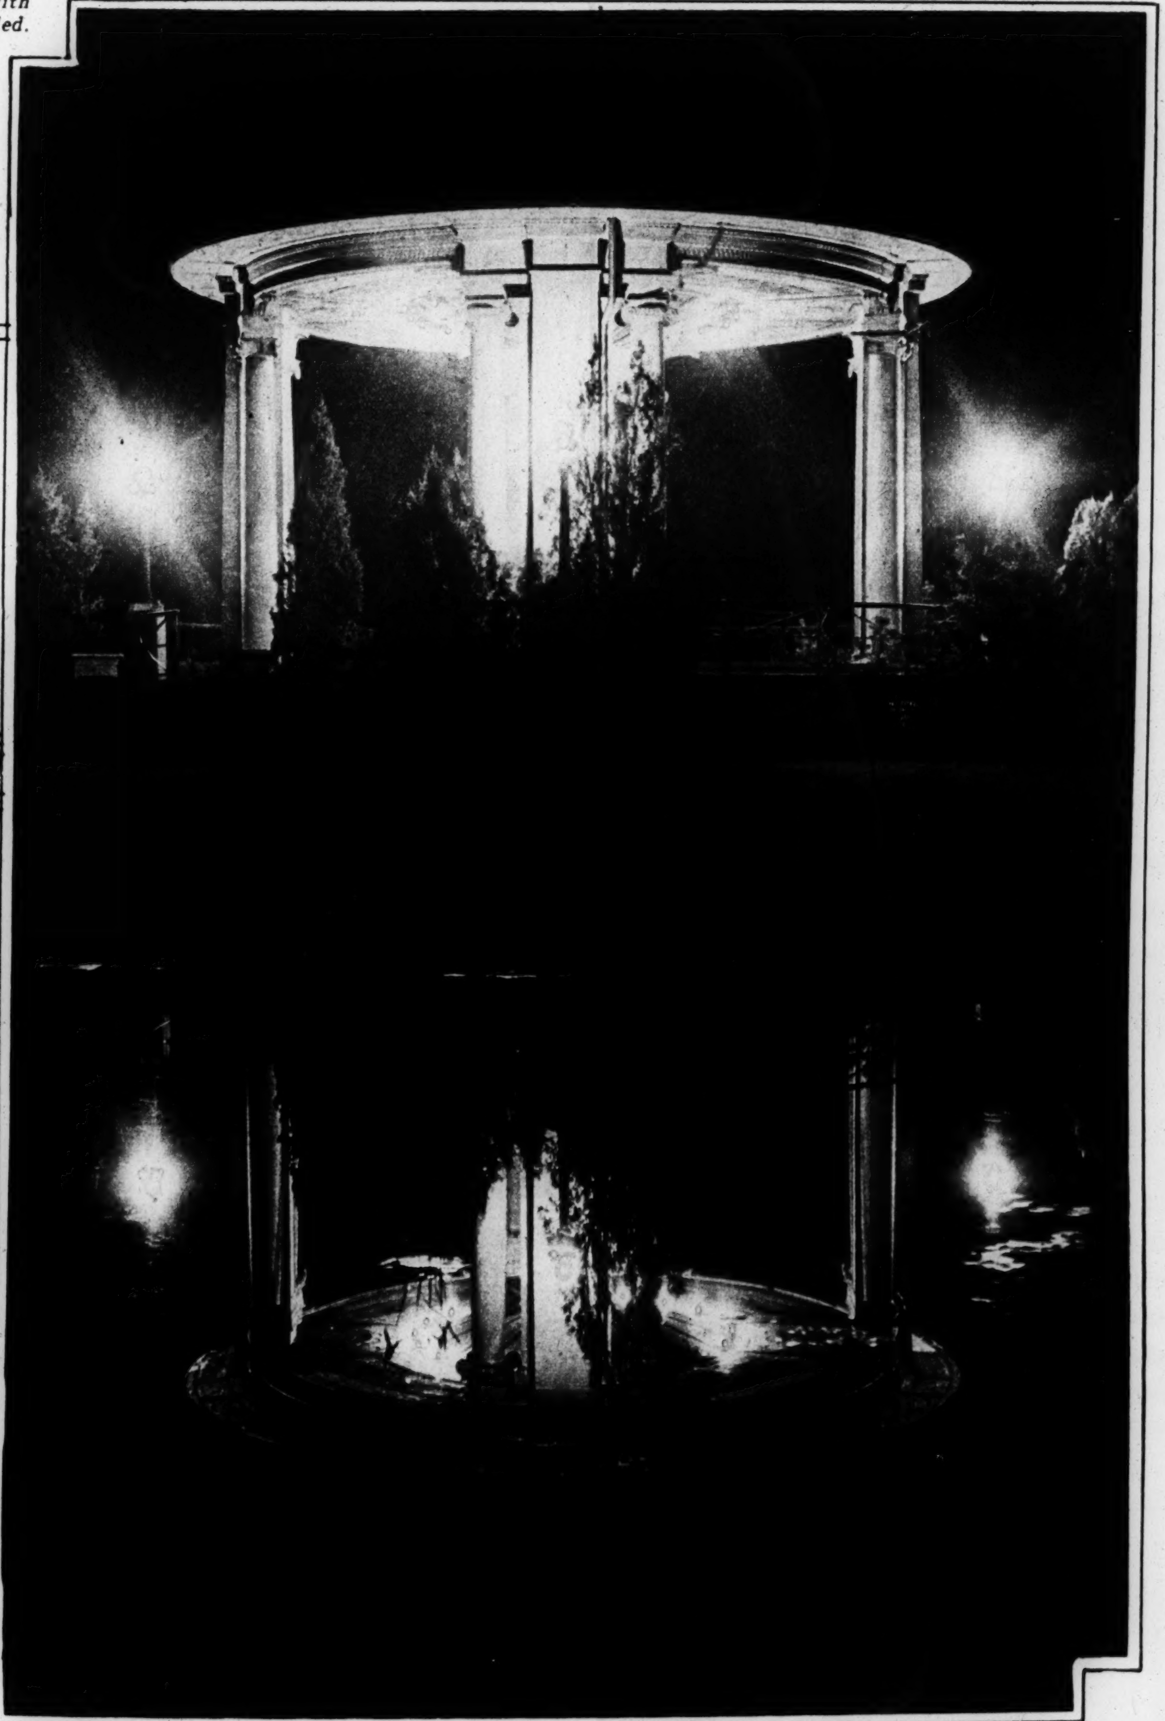
A DOCK AT CLEVELAND

This photograph, taken with the camera resting on the rail of a moored steamer, and having a 16-second exposure, is the work of John H. Eggert of St. Louis.



RING THE KILN—A study made at a sewer pipe manufacturing plant in White Hall, Illinois, by G. L. Rose of White Hall.



BANDSTAND IN FOREST PARK—The reflection of the stand in the nearby pool, it will be noted, is sharper in some details than the original image. The photograph is by Martin J. Padilla of St. Louis.

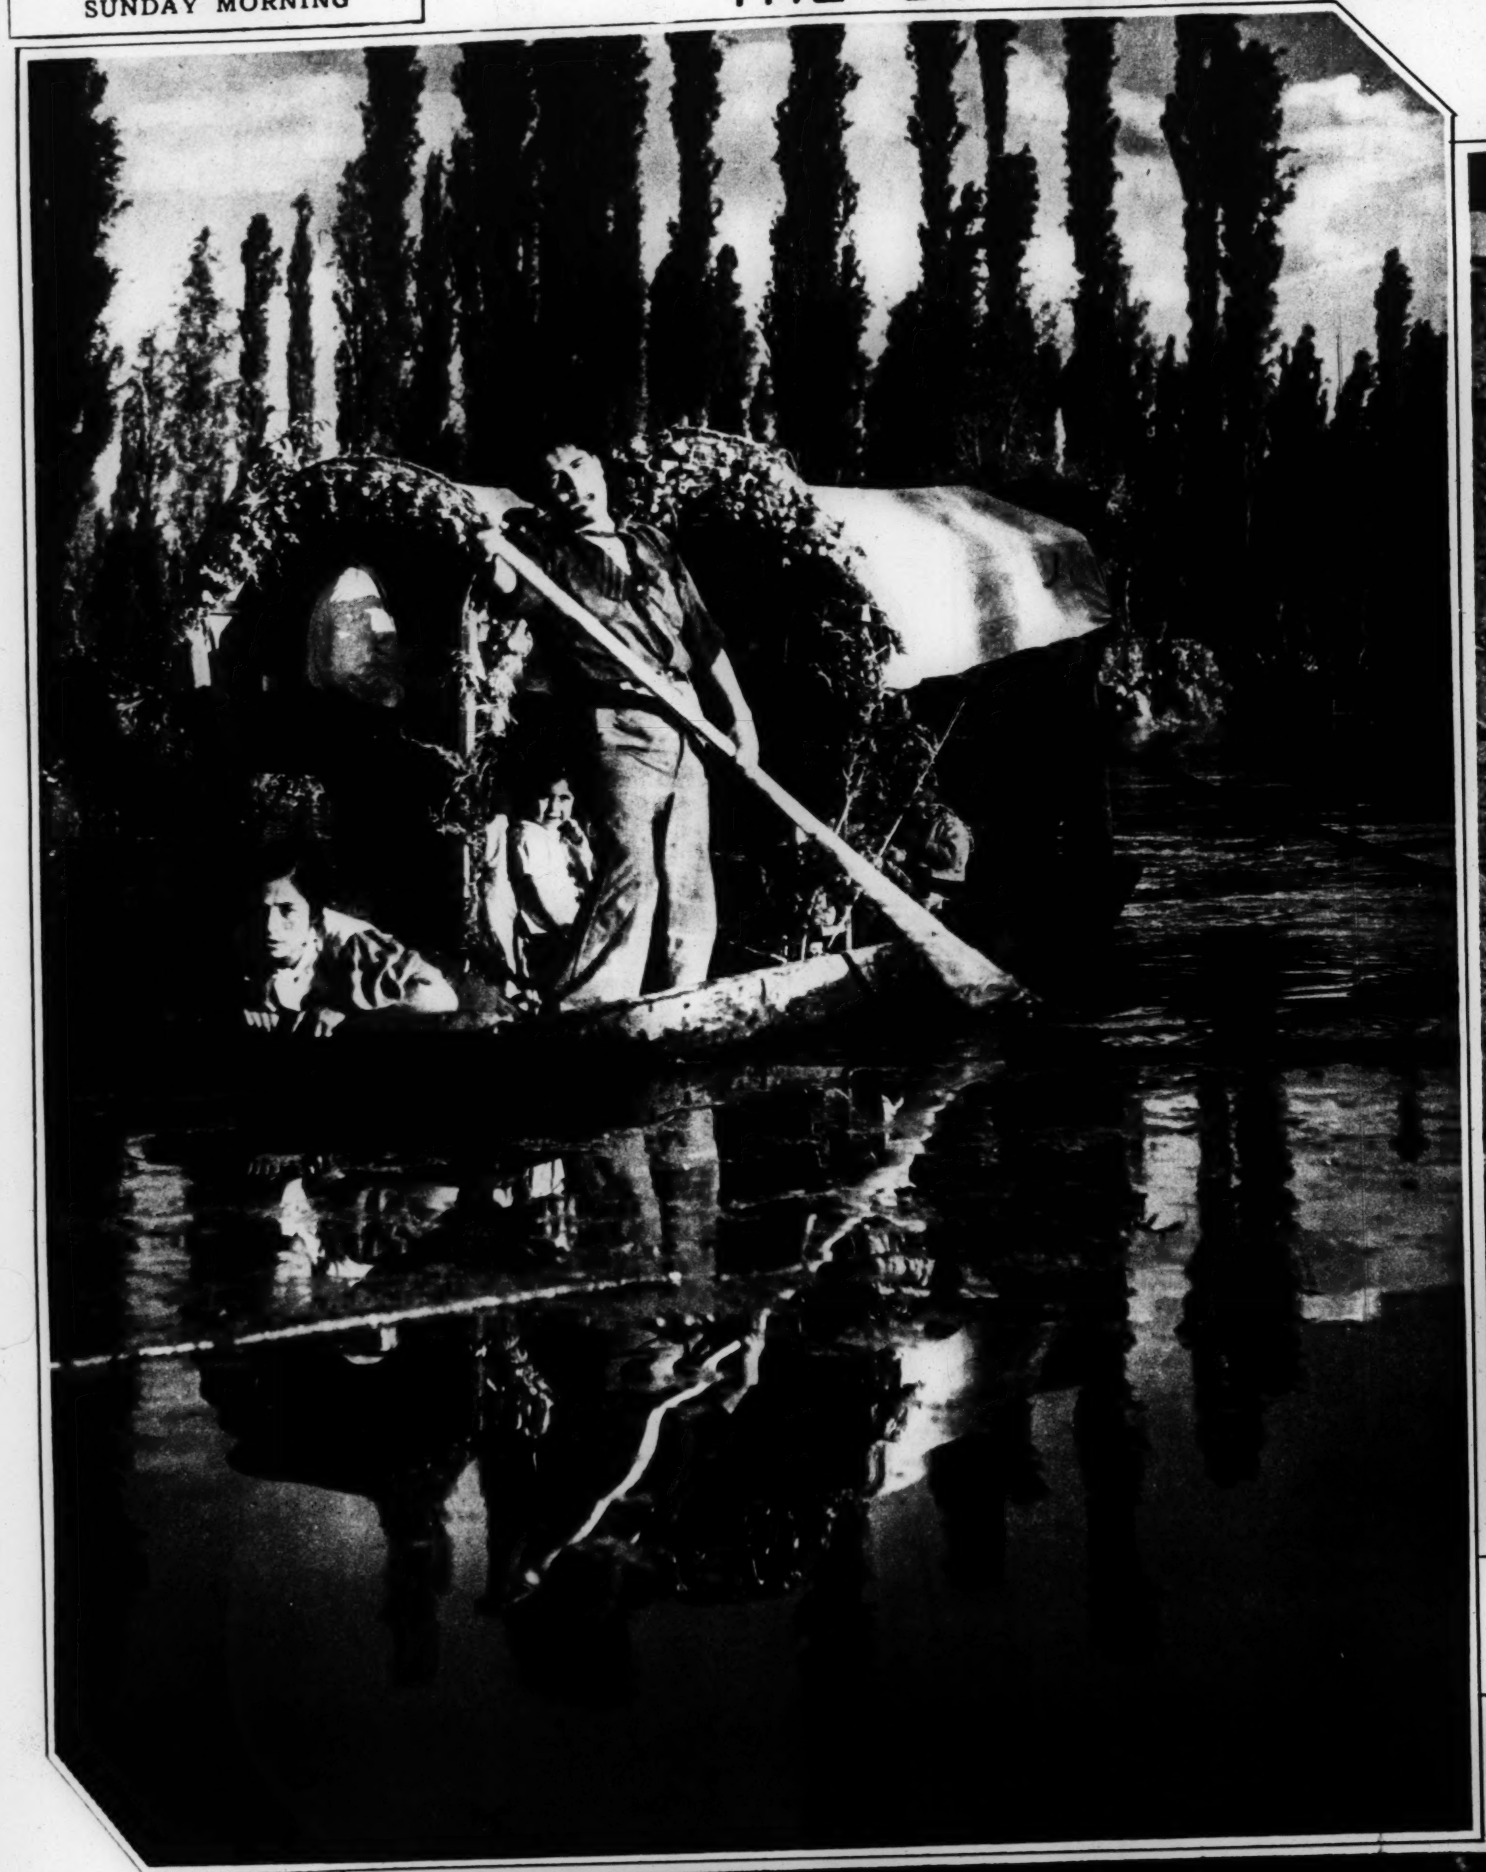
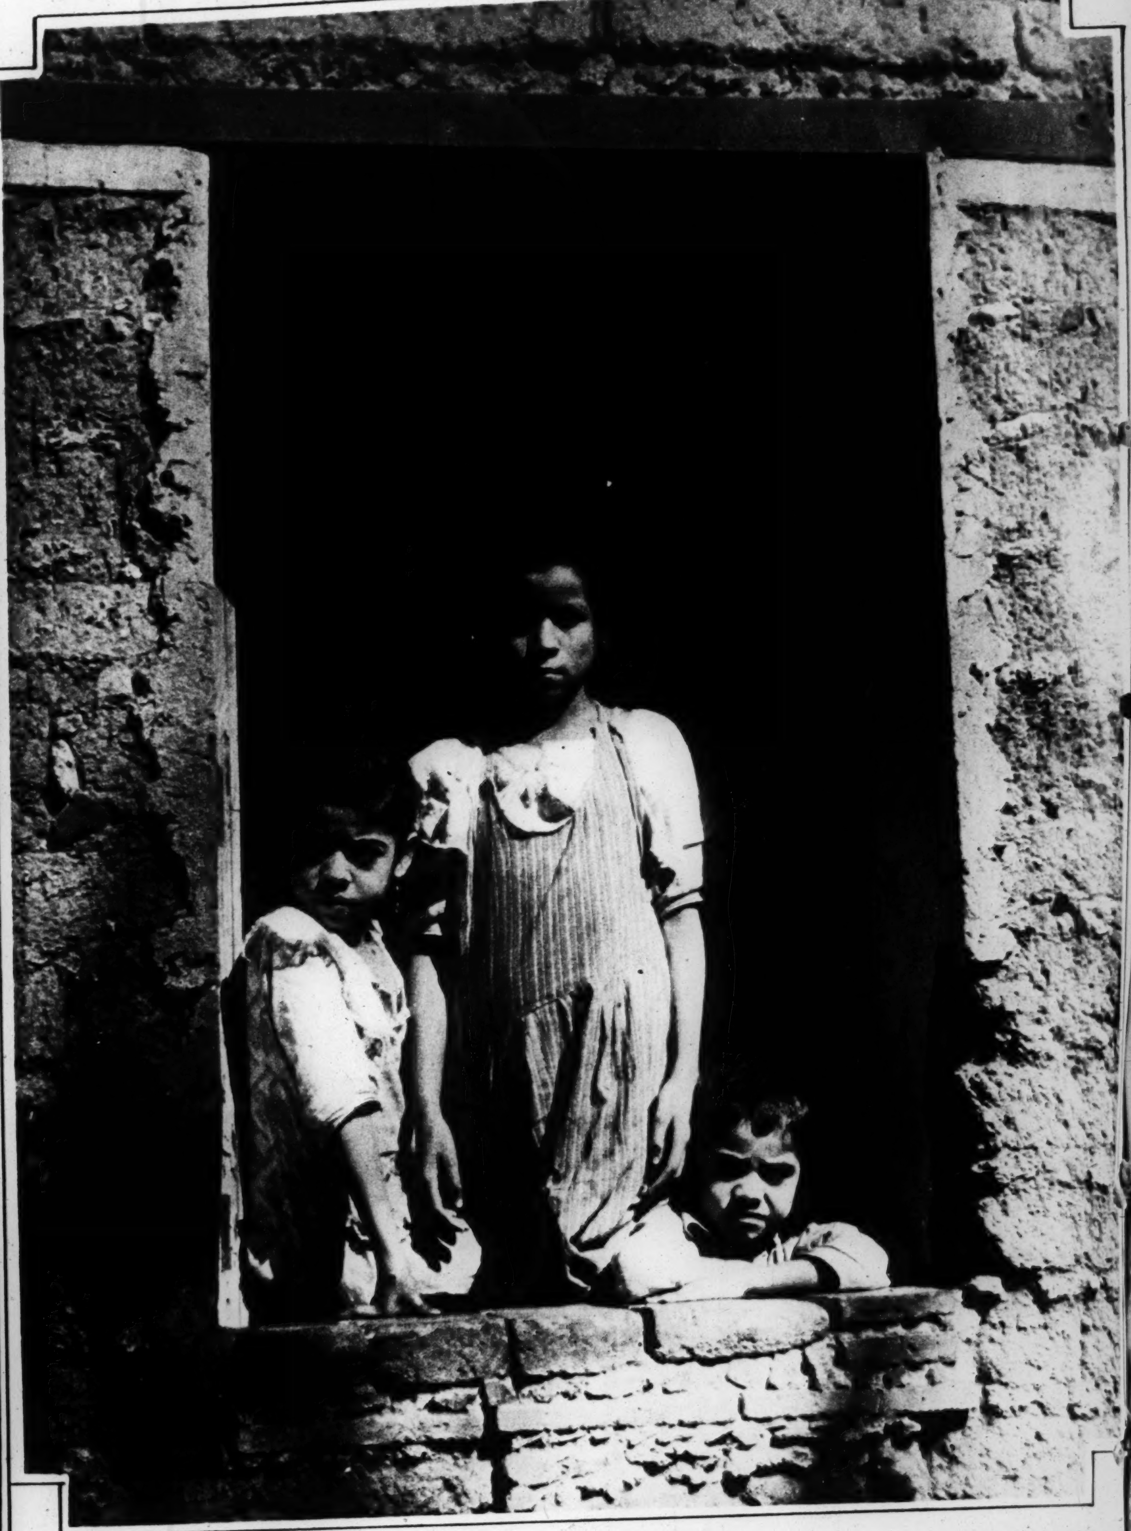
WINTER SUNLIGHT IN MEXICO

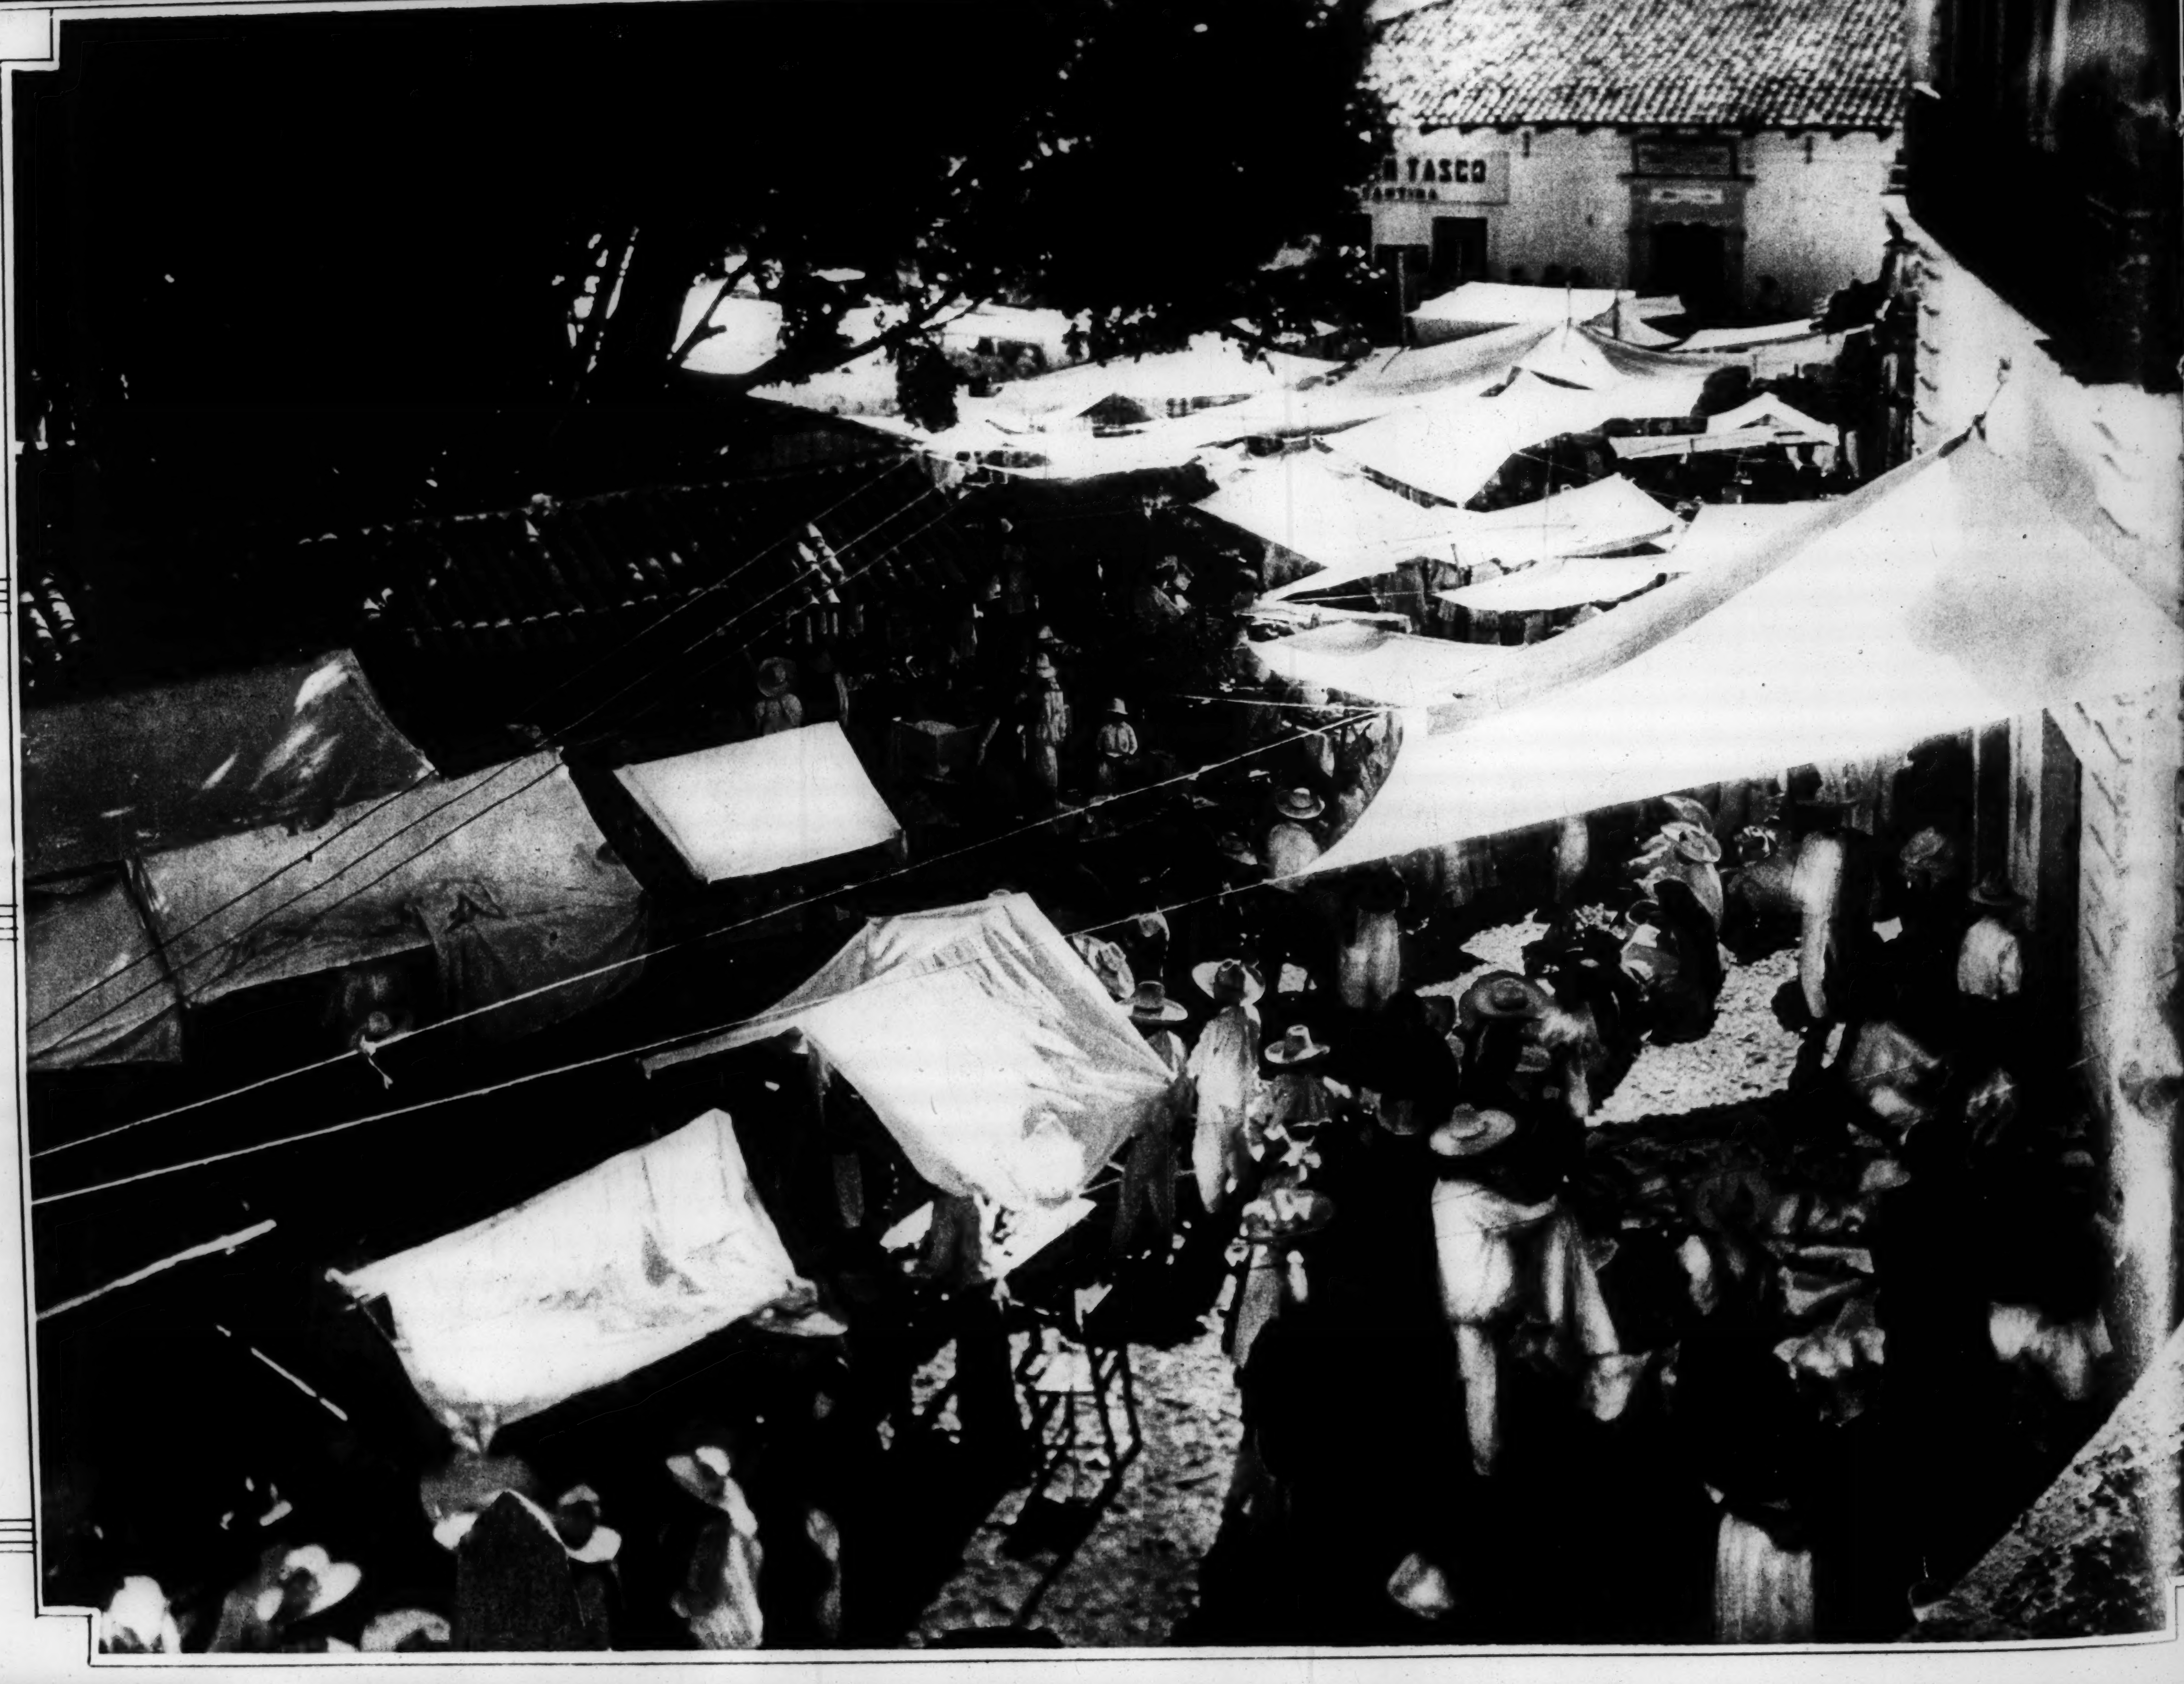


Xochimilco's songs and flowers are renowned throughout the country. Travelers are paddled along canals with blossom-lined banks, to the music of the boatmen's singing, in flat-bottom "trajineras," florally decorated.



Framed in an adobe window: An interesting group of Mexican children, frowning into the bright sunlight in Cuautla, State of Morelos.

The photos on this page by Alexander Piaget



Taxco on a market day: Shaded by snowy awnings and immense shade trees, provisional stalls are rigged up every day in a different town, the merchants transporting their wares by back or by burro. Taxco, a favorite tourist Mecca, is in the State of Guerrero.

SUNDAY MORNING THE ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH FEBRUARY 10, 1935

RUGGED INDIVIDUALISM IN THE ZOO
A group of terrapins in the Reptile House in Forest Park engage in a game of King-O'-the-Rock. When they are unable to reach the top, they get what altitude they can by climbing on each other's backs.
By a Post-Dispatch staff photographer.

CHINATOWN'S NEW YEAR'S FESTIVAL—Two youngsters, among the estimated 15,000 Chinese who participated in a week's celebration in San Francisco, decked out in their finest silks and baubles. Their names are Ruby Law and Lorraine Louie.

THIRTY-FIVE FEET
Two young acrobats throwing their partner, Miss Sylvia Manon, high above the beach of a Florida winter resort. She was caught, 35 feet down the sand, by a third member of the team.

ENVY?—England's idolized little princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, were completely enthralled when their parents, the Duke and Duchess of York, took them to the circus at Olympia, near London. Princess Elizabeth is at right, with her father.

FLIGHT FROM "DER FUEHRER"—Their hands in their pockets a group of Saar refugees march through the woods to the music of a lute, on their way to France. They might easily be mistaken for a band of "wander birds" on a summer outing, singing of freedom and the fatherland.

STILL IN THE RUNNING—M. Olszewski, now more than 60 years old, is still among the 2000-odd competitors in the annual six-mile race at the Polygone in Vincennes, France.

EVEN "NICE PEOPLE" FIGHT
DON'T YOU DARE!
YOU WAIT AND SEE!
ETHEL, HOW DO YOU DO IT! HERE I'M STILL IN THE MIDST OF MY WASH... AND YOU'VE ALREADY GOT YOUR SHOPPING DONE. DIDN'T YOU WASH THIS MORNING?
OF COURSE! BUT WASHING'S NO LONG JOB FOR ME.
NO LONG JOB! WHY MY WASH ISN'T NEAR AS BIG AS YOURS AND IT TAKES ME ALL DAY.
HERE'S THE SECRET, ROSE — OXYDOL — IT'S A NEW KIND OF SOAP THAT TAKES ALL THE SCRUB AND WEAR OUT OF WASHING — DOES THE WORK IN HALF THE TIME. HERE, LET'S TRY OXYDOL ON YOUR NEXT BATCH OF CLOTHES.
WHY, THAT'S A GRANULATED SOAP, ISN'T IT? I'M USING A GRANULATED SOAP ALREADY.
DON'T BE FOOLED BY APPEARANCES. OXYDOL MAY LOOK THE SAME, BUT IT'S ENTIRELY DIFFERENT... A NEW INVENTION. JUST 15 MINUTES' SOAKING DOES THE TRICK!
15 MINUTES' SOAKING! DON'T YOU DARE PUT THAT SOAP ON MY CLOTHES! WHY IT MUST BE TWICE AS STRONG AS THE SOAP I'M NOW USING — AND I'M BEGINNING TO BELIEVE THAT ONE'S TOO HARSH.
NOW ROSE, I'M DOING YOU A FAVOR. YOU WAIT AND SEE.
15 MINUTES LATER
WHY ETHEL, I CAN SCARCELY BELIEVE IT! ONLY 15 MINUTES — AND THOSE CLOTHES ARE SHADES WHITER THAN EVER BEFORE. BUT ARE YOU SURE THAT SOAP IS SAFE?
I'M NOT ONLY SURE — I'M POSITIVE! I'VE WASHED MY PRINT DRESSES IN OXYDOL AT LEAST 15 TIMES — AND THEY'RE JUST LIKE NEW. AND OXYDOL GIVES YOU MORE REAL SOAP FOR YOUR MONEY, TOO.
OXYDOL

"SHE'S GOING TOO FAR," THOUGHT ROSE. BUT 15 MINUTES LATER SHE THANKED HER FRIEND FOR ENDING "MONDAY BLUES."

GOODNESS — I THOUGHT ALL GRANULATED SOAPS WERE THE SAME. I CERTAINLY WAS BEHIND THE TIMES. I WISH EVERY WOMAN KNEW WHAT A GREAT DIFFERENCE OXYDOL MAKES.

YOU, TOO, WILL BE AMAZED AT THIS NEW WAY TO WASH. READ THESE FACTS—MAKE THIS TEST

New Million Dollar Granulated Soap Combines Safety With Utmost Speed. At Last A Safe Fast-Washing Soap That Actually Loosens Dirt Out of Clothes In 15 Minutes' Soaking—Gets Them 4 to 5 Shades Whiter Than Other Soaps Without Scrubbing or Boiling.

● New and Improved OXYDOL is different from any bar, flake, chip or ordinary granulated soap you ever used. Different in the way it's made and in the results it gets.

Due to its patented process of making, OXYDOL dissolves instantly in hard or soft water, and does these things:

FIRST — gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt and stains—in any water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.

SECOND—sets up a unique, new "soak and flush" washing action. 15 MINUTES' SOAKING loosens dirt out so it flushes away—without scrubbing or boiling.

You cut washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine. You save long hours of soaking, scrubbing and boiling—you get clothes clean and white without washboard wear and tear.

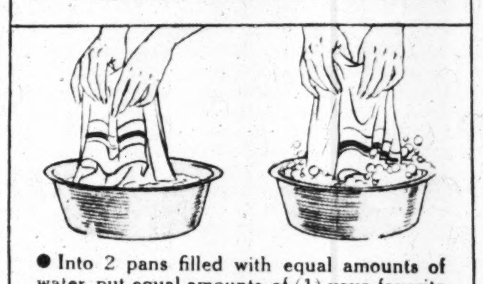
And yet, due to its special formula—its special protective combination of mild soap ingredients—OXYDOL is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, and fabrics!

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. D6-18 Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio, and we'll see you get a regular 10c package (enough for 2 full washings) absolutely free. Or to avoid delay—get OXYDOL tomorrow from your own grocer.

YOUR MONEY BACK

If This Test Fails in Your Home



● Into 2 pans filled with equal amounts of water, put equal amounts of (1) your favorite soap and (2) the new and improved OXYDOL. Then soak a dirty towel in each for 15 minutes by the clock. Then rinse.

● IF IN YOUR OPINION the towel that soaked in OXYDOL doesn't wash out whiter, smell sweeter, take the unused portion of the package of OXYDOL back to your grocer with this ad and get your money back.

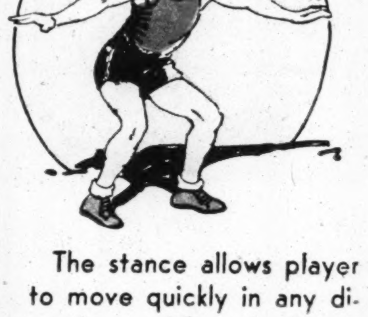
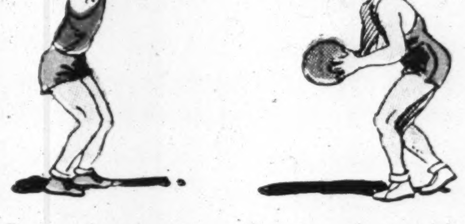
GUARDING

The Defensive Stance

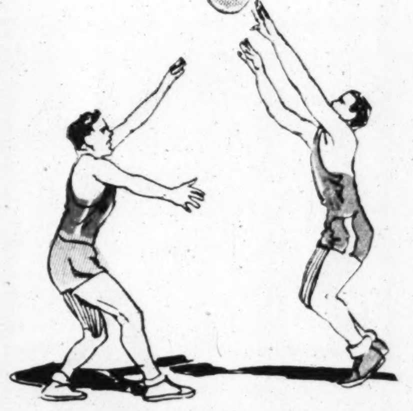


The stance allows player to move quickly in any direction and he at no time completely commits himself.

When Guarding the Man With the Ball

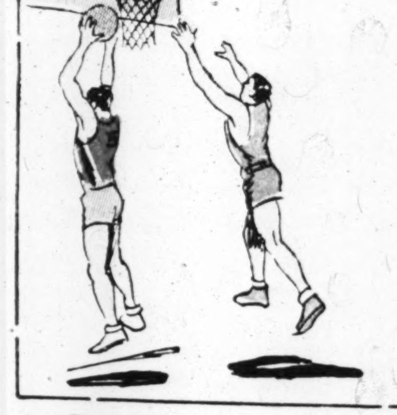


From this position the guard should advance quickly, maintaining his stance, and seek to fake the opponent into the movement desired by the guard.



Guarding the Shooter

Note that guard has held his stance. He can wheel about and block the shooter from obtaining the rebound. Jumping to block a shot is unwise.



Getting the Rebound

(From one of 10,000 letters from thankful hearts)

PLEASE WAIT, BRAD. IF YOU'RE GOING TO DO YOUR HOMEWORK, I'LL REMOVE THAT LACE TABLECLOTH FIRST.
YES, THAT WAS OUR WEDDING PRESENT FROM YOUR GRANDMOTHER.
LOOK OUT! YOU'VE KNOCKED THE INK OVER....
OH...THIS LOVELY, LACE TABLE CLOTH IS RUINED!
DONT WORRY MOM. IT'LL WASH OUT....THE AD SAID SO.
THAT INK IS PARKER QUINK, AND IT CAN'T BE REMOVED. WE USE IT AT THE OFFICE- IT'S AS PERMANENT AS THE PAPER.
YOU CAN'T BELIEVE ALL YOU READ, BRAD- BUT ANYWAY I'LL TRY.
BUT THERE ARE 2 KINDS, DAD. THE PERMANENT FOR RECORDS, AND THIS WASHABLE FOR HOME AND SCHOOL.
I TOLD YOU SO. QUINK IS ALL THAT PARKER SAYS.
YOU'RE RIGHT, BRAD. THEY SAID IT WOULD DRY ON PAPER SO QUICKLY I WOULD SELDOM USE A BLOTTER -AND NOW I NEVER NEED ONE

IF YOUR CHILD IS NERVOUS... GET ACQUAINTED WITH OVALTINE NOW. MAIL THE COUPON TODAY!

MOTHERS! Ovaltine is a pure food concentrate approved by more than 20,000 doctors. It is highly valued because of the very noticeable increases in both weight and nerve poise which so frequently occur when Ovaltine is added to the regular daily fare.

Recent scientific tests conducted with 48 school children in New York showed a decrease in nervousness, in some cases, of 25% in 2 weeks (as measured by the Olson-University of Minnesota checking system)—when Ovaltine was added to the diet.

For the sake of your child, try Ovaltine. You simply give it mixed with milk—either hot or cold—and children love its delicious taste. You can obtain it at any drug or grocery store—or mail the coupon for a trial supply.

HERE IT IS, SISTER— DA GREATEST INVENTION SINCE WATER WINGS. IT'S GIGANTIC — TREMENDOUS — STUPENDOUS — IT'S EVEN SUPERCILIOUS!
BUT WHAT IS IT?
SMELLAVISION, THAT'S WHAT, SMELLAVISION! A TWIST OF DA DIAL AN' YA CAN SMELL DA ONIONS IN BERMUDA, DA GARLIC IN ITALY AN' DA FLOWERS DAT BLOOM IN DA SPRING!

UM-M-M, IT'S SWELL! BUT TELL ME, WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH ALL THE MONEY YOU GET FOR YOUR INVENTION?

NEXT TIME YOU MAKE GELATIN DESSERT

Smell it!

As you pour on the hot water, bend over the bowl and smell the rising vapor.

And Royal tastes as good as it smells. If the package says "Orange"—it tastes like juicy, sun-ripened oranges.

Seven pure fruit flavors: Orange, Lemon, Lime, Pineapple, Strawberry, Raspberry and Cherry. Also the new Royal Gelatin Aspic (unsweetened) for jellied meats and salads.

Try Royal Pudding, too. It's made with healthful arrowroot. Two flavors: Chocolate and Vanilla.
